

GUILTY OF LARCENY OF PARK SYSTEM BUTLER ARRESTED

Alfred St. Dennis Sent to Jail for Ten Months

Alfred St. Dennis, well known to the police, was arrested this morning by Inspector John Walsh on warrants charging him with larceny. When arrested in court he was charged with being drunk, also for the larceny of a clock, a coat and pair of pantaloons the property of George Pegalus, also the larceny of two coats, a pair of pantaloons and vest, the property of Nicholas Metropoulos.

St. Dennis pleaded guilty to all three complaints. He was sentenced to five months on each of the larceny charges and the case of drunkenness was placed on file.

St. Dennis has been before the court on ten different occasions and on five of these the charges against him were larceny.

HELD IN JAIL

Benjamin Randlett, aged 21 years, was arrested yesterday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock on a charge of drunkenness and assault and battery on Mary F. Blanchard, aged ten years. The mother of the girl had the warrant issued and the arrest was made by Patrolman Peter Cawley.

PLACED ON PROBATION.

Arthur Dufresne was charged with the larceny of food valued at $10. It seems that Dufresne had been boarding at the Quincy House in Lee street and jumped his board bill. He was placed on probation providing he paid the $10 within six weeks.

THE DRUNKS.

The case of Michael Sullivan, charged with drunkenness and assault and battery, was continued till July 6.

Albany Perry, a third offender, was sent to the state farm. Michael F. Sexton made his third appearance and he will spend the next four months in jail. John J. Leary received a suspended sentence of four months in jail. Joseph Quinn and John J. O'Hare, second offenders, were fined $5 each. Seven first offenders were fined $2 each.

CLERKS' OUTING QUINN IS GUILTY

Employees of the Boston Office at Lakeview

THE GUESTS OF SUPT. LEES

Mass. Electric Co.'s

Employees Entertained

The clerks of the Boston office of the Massachusetts Electric companies, are enjoying an outing at Lakeview park this afternoon. The affair is given by the railway company and Supt. Thomas C. Lees of division two, with headquarters in this city, and the local clerks are the entertainers.

The clerks, men and women, to the number of about fifty left Boston at one o'clock on a special car and came to this city by the way of Reading, arriving here at 3:15 o'clock.

At the grounds the various points of interest and amusement places were taken in. Boating, canoeing and bowling were also enjoyed.

That the company decided to do this thing up in royal style was very evident for the clerks had the run of the place, anything and everything being free. A blue tag printed in gold with a golden tassel was worn by the clerks. One side of the card bore the inscription: "Outing of Boston Office Clerks of the Massachusetts Electric Companies, at Lowell and Lakeview park, June 27, 1908. Comm. by Superintendent Division Two."

On the reverse side was what tickled the clerks: "This card will be honored at the theatre, dance hall, roller skating, bowling alleys, penny arcade, flying horse carousal, rolling ball game, soda fountain, for use of canoes and row boats. In the arcade call at cashier's desk for pennies."

At 4:30 o'clock an excellent dinner was served in the dining hall by the D. L. Page Co.

The return trip will be made during the early evening, the special car returning to Boston by the way of Woburn.

ACCUSED JURY

MISCONDUCT IS THE CHARGE AGAINST THEM.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 27.—Misconduct of the jury after the case was submitted to it, amounting to a barter of the liberty of Frederick Hyde and Joost H. Schneider of San Francisco to affect an agreement upon a verdict, is alleged by Hyde and Schneider, recently convicted of conspiracy to defraud the government of public lands. This supplemental reason made public in the criminal court today charges that the verdict was the result of an agreement among the jurors that if some of their number who held a different view would agree to convict the two men other jurors would vote to acquit Benson and Diamond.

THE LATTER'S LEG WAS BROKEN

Convicted of Assaulting Martin Calnin

And He Was Confined to Hospital

Michael J. Quinn was arraigned in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with assaulting Martin Calnin in Middlesex street on May 22. It was alleged that Quinn pushed Calnin into the road and the latter in falling broke his leg. The case has been continued time and time again because of Calnin being confined to the hospital.

Martin Calnin, the complainant, said he had known Quinn for some time. He met Quinn on Middlesex street on the morning of the 23d of May and they went into a saloon and had a couple of drinks. Quinn then invited Calnin to go to his boarding house on the Hamilton corporation but Calnin refused whereupon, he says, Quinn struck and pushed him off the curb into the street breaking his leg. Calnin said he had been confined to the hospital for four weeks.

A Mr. Davis testified to seeing Quinn strike Calnin. The defendant, said he met Calnin in Donnelly's saloon in Middlesex street on the day of the alleged assault. He left the saloon and Calnin followed him. Calnin called him a vile name which he resented and struck him a slight blow. He said Calnin was intoxicated, and as a result of his condition, Calnin lost his balance and fell into the street.

The court found Quinn guilty and continued the case till the sixth of July. In the meantime it is expected that Calnin and Quinn will meet and make a settlement.

BRYAN WILLING

That Sullivan Should Be Running Mate

OMAHA, Neb., June 27.—A special to the Bee from Des Moines, Ia., says: Hon. Jerry B. Sullivan today received a letter from W. J. Bryan saying that the suggestion of Mr. Sullivan for vice president on the democratic ticket met with his approval; that he knew of no reason why Mr. Sullivan should not be named for vice president and that he was eminently fitted for the position. He assures Mr. Sullivan that if his ambition runs in that direction he will be glad to add his name to the available list. Mr. Sullivan will second the nomination of Bryan at the democratic convention at Denver, having been selected for that honor by Mr. Bryan himself.

OUR PARK SYSTEM Judge Pickman Talks Enthusiastically of Its Improvement

In the course of an interview with Judge Pickman of the park commission on the subject of the work of the park department, yesterday, the judge made the following interesting statement:

There is no city in this state, and perhaps I may include the whole country that offers less to the average citizen than does Lowell. All that the citizens and tax payers get is from the library and the parks. There are no swimming places, no art galleries, no lecture courses, no great playgrounds, and all they get in the way of culture comes through the library and the parks. Thousands of our citizens and their families are compelled to remain at home during vacation periods because they haven't the money to take a vacation amid other scenes, and the city in my opinion should attempt to benefit them and provide for their health and morals.

Judge Pickman is an enthusiast on the subject of a more extensive park system and more playgrounds, gymnasiums and the like and he would emulate the example of Ex-Mayor Quincy of Boston in impressing upon the citizens the actual need of these improvements. Judge Pickman has made a study of Boston's great system of parks and gymnasiums and talks most interestingly on the subject.

MONUMENT SQUARE PARK. When asked for his views as to the extension of Lowell's park system, Judge Pickman said: "In the first place let us consider the subject of Monument square as it is now before the city council. Shortly after city hall

BAILEY FAMILY JOHN P. MAHONEY HE CARRIED PINKS

Held Reunion at Amesbury Yesterday

AMESBURY, June 26.—The Bailey family of the United States met here yesterday, 200 strong in its 15th annual reunion. The business session was held at the Union Congregational church, which is not far from the house in which John Bailey, the founder of the family, lived, when he settled in Amesbury in 1835.

Representatives were present from nearly every state in the Union. In the absence of President Nathan O. Bailey of Providence, the Hon. Hollis Bailey of Cambridge presided. At noon, dinner was served by the ladies of the church. The afternoon was spent in making short pilgrimages to the home of John Bailey, Bailey's hill, and Goggin's, the first cemetery in Amesbury, where the founder of the family is buried.

Officers elected today were: President, the Hon. Charles O. Bailey, Newbury; vice-presidents, John A. Bailey of Lowell, J. W. Bailey of Somerville, Horace W. Bailey of Newbury, V. L. Solon W. Bailey of Cambridge, George E. Bailey of Everett, William P. Bailey of Brooklyn, Volney C. Bailey of Detroit, Edmund P. Bailey of Chicago, secretary, Edward A. Bailey, Lexington; treasurer, Hollis P. Bailey, Cambridge; auditor, Walter E. Robey, Waltham.

Mr. John A. Bailey, who was elected vice president at yesterday's reunion is the well known editor of Ayer's Almanac and a resident of Columbia street, this city.

CYLINDER CARRIED AWAY.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 27.—The British steamer Solasia, bound from Huelva for Philadelphia, was sighted off the Nantuxet shoals lightship yesterday and reported that her high pressure cylinder had been carried away, according to a wireless message from the lightship to the government wireless station here.

Well Known Citizen Passed Away

In the death of ex-Assessor John P. Mahoney, the archdiocese of Boston loses a noted advocate of the cause of temperance of many years' standing; the Hibernians of New England, one of their leading members, the city of Lowell a well-known and highly respected citizen, and the family of the deceased, a loving husband and devoted father.

The deceased served the city faithfully for 18 years as principal assessor, two years as registrar of voters, and two years as a member of the city council. He was a well known figure throughout Middlesex county, being two years president of the C. T. A. U. of the archdiocese of Boston, during which time his voice was heard in every city and town in Middlesex county advocating the cause of temperance.

At the head of the A. O. H. for four years, as county president of Middlesex, then elected state secretary of the Massachusetts order of A. O. H., which position he held until compelled to resign on account of the illness which culminated in his death.

During his connection with the A. O. H. he represented Massachusetts in five different conventions at Detroit, Michigan; Trenton, N. J.; Denver, Colorado; Boston, and Saratoga.

The local organizations to which he belonged are the Knights of Columbus, the Celtic association and Division 28, A. O. H.

The funeral will take place Monday morning at 8:15 o'clock from his late residence, 41 Bonfield street. A high mass of requiem will be celebrated at nine o'clock at St. Patrick's church. Friends are requested not to send flowers. The funeral will be under the direction of Funeral Director Peter H. Savage.

FIRE ALARM

FROM BOX 12 ON SO. CANTON STREET.

The alarm from box 12 at 1:47 this forenoon was for a fire in an old barrel in South Canton street. The only damage was the loss of the barrel.

A reporter for The Sun was at the scene when the alarm sounded from box 12 and so called were the movements of the firemen that one team was sent to the street for the full number was in the firemen's street where a number of men were and when the fire was struck it was all off the that house and the team was returned to the fire house. It was too quick a movement on the part of the firemen, something that is very rare.

And Police Thought He Stole Them

Michael Finnegan, better known as "Mike Finnegan," who aspires to be an actor, but who has made a bigger hit on the witness stand in police court than in treading the stage, is in the toils again.

While Patrolman George Palmer was on his beat about 5:30 o'clock this morning he espied Mike carrying an armful of pinks. The officer questioned Mike and when the latter could not give a good account of himself he was placed under arrest. In court this morning Finnegan pleaded not guilty to a complaint charging him with the larceny of 200 pinks, valued at one cent each from some person unknown.

Patrolman Palmer testified that he met Finnegan this morning with an armful of pinks. Witness asked him where he got them and he said he purchased them from a man in Dracut.

"Do you want to ask any questions?" asked Deputy Welch.

"I do," said Finnegan.

Addressing the witness, Finnegan said: "Didn't I tell you I paid for them?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, that's all the question I desire to ask you."

Deputy Welch testified that Finnegan said he purchased the pinks from two Frenchmen in Collinsville, but when the deputy said he would send a couple of officers to visit the men from whom he purchased the pinks, the prisoner said the officers could not find the place anyway.

Finnegan was then called to the stand and testified as follows: "Well, Your Honor, you see times are very hard and I've had some hard luck and it is difficult to find work, you know, and I thought I would buy some flowers and sell them. I never stole those flowers, and that is all I've got to say."

Finnegan said he would not go out with an offer to the man from whom he purchased the flowers, but he said he would tell the court what he would do and that was that he would go out himself and see the man and get a note saying that the flowers had been paid for. The court, however, would not agree to that.

Finnegan said: "I don't care for myself, it is my mother I am thinking of. I don't care about being away from her."

"Did you see your mother much during the months of January and February?" asked Deputy Welch.

"Yes, I did."

"Were you in jail?"

"Now, that's a different subject that pampadour haircut of yours is giving me too big."

The case was continued till Monday morning.

SHAH'S FRIENDS HARVARD CREW

Said to Have Won A Victory

TIFLIS, Morocco, June 27.—Fighting is going on between the followers of the shah and the factions opposed to him at Ardabil-Kavvin, Resht and other Persian cities along the Russian frontier. The partisans of the shah are said to have gained the upper hand.

It is reported that in several cases revolutionary leaders who were captured were subjected to severe torture. According to special despatches received yesterday from Tehran the shah's army is attacking several deputations including a group of members of parliament. He said he had no desire to punish parliament for the recent disorders, the responsibility for which rested upon those persons who had first attacked the troops. The deputations then thanked the shah for releasing order. Rigorous measures against the press of Tehran have been adopted.

FUNERALS

MURPHY.—The funeral of Leo Murphy took place this morning at 11:30 from the funeral parlors of C. H. Molloy & Sons. The cortege proceeded to the depot and the remains were sent to Haverhill on the 12 o'clock train. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery there, under the direction of C. H. Molloy & Sons.

DENAULT.—The funeral of Hubert Denaull took place yesterday from his late residence, 76 Merrimack street, and was largely attended. A solemn funeral mass was sung at St. Joseph's church. Rev. Fr. Dubreuil, O. M. I., officiated, with Rev. Frs. Lamothe and Ouellette, O. M. I., as deacon and sub deacon. At the cemetery Miss Blanche Dextra sang Gounod's "Pie Jesu." Frank Goudeau sang "O Christum" and Dr. Geo. E. Calise sang "O Materie Pastoris." Frank Goudeau directed the organ. The bearers were Hyacinthe Dextra, Horistia, Alphonse Polissant, Honoré Mayrand, Pierre Bourgeois, Alphonse Bibeault, Mose Gervais and John T. Vincent. There were a number of beautiful floral offerings.

Persons present at the services were Sylvie Denaull of Toronto, a brother of the deceased, and Mrs. Thelma of North Adams, a sister. Mrs. Thelma Dubreuil, O. M. I., officiated at the grave. Undertaker Amedee Archambault had charge.

FRECHETTE.—The funeral of Elizabeth M. Frechette took place yesterday afternoon from the residence of Undertaker Peter H. Savage. Services were held at the Immaculate Conception church. Rev. Fr. McRory, O. M. I., officiating. The bearers were William H. Shaw, Leandre Frechette, Joseph Frechette and Frank Barner. Among the floral tributes were sprays of roses and bouquets from friends. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery in charge of Undertaker Peter H. Savage.

O'MALLEY.—The funeral of George S. O'Malley was held yesterday afternoon from his residence, 24 Watford street, at 2:30 o'clock. Services were conducted by Rev. A. E. Moller, assisted by Rev. Fr. McRory. The bearers were Mrs. Mary O'Malley, Mrs. Mary O'Malley and Miss O'Malley. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery in charge of Undertaker Peter H. Savage.

Will Not Race in England This Year

LONDON, June 27.—There is little prospect of the Harvard "varsity" eight gaining a race in England this year. The Harvard crew cannot row in the annual Henley regatta as the stewards have decided not to accept foreign crews to complete in the regatta of 1908 and they are too late to enter for the Olympic regatta to be held July 28, the entries for which closed June 1.

"An exception has been made in the case of some countries, for example Canada, and a few Continental countries have until June 30 to enter for the Olympic but it was decided that the names of the American and some other crews must be in the hands of the secretary of the Olympic association not later than June 1.

When shown the despatch from New Haven saying that the Harvard crew was to start next week with the idea of rowing here on July 28, the secretary of the British association said: "I am afraid there is some misapprehension. We have not received their entry and as the time expired June 1, I am certain the association would not accept the entry should it come this late."

James E. Sullivan, the American secretary of the association, is of the same opinion. "The only hope of Harvard getting a race in England this year," Mr. Sullivan said, "is with one of the English universities, preferably Cambridge, who defeated Oxford. I tried hard to get the Olympic association to give us until June 30 to get in American entries but I was refused. We could not enter June 1, as we could not pick our crews until after the big races. If this time had been extended by one month we would have had a crew in the Olympic regatta."

Mr. Stuart, the Cambridge stroke, when questioned today regarding Harvard's coming over, said: "I know nothing of Harvard being invited to row." Mr. Stuart last year objected to racing with Harvard on the ground that the English rowers did not care to extend their period of training, which now covers over six months beginning early in the year, to the university race, and not concluding until after Henley. Mr. Stuart will stroke a crew at Henley early in July and he will also stroke an English crew at the Olympic regatta.

SURPRISE PARTY

MRS. ELLA MULLIGAN PRESENTED WITH BRACELET.

That Miss Ella Mulligan is held in high esteem by her many friends was shown by the large gathering which assembled at her home in Richmond street last evening. The feature of the evening was the presentation of a beautiful bracelet. Mr. William Duffy making the presentation speech. Although overcome with surprise, Miss Mulligan accepted the gift, responding emotionally, thanking all for their thoughtful consideration of her. During the evening there were piano selections by the following: Miss Jesse O'Connor, Miss Margaret Beaudet, Prof. William Fraser. All the ladies were rendered, the solos being sustained by the following: Missa Jose O'Connor, Sadie Kenney, Anna Lawlorson and Kathryn Masters.

Mr. Lionel Lupton made a decided hit with his song, "Everybody Looks Good to Me Now," having composed it himself. Mr. Peter Mulligan sang "What Shall We Have for Supper?" Beautifully, receiving many encores. Thomas McAndrews, William Duffy, Frank Chalmers and Harry Lupton (being the Agency quarters) helped entertain with their selections. Missa Jose O'Connor, Sadie Kenney, Anna Lawlorson and Kathryn Masters.

BITTEN BY DOG

Rabbi Told That He Must Die

CLEVELAND, June 27.—Waiting calmly for the fate that his physicians say threatens him, Rabbi L. Friedman is at his home, the victim of a rabid dog.

"If God desires to call me at this time I am ready to go," the rabbi said. "I do not feel any pain and I trust the treatment will prove successful. But the doctor seems to be discouraged."

The crisis in the disease will be reached perhaps tomorrow. The physicians refuse to make a hopeful forecast.

Rabbi Friedman is 64 years of age and has retired as an active pastor.

RECOUNT OVER

MAYOR McCLELLAN'S PLURALITY FIXED AT 2965.

NEW YORK, June 27.—With the recount of ballots in the contested mayoral election of 1905 practically completed yesterday, Mayor McClellan's plurality over W. R. Hearst stands 2965. The count of the election inspectors gave him 8834.

Counsel for Hearst announced yesterday that he will present in court Monday his evidence to support his allegations of stuffing of the ballot boxes.

THREE ARRESTED

MEN CHARGED WITH BREAKS AT PEPPERELL.

NASHUA, N. H., June 27.—The Nashua police yesterday arrested Arthur Merchant, Delore Merchant and Louis Caron for the Pepperell, Mass. police on a charge of being connected with a series of robberies that occurred in Pepperell last Saturday night, when three stores were broken into. Pepperell is but 14 miles from Nashua, and the Nashua police were warned immediately upon the discovery of the breaks to be on the lookout for suspects. The three arrested formerly worked in the paper mills in Pepperell, but have recently been employed here.

Each pleaded not guilty on warrants charging burglary.

STORY OF BATTLE

Between Mexicans and Revolutionists

EL PASO, Tex., June 27.—In an encounter between revolutionists and troops of the Mexican government at the town of Las Vacas in Coahuila, Mexico, near the border across from Del Rio, Texas, early yesterday between 40 and 50 were killed and the commandant of the Mexican troops was badly injured according to a despatch received here last night. The story of the battle is as follows:

The quarters of the Mexican officers and barracks were fired upon by the attacking band and the assault centered on the federal customs house. Forty troops were finally assembled. In the disorder following the initial attack upon the barracks and the discovery that the quarters of the soldiers were burning, the revolutionists captured about 50 horses belonging to the Mexicans. At the custom house the troops made a determined stand and the fighting lasted all morning without intermission. It is said that five thousand shots were exchanged. The revolutionists cut all telephone and telegraph wires leading to Las Vacas and thus prevented the besieged town sending for reinforcements.

After heavy firing until about noon the attacking party was repulsed and communication was established out of Las Vacas.

Troops were rushed to the place and were expected to arrive there late last night but advices from Del Rio say that a second outbreak was feared before the arrival of assistance.

The sheriff of Valverde county, this state, telegraphed Gov. Campbell of Texas that the revolutionists had been repulsed and that a number of them were fleeing to the United States.

The county officials asked the governor if he could apprehend the fugitives for violation of the neutrality laws.

Under advices from the attorney general Gov. Campbell advised the sheriff that the federal authorities alone had jurisdiction and instructed him to keep hands off.

OFFICIALS SILENT.

CITY OF MEXICO, June 27.—Repeated efforts to obtain official confirmation of the attack on the border town of Las Vacas by bandits have met with failure.

The office of the secretary of the interior has remained closed during the night and at the residence of Minister Corral, no visitors are being received.

The secretary of the interior refused a statement regarding the affair. Despatches from various points in northern Mexico show that the attack is a state of ferment. During all of last night armed men, many of the them Americans, occupied the roofs of the Banco de la Nacion and the Banco de London and Mexico.

The despatches still characterize the raiders as bandits, but it is believed here that they are half criminal aggressors, of political malcontents whose main purpose is to loot under the guise of insurrection.

The government says that the raiders do not number more than 50 armed men, but other reports place their total number as larger.

The railroad in Coahuila, injured by the bandits, has been repaired and the trains are now carrying troops to that city of Torreon and will form a network for the capture of the marauders. Reports of impending trouble in the state of Nuevo Leon cannot be confirmed at this time.

LOWELL MEN

TO TAKE PART IN PARADE IN BOSTON SUNDAY.

The big demonstration in honor of St. John's day, by the Holy Family Temperance league will be held in Boston tomorrow afternoon. A parade of the members of the league escorted by the C. T. A. U. of the archdiocese, will take place with Major John J. Leonard, chief Marshal. Prominent to will ride on the chief marshal's staff. The parade will conclude with services in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross. A sermon will be delivered by His Grace, Most Rev. Wm. H. O'Connell, archbishop of Boston.

KETCHUP GAME POSTPONED.

The game scheduled between the Ketchup club, of the Navy Yard and the sanctuary choir team of St. Patrick's parish, to be played at Spalding park this afternoon, was cancelled last night, because the grounds were not available.

The two teams will lineup for the game in the course of two weeks or more.

The old time rivals of the Sanctuary choir team, the Immaculate Conception church team, of Lawrence, will be seen here in a short time. It will be remembered that it was this team that took the championship of the Merrimack Valley, two years ago from the choir team, negotiations are under way.

THE DEFENDERS

On the Lookout for Attacking Fleet

Kept Up by the Artillery Commands

BOSTON, June 27.—Warning to the fray the members of the state militia and regular coast artillery corps stationed on the several forts on Boston harbor as the defending force in the simulated warfare now in progress today redoubled their efforts to prevent a landing by the naval fleet which is manoeuvring about looking for an opportunity to score. The first and second artillery commands continued practice with the guns today although all the batteries did not use the regulation service charges. Observation officers were stationed at the guns to take note of the result of the gunners' efforts at vessel tracking by sights and the batteries instructed in the proper movements for overcoming possible vessels seeking to land attacking parties.

The shooting at Fort Heath which is occupied by Boston and Fall River companies has been considered specially commendable thus far, the 19 shots with service charges having resulted in a percentage of eighty in hits.

RYAN WILL DIE

Was Found on Ledges at Waterville

WATERVILLE, Me., June 27.—John Ryan, a wanderer, was found on the bottom ledges at Titicoca yesterday afternoon with bad wounds upon head and face. Just how he came to be there is unknown.

Whether he went to sleep on the bank in the rear of the Lockwood coal pockets on the Winslow side of the river, and in his sleep rolled over the upper ledge, or whether he was pushed or thrown by others, is a matter of conjecture.

Ryan with 20 others were driven over into Winslow yesterday morning by City Marshal Farrington and his officers. Seven men who were lying about the top of the ledge in a more or less intoxicated condition were taken to the Winslow police station by the town constable, assisted by the police of this city.

Ryan's skull is fractured, the scalp is torn from the forehead, the nose is crushed and the cheeks are terribly lacerated.

He was sent to the Central Maine general hospital by the Winslow authorities yesterday afternoon. His injuries are considered fatal.

INJURIES FATAL

MALDEN. WOMAN VICTIM OF NEWPORT ACCIDENT.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 27.—Mrs. Henry Winn of Malden, Mass., who figured in the overturning of a trolley while on a pleasure excursion here yesterday in connection with the convention of the general federation of women's clubs in Boston, died early today from the fractures received in the accident, without recovering consciousness.

The death of Mrs. Winn, the second death among the ranks of the club women as a result of their visit to this city, Mrs. Sarah Shute of Coon Rapids, Ia., having died yesterday also from heart disease.

Mrs. Bennett F. Davenport of Watertown, Mass., and Mrs. Helen C. Sundean of Lincoln, Neb., the only others whose injuries were considered so serious that it was thought dangerous to remove them to Boston were reported at the Newport hospital this morning to have passed as comfortable a night as might be expected and to be in a condition which gave them much chance for recovery.

NINE AUTOS

BOSTON, June 27.—The nine automobiles which arrived in this city last night from Portsmouth, N. H., on the tour-promoted by the Automobile club of America left the Hotel Brunswick early this forenoon with Waterbury, Conn., as the destination of their day's run. Thus far the trip has brought the tourists through the Berkshires, the White mountains, Poland Springs and Portsmouth, N. H., and on their arrival at Waterbury they will be prepared to cover the last leg of the run to New York where they are expected to finish the tour on Sunday.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

Discussed Report of National President

BOSTON, June 27.—Saddened by the announcement at the opening of today's meetings of the death of Mrs. Henry Winn of Malden at Newport, R. I., where she was injured yesterday in an accident which threatened the lives of fourteen other delegates, the clubwomen in attendance at the convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs today took up their regular sessions as usual. In addition to the death of Mrs. Winn it was announced also that Mrs. Sarah Shute of Coon Rapids had died at Newport from heart disease. The president, Mrs. Sarah Decker of Denver, in announcing the fatal ending of yesterday's accident, expressed her sorrow and sympathy with the departed woman's family.

The meeting under the head of household economics, listened to discussions by Mrs. Burton Smith of Atlanta, Ga. Mrs. Robert J. Burdett of Los Angeles, Cal. Mrs. Virginia Meredith of Los Angeles, Cal. Mrs. Junia Sheppard of St. Paul, Minn.

"The co-operation of women's organizations for good schools" was described by Miss Laura D. Gill and Mrs. Desha Brenneridge of Lexington, Ky., told of the educational awakening in Kentucky. The conditions under which "English scholarships for American women might be obtained and the advantages which an American woman might secure by a study abroad under them" were told by Miss Eleanor Glynn of the subject.

The report of the national president was made the subject for general discussion during the latter part of the forenoon. The proceedings during the forenoon were gone over in duplicate at a meeting in the afternoon in which all those visiting clubwomen who were not regularly accredited delegates or alternates might attend.

SHERMAN BETTER FIVE RAILROADS

Candidate Appears to be Improving

CLEVELAND, O., June 26.—"I feel fine this morning," was the greeting Dr. Carter received when he visited Rep. James Sherman at Lakeside hospital today.

"Doctor, when can I go home?" the patient asked.

He was assured that from present indications he could leave the hospital not later than Wednesday next. The vice-presidential nominee immediately began to plan for a conference with political friends at Utica on Friday, July 3.

Mr. Sherman had seven hours of refreshing sleep during the night and today his condition was about normal.

At a conference this morning between Dr. Carter and consulting physicians, Drs. Allen and Stone, the greatest assurance was expressed as to the ultimate recovery of Mr. Sherman.

BUBONIC PLAGUE

DISCOVERED ON A CANADIAN PACIFIC LINER.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 26.—News was brought by the Japanese steamer Aki Maru yesterday that the discovery of a case of bubonic plague on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of China had caused the detention of that vessel by quarantine officials of Nagasaki, Japan. Reports to the office of the Aki Maru state that within two days after the discovery of the plague twelve deaths had occurred.

A MONUMENT

TO THE LATE SENATOR HOAR UNVEILED.

WORCESTER, June 26.—The people of the city of Worcester paid a glowing tribute today to the memory of George Frisbie Hoar who for over a half a century was a citizen of that place, when on a plot of ground north of city hall on Front street they unveiled in public view and with fitting ceremonies dedicated a monument in honor of the lawyer, scholar, orator and statesman. The people of the Worcester raised the $30,000 cost of erecting the monument, by public subscription. Some 30,000 people subscribed.

Have Been Accused of Discrimination

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Charging five railroads with discrimination in favor of Chicago as against Milwaukee in the grain trade, the chamber of commerce of Milwaukee today filed with the interstate commerce commission two complaints asking the government to require the same through rates on all kinds of grain from stations on the defendant roads in Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota to Milwaukee as to the Chicago markets.

FLAGGED TRAIN

And Prevented Serious Accident

BOSTON, June 26.—A south bound elevated train on the Atlantic avenue circuit was flagged just in time today when a freight car on the street below jumped its track and ripped away one of the posts supporting the L structure. When the employee of the elevated at the State street station felt the structure tremble and saw the rails sag they realized instantly the nature of the accident. Sizing signal flags two employees ran down the tracks in either direction. The man on the south bound track ran a hundred yards when he stopped a train in time to prevent a serious accident. Traffic on both tracks was delayed for some time.

HAD AMMUNITION UNDER ARREST.

EL PASO, Tex., June 26.—Eleven Mexicans were arrested here yesterday charged with fomenting a revolution against a friendly power upon American soil. A search of the building in which they were taken revealed two cases containing rifles and revolvers and also one thousand rounds of ammunition. Letters and literature said to be incriminating were found also. Among the letters were found to be several from Antonio Villero and Flores Nagon, two alleged revolutionists whom the Mexican government recently sought to extradite from the United States.

NEW HAVEN, June 26.—Frank McGee, a union labor agent, was found guilty by a jury in the superior court today on three counts, alleging intimidation in connection with a strike at the McLagan foundry in this city about ten months ago.

FROM YESTERDAY'S LATE EDITION

ROOM ENTERED

Watch and Chain and Money Stolen

The room occupied by Joseph Z. Davis, an employee of the Bigelow Carpet Co., at 464 Merrimack street, was broken into some time yesterday and a gold watch and chain, a sum of money and some clothing were stolen. The matter has been reported to the police but up to the time of going to press the identity of the person who committed the break had not been found.

DIFFICULT JOB

No Bottom to Fire House Site

Contractor Simpson is still probing for a bottom to the new fire house site in West Sixth street for which he is laying the foundation. There seems to be absolutely no bottom to the back side of the fire house lot. Iron bars three times the length of crowbars have been pushed into the earth and no bottom can be found. The contractor and others are at a loss to know what to make of it. Some of the men employed on the job think it's a bit un-annoying.

Mr. Simpson has not yet made up his mind as to how he will overcome the difficulty, but he allows that there will be a time when the Merrimack river's bank came within a few yards of the land on which is the fire house site, and the land from that point to the river is, so the old settlers say, made land.

It would be a very serious affair should the fire house be built only to drop, without notice, into a bottomless abyss, and there is no telling but what that might happen while the brave fire ladders were wrapped in the arms of Morpheus. Such an occurrence, of course, would make a peach of a story, but as much as we like good stories we would prefer the survival of the fire house and the firemen.

Then again such a calamity might bring about an international difficulty that would render it necessary for us to wallop a few million Chinamen. Of course this is a little far fetched, but if that fire house ever got to going it might not stop until it got to China, and a great big fire house attaining a velocity acquired by a great fall would be liable to do some mischief providing it should land in a city proper or a public assemblage.

THE SEMI-SLANT

Some members of the school board are in favor of a change in the writing system now in use in the schools. The verticle must give way to a semi-slant, they say, which is described by some as "the vertical tipped over." The enthusiasts call it the happy medium between the vertical and the Spencerian and others say it's a compromise. It is called the Whitehouse system and is alleged to have been chosen in that order that it might carry with it a sort of Washingtonian or national prestige.

Supt. Whitcomb is perfectly satisfied with the present system, the vertical system, and he is not offering any argument in favor of a change. The primary teachers are for the vertical to a unit and the grammar masters are about equally divided. The children like it because it is simple and easy to learn, and the parents and others like it because it is neat and legible. The committee, however, evidently think the verticle a bit prudish and they incline to the semi-slant. The committee members have agreed to believe that the vertical "tipped over" is the proper paper and that is likely what the committee will recommend.

Supt. Whitcomb says that the proposed change will not be very expensive to the city because the Whitehouse people will take back all of the verticle system books that have not been used, allowing the city what was paid for them. The city, of course, would have to stand the expense of throwing away the books that are now in use, some 10,000 or more. In 1907 there were 9278 books in the day schools and 816 in the evening schools. But don't you care, Lowell?

The argument is made that the vertical hand is a poor one to go out into business life with, because it is school-boyish and slow. Just how the committee arrived at the conclusion that the vertical hand would prove a handicap in the business world because of its slowness and schoolhouse atmosphere has not been fully explained, but the fellows who are going to control the change have arrived at that conclusion. The committee's slogan is: "The public demands a slant."

Representatives of the vertical system assert that it is the fastest in the market and the foundation for their assertion is that the system has won first place in several speed tests.

JOHN P. MAHONEY

Former Assessor Died This Afternoon

Mr. John P. Mahoney, former member of the board of assessors, and one of Lowell's most prominent citizens, died at 2:30 this afternoon at his home in Butterfield street. Deceased was 59 years of age and was a member of the board of assessors for about twenty years. He was very active in Hibernian circles and held positions of prominence in several organizations. He was the first Lowell man to hold the position of president of the C. T. A. U. of the archdiocese of Boston. He also served as state secretary of the Hibernians and relinquished this office when illness prevented the performance of duty. He was a leading member of the Celtic club and at one time was prominent in the councils of the republican party. He was a most genial man, always ready and pleased to make friends and enjoyed a wide acquaintanceship. Mr. Mahoney was first elected assessor by the city council after a bitter fight and only with the aid of some democratic members of that body.

Every time after that he had no opposition to speak of until his last term, when a most formidable and successful contest was waged against him and he was defeated by Albert Blazon. Besides his widow he is survived by five sons, Dr. Daniel of Boston, John, Charles, George and Edward and two daughters, Annie Loretta and Dorothy.

SPECIAL SESSION

Of Superior Court at Gorham St.

A special session of the superior court for the purpose of hearing motions was held at the local court house in Gorham street, this morning, Judge King presiding.

Messrs. John J. O'Connor, John J. Hogan and William H. Bent argued for a new trial in the cases of Janney, Perron, Gargan and Cayer, against Joseph Albert. These cases grew out of the accident at the Sheild building in Church street this spring when two of the above mentioned men were killed.

When the case was heard before the superior court verdicts for the defense were rendered. Mr. O'Connor appeared for Janney, Mr. Hogan for Perron and Gargan and Mr. Bent for Cayer. Judge King took the matter under advisement.

In the case of Prince against the Lowell Electric Light corporation, in which the jury returned a verdict of $5000 for the plaintiff, Lawyer F. W. Gun, representing the defense, argued to have the verdict set aside and have a new trial.

400 TO BE IN LINE

M. T. I. Will Parade in Worcester

The semi-annual election of officers of the Mathew Temperance Institute will take place at the meeting Sunday morning, and at present it looks as though there would be very few contests. Pres. John J. Coyne, whose work at the head of the institute the past term has been most commendable, will be re-elected without opposition. Vice Pres. Charles F. Sullivan, one of the institute's best hustlers, has declined a re-nomination for the position. Michael F. Boyle is a formidable candidate for the place and there may be others.

The committee on arrangements for the trip to Worcester on July 4th, to take part in the big temperance demonstration there, held a meeting last evening and completed all arrangements for the trip. Interest in the event is great in the society, and if the weather is fair over 400 members will probably be in line representing Lowell. A prominent member said today that it looks as though about 1000 Lowellians would also make the trip with the cold water boys.

SERIOUS INJURY

CLUB WOMEN MEET WITH ACCIDENT AT NEWPORT.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—Two women were dangerously hurt and ten others more or less seriously injured when a trolley coach in which they were riding capsized on a steep hill on Bath road today. Ambulance calls were sent to the police but by the time the trolley was reached the scene of the accident was a mass of wreckage. The Newport hospital in private automobiles.

At the request of the injured persons the hospital authorities refused to give any information regarding the identity of the victims or the nature of their injuries. It is known, however, that the accident was a critical one. All of the victims of the accident were delegates to the annual convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs at Boston and had come here on an excursion.

GAVE HIS LIFE

IN ORDER TO PREVENT TRAIN WRECK.

PARIS, Ill., June 26.—Mangled beneath the wheels of the Knickerbocker special yesterday Lawrence Friend, aged 23, a brakeman, gave his life in preventing the far He Four passenger train from crashing into a trolley car. Friend was working on a freight train which was blocking the line when the passenger came along at 9 miles an hour. The brakeman ran to a switch and turned it just in time to throw the passenger train on a side track but not quickly enough to avoid being struck down and crushed by the Knickerbocker's engine.

CHAS. J. GLIDDEN

Wants An Aero Park in Lowell

Charles J. Glidden, who just at present is interested in balloons and balloon trips, thinks that Lowell should have an aero park and he has asked the board of trade to aid in furthering the project. John A. McKenna, secretary of the board of trade today tried to locate Pres. Motley of the Lowell Gas Co. to get him interested in the matter, but Mr. Motley is out of town so Mr. McKenna had a talk with Frank E. Dunbar, Esq., counsel for the company. The latter promised to bring the matter to the attention of Mr. Motley, and tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock Secretary McKenna will meet Mr. Glidden at the Touraine hotel, Boston. Mr. Glidden's letter is as follows:

June 21, 1908.

Mr. Henry A. Smith, President Lowell Board of Trade, Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir: Lowell is a splendid location for an aero park for New England nationalists. The club now numbers 10 members and you have the treasurer in the person of Harry G. Pollard. Worcester has tried to have us locate there, but practically I would like to see the club have a park in Lowell. All that is necessary is to have the gas company furnish on short notice forty to eighty thousand cubic feet of gas and $50 to $60 pounds of sand and a space near the gasometer for the ascension park. If you will make an appointment some time when in Boston, will be pleased to talk it over.

They furnish help to fill the balloon, sand, etc., at Pittsfield, and No. Adams, and charge us nicely cents per one thousand for the gas. Delivering gas at that price at the gasometer, is profitable and less by distribution, etc. The quality is very essential and should test out 300 lbs that will lift about forty-five pounds to the one thousand cubic feet.

Here is a chance to bring Lowell to the front in this great movement of aeronautics. The press can help the movement along. Lowell leads well in automobile matters.

Very truly yours, Charles J. Glidden.

FAILED TO REPORT FOR WORK THIS MORNING.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., June 26.—This morning 21 of the 31 twister tenders employed at the Pawtucket & Central Falls mills of the Royal Weaving Co. failed to materialize at their accustomed places and a strike has been inaugurated that may tie up the mills unless the places of the strikers are filled at once. The twister tenders have been making 15 cents per one thousand ends and yesterday received a notice that this figure was to be cut to sixteen cents. They demurred and the management tried to compromise by offering 18-12 cents.

Supt. Ott, the company says the strike is now practically a lockout and that he will fill the strikers' positions with other help by next week.

VACCINATE ALL

RAID MADE ON CHICAGO SMALL-POX DISTRICT.

CHICAGO, June 26.—One hundred persons from the Chicago health department descended on the population of the district bounded by Sixteenth, Fourty-fourth, State and LaSalle streets last night to vaccinate everyone in sight. Each person was armed with full police power and had the right to arrest all who resisted vaccination.

The men were ordered by Health Commissioner Evans because of the large number of smallpox cases which have come out of the district and the large percentage of cases among the colored people compared with the white.

FINED $500

CHINANAN WAS ACCUSED OF FALSELY TESTIFYING.

BOSTON, June 26.—Hor Yin, the New York Chinese restaurant owner who was on trial charged with unlawfully bringing his wife and 11 year old daughter into this country, was fined $500 in the United States district court today for falsely testifying before the immigration officials. The charge of perjury was not pressed by the government. Yin will be allowed to keep his family with him. At New York Yin tried twice without success to secure the admission of his wife and daughter. Then he came to Boston and represented himself as a Boston merchant. On this statement his wife and daughter were allowed to pass through the immigration station at Richmond. He took them both to New York where in September they were arrested but were later released.

TWO DROWNED

MOTOR BOAT CRASHED INTO A LITTLE SKIFF.

CLAYTON, N. Y., June 26.—Whirling through the water at express train speed a high power motorboat last night crashed into a little skiff in which four young men and women were sailing on the river. The skiff was cut in two, its occupants hurled into the water and two of them, Edward Wells of Round Island and Lucin Carmen of Albany, were drowned. The motor boat was running at a speed of twenty-five miles an hour when it struck the skiff.

BIG FIRE

IS RAGING AT DULUTH, MINNESOTA.

DULUTH, Minn., June 26.—Property loss of $50,000 may be entailed by fire which is raging among the Consolidated Elevator Co's group of four elevators along the water front.

CONGRESSMAN PARKER DEAD.

DEADWOOD, S. D., June 26.—After an illness of several weeks Congressman Parker of Deadwood died today of dropsy and liver trouble. He was born 71 years ago at Keene, N. H. Burial will be in the National cemetery at Arlington.

BURNED TO DEATH

Three Children Lost Their Lives

CLEVELAND, O., June 27.—Three children were burned to death last night when fire destroyed the home of William Kilmacks.

The dead ones: Arthur Kilmacks, aged 3; Walter Kilmacks, aged 4; and Kilmacks, aged 2.

The injured ones: William Kilmacks, father, hands, face and back burned; condition critical; Mrs. Anna C. Kilmacks, mother, badly burned; Mrs. Mary Kilmacks, injured by jumping.

The fire started in the upper portion of the house from an unknown cause. The father made a desperate effort to rescue the family but failed to get at his children.

SEMIF-INALS

OF NATIONAL TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP IN WOMAN'S SINGLES.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—The semifinals of the national tennis championship in women's singles was played yesterday. In the final round between Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Miss Wagner, the former won by two sets to one.

Summary: Women's championship singles, semifinals round, Mrs. Barger-Wallach, Newport, defeated Miss Edith Roth, Boston, 6-2, 6-4.

Miss Wagner, Haverhill Grange, defeated Miss Johnson, Staten Island, 7-5, 6-2.

Final round: Mrs. Barger-Wallach, defeated Miss Wagner, 6-2, 6-4.

Championship doubles, third round: Misses Widley, defeated Mrs. Miles and Miss Barons, 6-1, 7-5.

BODY FOUND

IDENTIFIED AS THAT OF PRIVATE RUSSELL.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., June 26.—The only tragedy of Pine Camp came to light yesterday when the body of Private Waldron Russell, Company K, Twenty-fourth infantry, was found floating in the Black river, about two miles from camp headquarters.

The body was in such a state of decomposition that Corporal Pierce, who went from here and viewed it last night, did not decide whether the death had been violent. There was a mark behind the left ear and one over the left eye. The skull was not fractured.

HEART FAILURE

CAUSED DEATH OF DELEGATE TO WOMEN'S CLUB CONVENTION.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—Mrs. Sarah Shulte of Coon Rapids, Iowa, who came east as a delegate to the General Federation of Women's clubs in Boston, died last night of heart failure at the Newport hospital. Mrs. Shulte and her daughter, Miss Sarah Shulte, joined the excursion of delegates to Newport yesterday, coming from Boston by way of Providence and then by the steamer Mount Hope to this city. Mrs. Shulte was taken ill on the steamer.

WORKED OVERTIME

But Lowell Pulled Off the Victory

Greenwell Pitched a Steady Game and Howard and Vandergrift Made Timely Hits—A Lively, Scrappy Game

Lowell and Fall River played ball at Washington park yesterday and it was quite noticeable that the attendance was much smaller than at any other game during the week, the recent defeats evidently having affected the attendance.

Uniac, the Haverhill shortstop, was in uniform this afternoon, but it is doubtful if he will be signed by Lowell as he will have to quit playing the first of August in order to go west where he has a position in a hospital.

Umpire Joseph O'Brien called the game at 3:15 o'clock.

FIRST INNING.
Fall River scored two runs in the first inning, but the best that Lowell could do was to send one man over the plate. Messenger was the first man up for the visitors and he hit to Shannon and was out at first. Kane drew a free pass. Austin sent a grounder which Wolfe allowed to go by him and Kane scored. Toomey fled to Howard, the latter making a beautiful one-lump catch near the trees in deep center field. Austin went to third on the put out. A wild pitch scored Austin. Thornehill hit through Wolfe, the latter making his second error. Connor closed the inning with a fly to Zinsar.

In the latter half of the inning Shannon drew a base on balls and went to second on Zinsar's sacrifice. Magee hit to Donovan and was out at first. Howard singled to right field, scoring Shannon. Howard tried to steal second and was thrown out.

Score—Fall River 2, Lowell 1.

SECOND INNING.
Neither side scored in the second inning. Donovan opened with a single and went to second on Norris's sacrifice. Gilroy hit to Wolfe and was out at first. Donovan going to third, but the latter died there for Messenger hit to Wolfe and was out at first.

In Lowell's half Duff was hit by a pitched ball and went to second on Wolfe's sacrifice. Vandergrift fled out to Donovan. Ainsmith drew a base on balls and Greenwell hit to Donovan forcing Ainsmith at second.

Score—Fall River 2, Lowell 1.

THIRD INNING.
Neither side scored in the third inning. Kane opened with a fly to Duff. Austin fled to Howard and Toomey hit to Shannon and was out at first. Shannon flied to Thornehill and Zinsar hit to Donovan and was out at first. Magee hit to right garden for a single, but in trying to make two bases was thrown out.

Score—Fall River 2, Lowell 1.

FOURTH INNING.
The fourth inning opened with Thornehill hitting to Vandergrift and going out at first, while Connor and Donovan fled out to Howard.

Lowell tied the score in the latter half of the fourth inning. Howard opened with a base on balls and went to second on Duff's sacrifice. Wolfe sent the ball to center field for a single and Howard scored. Vandergrift singled to right field. At this point Capt. Connor of the visiting team wanted to bench Gilroy and put in another pitcher, but wanted to delay the game in order to give another pitcher time to warm up. The umpire refused to agree to this whereupon Connor tipped the ball. The umpire put another ball in play and Gilroy continued to pitch. Ainsmith drew a base on balls, filling the bases. Greenwell fled out to Thornehill and Shannon fled to Austin.

Score—Lowell 2, Fall River 2.

FIFTH INNING.
In the fifth inning Norris struck out and to Shannon who took Gilroy's place hit to Shannon and was out at first. Messenger drew a base on balls, but officer whereupon he went. Later he was suspended and fined $10.

The meeting of the O'Briens, umpire and manager, was brief and to the point.

Paddy Duff and Vandergrift made two very amateurish plays yesterday and both lost on them. In Duff's case with a runner on first the batter fled out to Howard who threw back to first beautifully. All Duff had to do was to put his foot on the bag and the double play was completed. But instead of that he waited for the runner and attempted to tag him out and the latter made a "get away" slide and Paddy tagged the empty air. Vandergrift's case was on a force out at third. He got the ball ahead of the runner and instead of making the base he went for the runner who slid under him.

Greenwell knocked down a hot liner with the bare hand yesterday that only few pitchers would tackle. The play shut off a run.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

The steady betterment of local ordinances regulating the use of motor vehicles in cities throughout the eastern states is shown by the recent action of the borough council of Media, Pa. Hereafter automobilists will be permitted to drive their cars through that place at the rate of ten miles an hour along the streets and at seven miles an hour when rounding corners.

M. H. Franklin, treasurer of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers, has decided to go into this year's Glidden tour, though he had abstained from going into the affair in any previous year. His reason for not entering former Glidden tours is in brief as follows:

"This is the first time in the history of the Glidden tour that the Franklin car has been represented, the reason hereof given being that the Glidden tour, while no doubt allowing contestants an opportunity to demonstrate some of the good points of their machines, did not to any great extent prevent the less able cars from qualifying in a manner which would cause it to appear that they were equal to their more worthy competitors. In short, it has up to this time been looked upon as more of a tour than a reliability contest, this however is not true of the coming event, which on account of the penalization system is more severe and proves better the points claimed for the entrant's car."

Mr. Franklin received No. 12 and Nos. 13 and 14 were assigned to John Wilkinson and G. H. Stilwell, who also entered Franklin's, all three cars being entered as a team to represent the Automobile club of Syracuse. F. A. Barton has entered a Franklin runabout as a contestant for the Howe trophy.

YOUNG DEER

SEEN TO CROSS MIDDLESEX STREET TODAY.

That deer are very plentiful in the immediate vicinity of Lowell is being shown every day. This morning shortly before eight o'clock a deer came up from the river at Middlesex village, crossed Middlesex street, and went through the Pratt estate and into the woods beyond Princeton street. An electric car on its way to Lowell was passing at the time and the motorman stopped the car so that all on board had a good look at the pretty little deer as he covered the distance between the river and his wood home.

BRUTAL ASSAULT

Omega Wade Squirted Ammonia Into Young Man's Eyes and Mouth

Omega Wade, 42 years old, was arrested by Patrolman Cawley yesterday afternoon. The arrest was made just in time to save Omega Wade from an angry mob. He had squirted ammonia into the eyes and mouth of John Rourke, a boy employed as a bootblack at the Richardson hotel. It is said that his act was a deliberate one, done without any provocation, whatever.

The boy's eyes and mouth were badly burned. The ambulance was summoned and he was taken to Dr. Rourke's office. The doctor attended him until the boy returned to the hotel. It will be several weeks before he will be able to do anything in the line of work.

It was in the basement of the hotel that the miserable and cowardly assault occurred and the first intimation about the hotel employees or persons about the hotel had it was when the boy's cries were heard. Wade had then made his escape but there was a boy, a chum of Rourke's, who seemed to have an inkling of what had happened and he called Wade in the street. He threw Wade down and managed to hold him until the officer arrived.

Just as the officer had taken possession of Wade the crowd learned what he had done and they wanted to take him away from the officer. The latter, however, managed to keep Wade away from the mob, and when the patrol wagon came along with Wagon Officer Hekson aboard, the crowd shouted: "Soak him John, give him a little ammonia, he's a cur."

Searches at the police station Wade was found to have in his possession a bottle containing ammonia, another bottle containing a poisonous looking and miserable smelling fluid and a bottle of perfume. His fingers were covered with rings that were good, bad and indifferent. He was drunk and did not offer any excuse for what he had done. He was booked for drunkenness and assault and battery.

Wade was very indignant when asked to give up the rings he was wearing. "This is highway robbery," he shouted, and he tried to resist the officers but his attempt at resistance was a very feeble one and he was soon of his jewelry in double quick time.

Wade was arraigned in police court this morning on charges of drunkenness and assault and battery. He was held under $50 bonds for his appearance Monday morning.

It is thought that Wade is of unsound mind and he will be examined by an alienist to learn as to his sanity.

NORTH BILLERICA

The annual concert and strawberry festival of St. Andrew's church was held at Thomas Talbot Memorial hall, North Billerica, last night. The attendance was very large and through the untiring and zealous work of the committee in charge the affair proved to be one of the social events of the season.

There was a musical comedy, entitled "A Garden Party," presented by the Y. M. C. I. Glee club of Lowell, delicious strawberries, ice cream and cake were served, and general dancing enjoyed.

The program was as follows:
Cast of characters:
Mr. Wood Edward Shea
Miss Rose Wood, his daughter,
Miss Tottie Two-a-Day, a vaudeville star
Will E. Fish, a lovely boy.

Sam, a colored gentleman.
Frank McCarthy
Fritz, a Dutch servant.
John Payne
Girls: Misses Margaret Knowles, Lilla Shea, Loretta White, Alice Knowles, Lena Gormley, Elizabeth McAlister.

Brief and Simple Was Service Over Body of Former President

Body Lowered Into the Grave as Sun Was Sinking in the West—Strong Guard of Soldiers to Protect Pres. Roosevelt—Four Clergymen Assisted at the Services

PRINCETON, N. J., June 26.—Grover Cleveland's body lies buried in the Cleveland plot in Princeton cemetery.

At 6 o'clock, just as the sun was sinking in the west, a distinguished company silently watched as the body was lowered into the grave. Then the simple burial service of the Presbyterian church was read, and before the last of the carriages in the cortege had driven up to the path leading to the burial place the benediction had been pronounced and the members of the family, President Roosevelt and others who had gathered about the grave, were leaving the cemetery. Many of the personal friends of the dead statesman lingered about the spot which was to mark his last resting place and each in turn was permitted to cast a shovelful of earth into the grave.

OF SIMPLEST CHARACTER.

Agreeable to the wishes of Mrs. Cleveland, the services both at the house and at the cemetery were of the simplest character. An invocation, scriptural reading, a brief prayer and the reading of Wordsworth's poem, "Character of the Happy Warrior," constituted the services at the house, while the reading of the burial service at the grave was brief and impressive.

Although the funeral was of a strictly private nature, those in attendance numbered many distinguished citizens, including President Roosevelt, Gov. Fort of New Jersey, Gov. Hughes of New York, Gov. Hoke Smith of Georgia, a member of President Cleveland's cabinet, officials of the Equitable life assurance society, members of the Princeton university faculty, friends and neighbors.

Mr. Cleveland was buried with all the simplicity and privacy that he himself

CLEAR THE COMPLEXION OVER NIGHT

Pimples, Rash, Eruptions, Etc., Quickly Eradicated by New Skin Remedy.

Since its discovery one year ago, poslam, the new skin remedy, has, in its extraordinary accomplishments, exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the eminent specialist who gave it to the world. It has cured thousands of cases of eczema and eradicated facial and other disfigurements of years' standing. The terrible itching attending eczema is stopped with the first application, giving proof of its curative properties at the very outset.

In less serious skin affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, blackheads, acne, barber's itch, etc., results show after an overnight application, only a small quantity being required to effect a cure. Those who use poslam for these minor skin troubles can now avail themselves of the special 50-cent package, recently adopted to meet such needs. Both the 50-cent package and the regular $2 jar may now be obtained in Lowell at Falls & Burkinshaw's, Carter & Sherburne's, and other leading drug stores.

Samples for experimental purposes may be had free of charge by writing direct to the Emergency Laboratories, 22 West Twenty-fifth street, New York city.

of Mrs. Cleveland as the impressive final words were spoken. The services lasted less than five minutes.

The ceremonies over, President Roosevelt with Secretary Loeb and several secret service men, who attended him, were driven to the railroad station where he entered his private car and remained until the train pulled out at 6:20 o'clock, when he appeared on the rear platform and acknowledged the cheers and good-byes of the crowd at the station.

Mrs. Cleveland and the immediate members of the family returned to Westland while the majority of the guests went to the Princeton inn, where light refreshments were served with Mrs. Russell of Princeton as hostess.

Governors Hughes, Fort and Smith left the city soon after the ceremony. Several photographers in their eagerness to photograph Governor Hughes and other distinguished guests upon their arrival, refused to comply with the order of the guardsmen to fall within the lines, and it was not until one of the photographers decided, at the station, shortly before his departure, Governor Hughes, good naturedly, posed for a score of camera men. The governor left for New York in the private car of George Westinghouse, which brought Mr. Westinghouse, Paul Morton and a number of representatives of the Equitable Life Assurance society.

VISITORS ARRIVE.
As early as two o'clock distinguished visitors began to arrive. Among the first were Secretary George B. Cortelyou and former United States Senator James Smith. General James G. Wilson and Hilary Herbert followed soon after. The guests were received on the veranda of the home of Prof. John Hibben, and Cleveland F. Bacon, nephew of Mr. Cleveland.

Governor Charles E. Hughes was the first state executive to arrive. As he stepped from his carriage all the other assembled officials rose to greet him. The guests were received into the house at 4 o'clock, Jesse Lynch Williams, Henry J. Van Dyke, and William H. Bradford of Princeton, ushering the visitors to seats in various parts of the house. In the reception room with the casket were Mrs. Cleveland and the children and relatives and the officiating clergymen. As each clergyman delivered his part of the service he stood at the door of the reception room so that he could be heard by all.

On the casket were flowers and ivy wreath from Nassau hall. The floral offerings were conveyed to the cemetery before the procession started from Westland and were arranged about the plot.

HEAVY POLICE GUARD.

For over an hour before the services and until President Roosevelt had left the Cleveland home the streets and cemetery were carefully guarded by miles of police. The Monmouth troops of Red Bank and the Trenton companies of the Second regiment, which constituted the visiting militia, in addition to the local company, left for their respective stations last night.

Soon after the grave was filled the cemetery was opened to the public and the crowds, which up to that time had been denied admission, surged into the grounds to view the grave and floral display.

MONUMENT TO CLEVELAND.

NEWARK, N. J., June 27.—A movement has been started in Essex county, where Grover Cleveland was born, to raise a fund for a national monument to his memory. Within the next few days it is expected that a committee to take charge of the fund in New Jersey will be appointed.

Dexter, chairman; Mrs. R. A. Griffiths, Mrs. Montan Garland, Mrs. R. J. Fullerton, Mrs. Geo. Tiff, Mrs. C. M. Young, Mrs. Duff Myrick, Mrs. Geo. Schofield, secretary; Mrs. Sewall Potter, Mrs. Fred Ireland, Mrs. O. D. Romaine, Mrs. Ada Wamaker, Mrs. J. W. Stiles, and Mrs. E. J. Kane.

GIVING OUT

The Struggle Discourages Many a Citizen of Lowell

Around all day with an aching back: Can't rest at night: Enough to make any one "give out": Doan's Kidney Pills will give renewed life.

They will cure the backache: Cure every kidney ailment: Here is Lowell proof that this is so: Miss Mary Fennell, of 26 Thoreau street, Lowell, Mass., says: "In the spring of 1895 I recommended Doan's Kidney Pills after procuring them at Ellingwood & Co.'s drug store. My brother at that time was having considerable trouble from backache and kidney complaint, as I understand most all who follow his example as a patient, have more or less trouble from those organs. This remedy was just what he needed and his backache was quickly ended and his kidneys restored to a good healthy condition. I have heard him speak of Doan's Kidney Pills many times during the past several years, and he always speaks of them in the highest terms of praise."

BOY KIDNAPPED

He Was Taken Away in An Auto

PARENTS OF THE LAD SEPARATED

Strangers Managed to Make Their Escape

NORTH HAMPTON, N. H., June 27.—Francis Robert Drake, 5½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford S. Drake, was forcibly carried away by two strange men who appeared, from nobody knows where, at the home of the child's grandmother, Mrs. Justin E. Drake, near the bridge over the eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad about 11 o'clock this morning.

It is believed the abduction of the sunny-haired little fellow is the outcome of domestic trouble between his father and mother, who have been living apart about two years. The father is at present in Chicago and the grandmother is of the opinion that the men who carried little Francis off knew of his absence.

The grandmother's story of the abduction is that shortly before 11 o'clock a two-seated automobile, containing two men, stopped in front of the house, apparently as though it had broken down. One of the men she describes as of light complexion and wearing a long linen coat, the other dark both wearing the goggles so common to automobilists.

One the piazza at the time were playing little Francis, the abducted boy; Joshua, aged 10; Marion, aged 9, and Dorothy, aged 5, children of some neighbors.

The men in the automobile after watching the little group a few minutes asked Mrs. Drake, who had appeared on the scene if they could have some water for the automobile, and how far it was to the nearest telephone station.

When told it was about a half-mile away, they said they would be going, but invited the children to take a ride with them.

Mrs. Drake without suspicion consented, and the children trooped into the automobile, much pleased with the prospect of a ride.

The continuation of the story of the abduction is furnished by little Joshua, who says that before the automobile had gone very far the man who wore the long linen coat asked Francis if his name were not Francis Robert Drake and the little fellow replied that it was. Meanwhile the automobile had kept on until Breakfast hill, about a mile from the Drake homestead, was reached.

Here, according to Joshua's story, the automobile was stopped and the man in a linen coat, who did all the talking, gave him a quarter of a dollar and asked him to go to a house nearby to get a trench. He got out, and his two little sisters followed him, as well as Francis, but hardly had the children alighted from the automobile when the man in the linen coat got out and quickly snatching up Francis, again entered the automobile and gave his companion the signal to start.

Joshua overheard little Francis protesting in a childish way at being separated from his companions, and he heard his captor reassure the little fellow that it would be all right and that he would soon rejoin them.

All this time the automobile was making away with the boy, and in a few minutes it was out of sight over the hill.

Joshua and his two sisters, understanding little of the real purport of the carrying away of Francis, then made their way home, arriving shortly after noon.

Here they quickly told their story and Mrs. Drake at once drove to the nearest telephone station and notified Col. John H. Bartlett at Portsmouth and through him the police of neighborhood were warned to be on the lookout for the boy and his captors.

With the long start that it had, however, the automobile got safely away and when the alarm was given was undoubtedly well out of the district, as up to a late hour no trace of it had been secured.

The Committee Recommends Improvements

SUM OF $7000 FOR Macadam

Hall Street Will Not Yet Be Accepted

After a tour of inspection of streets where improvements had been petitioned for, the committee on streets met last evening and disposed of a raft of business. The committee voted to recommend the appropriation of $7000 for macadamizing streets.

The committee voted to accept Beau-lieu street, from West Fifth street to Victor street, and Florence avenue from Pine to Westford street.

The petition that Christian street be laid out and accepted was laid on the table and it was voted to accept Eaton street from London to Manchester streets after the street had been put to grade. Bowdoin, Whidden and Bourne streets will be accepted when they have been put to grade.

The sidewalk in Dalton street was accepted and it was voted to pave Westford street from Wilder to Chester street with Hassam paving.

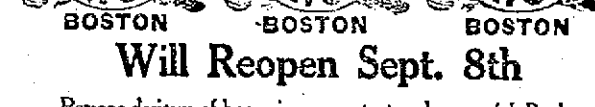

The committee voted to recommend an appropriation of $7000 to macadamize Cady, Milk and Foster streets, and to put Crawford street in grade.

The petitioners who petitioned that Hall St. be accepted were given leave to withdraw. The same action was taken on the petition that Grand street be watered, and the petition that Parkview avenue be macadamized.

The petition for a cinder sidewalk in Cosgrove street and the petition to macadamize Methuen street from Beacon street to the city limits were referred to the superintendent of streets. To the superintendent were also referred the petitions to macadamize Union street and for watering Tenth and Beacon streets.

PROPOSED CHANGES IN TEXT BOOKS

THE SCHOOL BOARD, IT IS ALLEGED, IS ABOUT TO CHANGE THE SYSTEM OF WRITING AS WELL AS THE SYSTEM OF MUSIC, OR, PERHAPS, IF IT FAILS, TO PUT THROUGH THE PROPOSED CHANGE IN THE MUSIC SYSTEM.

OBJECTION IS RAISED TO THE VERTICAL SYSTEM AND THE FIRST CHANGE IS TO A SEMI-SLANT SYSTEM. SHOULD THAT BE ADOPTED THERE WOULD SOON BE AN OPPORTUNITY FOR MR. MCGRAFT TO SUGGEST ANOTHER CHANGE, BACK TO THE SPENCERIAN OR ORIGINAL SLANT SYSTEM.

FINANCIALLY, THE CITY IS NOT IN A POSITION TO MAKE CHANGES IN THE SYSTEM OF MUSIC OR THAT OF WRITING THIS YEAR. BOTH HAVE SERVED VERY WELL FOR A CONSIDERABLE TIME AND THEY ARE JUST AS GOOD TODAY AS THEY WERE ON THE FIRST DAY OF THEIR ADOPTION. EVEN IN COMPARISON WITH LATER SYSTEMS, WE NEVER ADMIRERED THE VERTICAL SYSTEM OF WRITING, WE ALWAYS FELT IT CLUMSY AND UNHANDY, BUT IT IS HERE AND WE ARE NOT PREPARED TO DISLODGE IT JUST AT PRESENT. IT IS SURPRISING TO WHAT AN EXTENT THE CHANGE IN A TEXT BOOK DISCOMMODES THE WORK OF A SCHOOL AND DISCONCERTS BOTH PUPILS AND TEACHERS.

THIS IS NO YEAR TO CHANGE TEXT BOOKS EVEN THOUGH THE CHANGE WERE NECESSARY. IN MUSIC THERE IS NO NEED OF A CHANGE; IN THE WRITING SYSTEM, WE BELIEVE, A MISTAKE WAS MADE WHEN VERTICAL WRITING WAS INTRODUCED. NOW, HOWEVER WE ARE ACQUAINTED WITH IT, WE HAVE BEEN TAUGHT TO USE IT AND IT WOULD BE A GREAT WASTE OF TIME FOR ANY PUPIL TO CHANGE TO A NEW SYSTEM OF WRITING. SUCH A SYSTEM SHOULD BE INTRODUCED GRADUALLY, PASSING UP THE BABY CLASS FROM GRADE TO GRADE UPWARD SO THAT NO PUPIL WILL BE REQUIRED TO CHANGE HIS STYLE OF HANDWRITING. TO REQUIRE A PUPIL TRAINED TO THE VERTICAL TO CHANGE HIS STYLE WOULD BE THE HEIGHT OF ABSURDITY AND IMPOSITION.

THE OBLATE FATHERS OF THIS CITY ARE TO BE HEARTILY CONGRATULATED ON THE PURCHASE OF THE FRED AYER ESTATE FOR AN ORPHANAGE. NO BETTER ESTATE COULD BE FOUND IN LOWELL AND THERE IS NO OTHER CHARITABLE INSTITUTION MORE NEEDED IN LOWELL THAN AN ORPHANAGE.

THOSE WHO ATTEND THE POLICE COURT ARE NO STRANGERS TO THE HEART-RENDING SCENES ATTENDING THE SEPARATION OF PARENTS AND CHILDREN WHEN THE STATE STEPS IN AND TAKES CHARGE OF THE CHILDREN ON THE GROUND THAT THE PARENTS HAVE FAILED PROPERLY TO PROVIDE FOR THEM. CHILDREN IN SUCH CASES ARE ORPHANIZED BY LAW AND SENT TO HOMES FROM WHICH THEY ARE SELDOM HEARD OF AGAIN. IT IS A CRUEL THING TO DO BUT THE LAW ORDAINS IT AS A NECESSITY.

IT WOULD BE A REAL CHARITY IF THIS NEW ORPHANAGE WOULD ACCEPT SUCH CHILDREN AS WELL AS THOSE WHO HAD LOST THEIR PARENTS BY DEATH. THE CHILDREN IN THE ONE CASE ARE FULLY AS DESTITUTE AND AS HELPLESS AS IN THE OTHER, EQUALLY THE OBJECTS OF CHARITY.

OUR PARK SYSTEM

IT IS REFRESHING TO FIND A MEMBER OF THE PARK BOARD SO ENTHUSIASTICALLY IN FAVOR OF BEAUTIFICATION AND DEVELOPMENT ALONG POPULAR LINES AS IS JUDGE PICKMAN, AS INDICATED IN AN INTERVIEW WITH THAT GENTLEMAN PRINTED IN TODAY'S SUN.

LOWELL, IT IS TRUE, HAS NOT AS MANY PRIVILEGES FOR ITS PEOPLE AS MOST OTHER CITIES AND IT IS ONLY BY THE GRADUAL DEVELOPMENT OF A SYSTEM THAT THE NECESSARY RESULTS CAN BE OBTAINED. PATIENCE AND PERSEVERANCE ALONG THE RIGHT LINES WILL EVENTUALLY GIVE US A SYSTEM OF PUBLIC PARKS OF WHICH OUR CITY MAY WELL FEEL PROUD.

IT IS TO BE HOPED THAT LOWELL OFFICIALS WILL SOON LEARN TO LEAVE NO FOUNDATION FOR INDICTMENTS ON CRIMINAL CHARGES. WE HAVE HAD MANY CASES OF THAT KIND OF LATE AND SOME CONVICTIONS THAT REFLECT UPON OUR CITY'S GOOD NAME. IT IS NO CREDIT TO THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY TO SECURE INDICTMENTS ON FLIMSILY CHARGES. IT IS BESIDES A SOURCE OF EXPENSE TO THE COUNTY AS WELL AS TO THE DEFENDANTS.

SEEN AND HEARD

A Kansas girl is engaged to a Chicago young man and recently, upon returning from a visit at the home of his intended, the lover purchased two presents, one for his intended and one for her little brother. To his informant he sent a beautifully bound copy of "Luelle," and to the boy a fine baseball bat. In some inconceivable way both the accompanying notes and the packages were exchanged with the result that the young lady received the baseball bat and the attached advice: "Please accept this small memento as a token of my regard. Take it out with the boys and develop your muscles. Enter into the spirit of the game and learn to hit hard. It may stand you in hand in later life. Take this bat, split on your hands, walk up to the plate and pester the ball in the solar plexus. Learn to slide even if it does tear your trousers. Be game!" The boy will not tell what was in his letter because his sister refuses to trade presents. She is learning to hit hard on the ground that it may stand her well in hand after she is married.

Now, what's de use of Joslin?
An' attus givin' diggs,
A-laughin' an' a-jokin'
An' sayin' boys is pigs!

Pa says me stumblin' de rubber,
Er' gumerastick stuff,
An' says me legs is holler,
I never gits even!

An' sister, she's a teacher
Way up to number five,
She says the auvercander
Jest eats 'em up alive!

An' how a nostitch gobles
An' gals, a great delight,
Jest grabs an' grabs an' wallers
Most anything in sight!

Aunt Jane she says my manners
Is really shockin' bad,
I see a boys' s'greedy
Is 'scounagin' an' sad!

But ma she knows about it,
She's Johnny-on-the-spot!
She says when boys is growin'
Dey has 'em out a lot!

An' bread an' jam is cheaper
An' medicine an' pills;
She radder pay de grocer
Dan pay de doctor bills!

An' sometimes when dey's knockin'
She sorter winkle her eye,
An' slips across de table
An' under de pie!

An' says: "Now, don't y' mind 'em,
I knows 'em, dat I do,
Wen dey was kids an' hungry,
W'v dey was jest like you!"

oldest painters in this city. He has for more than half a century been actively engaged in painting and has perhaps painted more houses in Lowell than any other wielder of the paint brush in this city. Another feature of old Uncle Abu's history is that he is the only surviving member of the old Lowell brigade band which went with the sixth regiment to Washington in '61. There are few men at his age who have or would have the courage to cross the country to establish a new home. The majority of men at his age consider that they are living on borrowed time, but not so with Uncle Abu. He is still up and coming with the young "uns." It is interesting to hear him tell of his trip through Baltimore and to describe the denials that were made in his old home by bricks that were thrown from windows, roofs of houses and other places of vantage.

In the Lazy Hills are trees of shade.
By the dreaming Brooks of Sleep,
And the rollicking river of Pleasure laughs,

And gambols down the steep;
But when the blasts of Winter come,
The Brooks and the river are frozen dumb.

Then woe to those in the Lazy Hills.
When the blasts of Winter moan,
Who strayed from the paths of a Bank Account

And the path to a House of Their Own.

These paths are hard in the summer heat.

But in winter they lead to a snug retreat.

SPRINGFIELD'S NOVEL CELEBRATION.

New Bedford Standard: Springfield has an ambitious Fourth of July program, including a chorus of eight hundred voices to sing in the open air, and a boy regiment of cavalry, one thousand strong. The town also feels that it has drawn a great prize in the fact that a good part of the Buffalo Bill show will join the procession, though that show was given up on the street parade as a means of advertising itself. Springfield restricts noise-making by explosives on Independence Day more rigorously than is the custom in most cities.

THE ARRAY OF COLLEGES.

Worcester Post: Statistics from the United States commissioner of education have interest at this season of commencements. He reports 622 institutions of higher learning for men in this country. Of these five have 2200 or more students; 17 have 1000 or more and in 114 the average enrollment is above 200.

This above all others is the country of colleges. More than $23,000,000 has been contributed in private benefactions for their endowment in the 12 months just past. The largest amount, $4,300,000, has gone to the university of Chicago. Perhaps the wisest single benefaction is the one just announced of $500,000 by Mr. Phillips to Johns Hopkins university for the study of insanity. Maladies of the mind are playing an increasingly serious part in our civilization and in no branch of medicine has so little progress in diagnosis or treatment been made, whether because of the inherent obscurity of the subject or because of lack of adequate research. The results of Mr. Phillips' benefaction may some time help to show.

The number of inmates of the insane hospitals of the country is upwards of 200,000 and the annual cost of maintenance nearly $21,000,000.

APOTHEOSIS OF LAFOLLETTE.

New York Sun: The Hon. Henry Fire Cochems of Wisconsin, who nominated Battle Bob, may not have the voice of Knight of California, but he treated the convention to its first bit of empyrean rhetoric:

"Through all the years Robert M. La Follette has stood like a bold mountain about whose summit the hurricanes have raved in vain and upon whose base the angry waves have beat their surge, unshaken and unshakable!"

For ten years he has carried this war upon the point of his sword, and from the light that gleamed from his shining blade was lit the blaze that carried forward, the war in Wisconsin, fired the heart of Roosevelt and today, like the face of the morning, is leading the national crusaders along the pathway of reform."

Mr. LaFollette may have had reason to consider himself the legitimate heir, but as a precursor and inspirer he must be loathsome to the great borrower and conveyor of other men's principles and words.

UNTHINKABLE.

WHAT IS RHEUMATISM?

Well Known Remedy That Absolutely Cures This Dread Disease.

No other disease is so painful as rheumatism. Uric Acid crystals are deposited in and about the joints, and that is called rheumatism. The only way in which this painful and dangerous disease can be absolutely cured is with Neuralgia Anodyne, a remedy that has an entirely different action from anything else.

Small doses are taken internally that reach the nerve centers and prevent the formation of Uric Acid. It is also rubbed on the affected parts, quieting and relieving the pain, and curing the rheumatic fever, and restoring health to the aching tissues and muscles.

A large sized bottle of Neuralgia Anodyne costs but 25c, and it is so successful in curing rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, toothache and relieving rheumatic and sprains that the proprietors, the Twitchell-Campbell Co., Portland, Me., authorize dealers everywhere to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

REPUBLICAN ESTIMATE OF CLEVELAND.

Haverhill Gazette: Whatever may be thought of Grover Cleveland's judgment, the honesty of his motives will hardly be questioned even in quarters that have been bitterly opposed to his theories and interpretation of the needs of the times. With old school notions and a firm belief that the financial runs must needs be checked at the first sign of a flurry in the business sky, he acted sometimes in a manner that seemed arbitrary in quarters better informed. He had no sympathy with the growth of radicalism first in his own party and later as evidenced in the policies of President Roosevelt. Loyal to the last to the old standards of government, he refused to concede the effect of years and new conditions, and stood stubbornly against the progress of change. He was possessed by the conviction of many sterling qualities that will be remembered when the bitterness caused by some of his official acts have been forgotten.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

There are two hundred Indians in the Thirty-seventh. Being a rural corps the Indians are weak in strength and considerably more than half of them are redmen, second or third year men almost without exception. At the time of the Toronto inspection in 1901 the Thirty-seventh had seven companies. Of his own initiative Capt. Johnson, an Indian himself, came forward and organized a company of redmen from the Six Nations. Today he is captain of as keen a body of recruits as there is in the whole camp. His son is a lieutenant in the same company. Lieutenant Smith, who was one of the two natives of North America who went to the coronation from the Thirty-seventh, is an officer in the third company. He is a full-blooded Mohawk. All these servants of the King are well set officers of military bearing and clean-cut, expressive features.

"The cause of temperance is working great headway in Norway. We have adopted the local option policy with excellent results," said P. Andersen, a manufacturer of white paper, from Skien, Norway.

"Whenever the people of a certain district or county wish to abolish drinking houses an election is held at which all adult males in that territory are supposed to vote. If any are absent their votes are counted for prohibition. Another election cannot be held until after five years, and it is very seldom that a second vote is ever taken when a community once goes against license. Another thing that has made national sobriety is the regulation, in many places, that liquor cannot be bought except by the bottle, and requiring the purchaser to take the bottle to his home before using any of its contents."

Mrs. Sarah Tooley has written an account of the literary career of the Baroness Orczy, which should be stimulating to writers. She began with detective stories. "Traveling one day on the top of an omnibus just beyond the Westbourne park station over one of the squalid bridges that cross the canal at that miserable corner of London, I looked down one of the most desolate streets I know," the author says, "and it struck me what a number of mysterious, forgotten crimes must have been perpetrated down the ill lighted, squalid portions of mighty London." This led the baroness to write the detective stories told by "The Old Man in the Corner." When she had written "A Son of the People" she had failed for a long time to find a publisher willing to take the book, because the scene was laid in Hungary. When the "Scarlet Pimpernel" had been accepted as a play the publishers looked askance at the idea of bringing out a book by the same name. But the story has sold in a quarter of a million copies and has been translated into twelve languages. "A Son of the People" brought her a fortune. Through it the baroness was found to be the heir to the chateau and estate which her readers knew as Budekult.

Joaquin Miller lives on the hills overlooking San Francisco and the Golden Gate. He writes his verses lying in bed, with a pencil and pad near him where he can look at his view and write when the spirit moves him. "The essential thing in poetry or prose," Mr. Miller claims, is to use as few and as simple words as possible. He calls attention to the fact that the Seamon on the Mount has only 202 words in it. He never keeps any of his books about him, for he says, "They do not seem very good to me after I have finished them."

Charles Rann Kennedy has in hand a series of seven dramas in which the central themes are the conception of brotherly living, the destructive force that comes from the lie, the woman question, the child influence, the conflict of races and the ideals of freedom.

PROF. HAGGERTY

TO SPEND THREE MONTHS WITH THE MONKEYS.

NEW YORK, June 27.—For the next three months all communications for Professor Melvin E. Haggerty of Harvard should be addressed "Care of Monkeys House, Bronx Zoological Park."

Beginning today, Professor Haggerty will start light housekeeping in the neat but inexpensive quarters that have been prepared for him in the simian shed by Director Hornaday.

After 60 days' close association with the jungle exiles, Professor Haggerty expects to qualify as an interpreter of the language.

Professor Haggerty is the assistant of Professor Robert M. Yerkes of Harvard, an expert on animal life and well up among the heavy hitters in the "ology league."

It was after a conference with his superior that Professor Haggerty conceived the idea of spending his vacation among the monkeys.

Director Hornaday entered into the proposition with great zest, and the work of fitting up suitable quarters for the professor has been going on for the last two weeks.

It is Professor Haggerty's intention to camp on Jocko's trail until he familiarizes himself with every detail of monkey life and oratory. With the data secured it is the purpose of Professors Yerkes and Haggerty to compile an orang-outang dictionary, which will be the first lexicon of the kind ever built.

IN A WOODEN BOX

A Fitchburg Woman's

Plan of Travel

FITCHBURG, June 27.—Mrs. William Tryon left yesterday concealed in a wooden box with a glass covering, her own invention, for Salisbury, N. C., where she will seek to restore her health.

Mrs. Tryon has been in ill health for a number of months, suffering from nervous prostration and bronchitis. She has remained in her apartments at 10 Day Street for the past year, stopping in a room where she refused to allow any fresh air to enter. She has been kept in bed, and was covered with heavy blankets and other bed clothing. She complained of the cold air even with the temperature at 80.

Several weeks ago she conceived the idea of traveling to the south in a large wagon, but when she was told that this was impossible, she invented the plan which was adopted yesterday.

A few weeks ago she called in a carpenter and gave him instructions to build a large wooden extension case with glass doors, the case to be upholstered, in which she could recline while riding in the train to Salisbury. The box was completed Thursday and was taken to her room for inspection. After a few changes were made Mrs. Tryon said that she was ready for the journey.

She was placed in the box, the doors were closed and the box was placed in a baggage car, and she was started on her journey.

Mrs. Tryon is a member of the German Plaster company, of which her husband is president, and she has lived here about two years. She hopes to regain her health in the warm climate of North Carolina.

Her method of traveling attracted a large number of persons to the railroad station.

ANNUAL SESSION

Of Council of Deliberation of the Masons

CHAS. C. HUTCHINSON PRESIDING

A List of the Officers Elected

In the Masonic temple in Boston yesterday afternoon the 37th annual session of the council of deliberation of members, illustrious Charles C. Hutchinson, of Lowell, 33d degree, commander-in-chief and deputy for this state, presiding.

Reports from the four Scottish rite lodges from which the council is constituted showed a gratifying increase in enrollment and marks of progress in all other directions.

Memorials were read for distinguished members of the council who had passed away since the last meeting. They included Percival Lowell, 33d degree, grand master of the grand lodge, A. F. & M., 1875-77; Walter L. Cutting, of Pittsfield, 33d degree, past grand commander of the grand commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island; William H. Guild of Boston, 33d degree; Albert F. Gates of Worcester, 33d degree; Charles A. Welch of Cohasset, 33d degree, grand master of the grand lodge, 1878-80. The tribute to the first named was presented by Past Grand Master Sereno D. Nickerson, who is the only survivor of those who occupied the east in grand lodge prior to 1880 and who was the immediate predecessor of Grand Master Everett.

Rev. Dr. Seward, grand minister of state and orator, delivered an address, taking for his subject "The Three Great Lights," and it was full of thoughtful sentiments, touching on a theme so important and inspiring to the fraternity.

The following is a list of officers chosen:

Illustrious Charles C. Hutchinson, of Lowell, 33d degree, commander-in-chief and deputy for Massachusetts; illustrious Edward G. Graves of East Boston, 33d degree, grand first lieutenant; illustrious Charles A. Estey of East Boston, 33d degree, grand second lieutenant; illustrious Rev. Dr. Josiah L. Seward of Alliston, 33d degree, grand minister of state and orator; illustrious Oliver A. Roberts of Melrose, 33d degree, grand prior; illustrious Addison L. Osborn of Lynn, 33d degree, grand chancellor; illustrious Daniel W. Lawrence of Medford, 33d degree, grand treasurer; illustrious Benjamin W. Rowell of Lynn, 33d degree, grand secretary; illustrious Harry C. Folger of Lowell, 33d degree, grand engineer and architect; illustrious Charles C. Hutchinson, of Lowell, 33d degree, grand host; illustrious Leon M. Abbott of Boston, 33d degree, grand master of ceremonies; illustrious Jesse E. Ames of Boston, 23d degree, grand standard bearer; illustrious William P. Wood of Pittsfield, 33d degree, grand captain of the guard; illustrious Samuel C. Lawrence of Medford, 33d degree, trustee of permanent fund for three years; illustrious Theodore H. Edmunds of Boston, 33d degree, grand sentinel.

At the close of the proceedings there was a banquet.

BOTH MURDERED

Tribesmen Believed to Have Killed Americans

MANILA, June 27.—No further word has been received from H. D. Everett of the Philippine forest service and Theodore N. Wakeley, a school teacher, reported to have been killed by hill tribesmen on the island of Negros.

Wakeley and Everett, with their servants and two native foresters, started from the town of Cabancalan, on the mountainous island of Negros, in the early part of May, intending to examine the coal deposits in the hills about Mt. Tipasi. To do this they left the beaten trail across the island, and since their departure from Cabancalan nothing has been heard of them.

Officials of the town of Rals, on the same island, now report that the party was assailed in the hills by the wild tribesmen and murdered, and moreover, they claim to know the identity of the murderers.

Beyond this statement they give no details of the tragedy.

Forester A. Hearn of Manila has started for the scene of the murder, where he will join forces with the constabulary in going over the trail and adjacent country in the hope of finding the bodies of the murdered men and tracing down and arresting the murderers.

The constabulary force on the island has already established camps along the trail to facilitate the search.

STAR THEATRE

The past week some of the finest pictures made have been exhibited, among them was seen Francesca da Rimini, a drama in the Shakespearean class and played by the best actors in the business.

The same high class drama and the clearest and liveliest of comedy will be seen next week.

Billy Sully, black-faced comedian, will be the principal vaudeville attraction. His jokes are new and funny. Two of the latest songs will be heard the first three days of the week, Babe Curry has been having great success in her singing lately and the songs have suited her perfectly.

C. C. Bell is much appreciated and his singing is always sure of a warm welcome.

The shows that are put on from week to week are superior and worth much more than the price of admission asked. There is proof of this in the fact that business continues good during these hot days.

The house is delightfully cool and refreshing at all times.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

Next week at Lakeview theatre the Adam Good company will offer a cracking good comedy drama of western life, "The Girl of Eagle Ranch," with Bessie Overton in the leading role.

A special production will be made as the play is of unusual merit and is bound to give pleasure to the patrons of this cool, commodious summer theatre. Every act will have special scenic settings and none of the little details that serve to make a complete production will be neglected. Miss Overton as "The Girl," has one of the best parts in her theatrical career, and all the members in her support will be seen in congenial roles. There will be a matinee every day except on Monday.

LAWN PARTY

HELD BY PARISH SOCIETY OF ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

A very pleasant lawn party was held Thursday night on the grounds about the residence of Mr. A. E. Moors, 181 Moore street, the affair being under the auspices of the Parish Aid society of St. John's church. The grounds were prettily decorated with Chinese and Japanese lanterns.

The attendance was large and a neat sum of money was realized. There were booths stationed about the grounds which were well patronized. The booths and attendants were as follows:

Lemonade, W. H. Choate, chairman; Geo. F. Parsons, James Crompton, O. O. Greenwood, A. E. Moors.

Cake table, Mrs. James Regan, chairman; Mrs. Chas. Ingalls, Mrs. W. S. Holt.

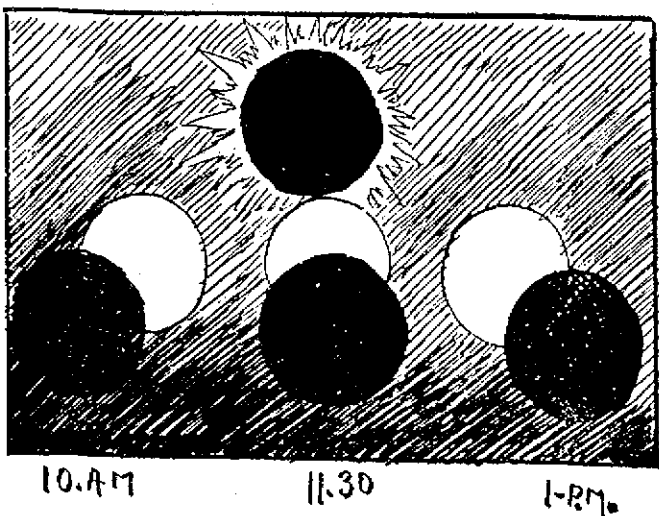

Ice cream, James Regan, Frank Pascall, Isaac B. Romaine.

Candy table, Misses H. Estelle Moore, chairman; Margaret Choate, Elizabeth Johnson, Emma Robinson, Bessie Connell, Pauline Jefferson, Grace Major.

Fortune table, Mrs. J. B. A. Johnson, chairman; Mrs. G. W. Donnell, Madam Juliette.

The success of the party was due to the careful management of the following committee: Mrs. H. L. Whitely, chairman; Mrs. W. H. Choate, Mrs. O. O. Greenwood, Mrs. G. F. Parsons, Mrs. Chas. Ingalls, Mrs. W. S. Holt, Mrs. A. E. Moors.

A hearty gurdy furnished music for the evening. Dancing on the lawn.

WORK FOR BLIND

Unique Establishment Opens in Lowell

On June 1 the Lowell Workshop for the Blind was opened at 98 Central street, and Lowell has the distinction of being the first city selected by the Massachusetts commission for the blind, in which to establish a workshop to be used exclusively for the employment of local blind men. Representatives of the commission visited the city in May, to decide upon eligible candidates for admission to the shop, and a suitable site. On June 1 the shop was opened at 98 Central street.

40 ARE KILLED

Revolutionists Made Attack on a Town

EL PASO, Tex., June 27.—A special dispatch received here says a band of Mexican revolutionists attacked the town of Los Vacas, Mexico, early yesterday and some of the revolutionists are believed to have crossed into Texas.

The Texas sheriff wired the governor asking if he could arrest any fugitives coming into the state. The governor referred the matter to the attorney general, who held that the state officers could take no action, as the matter of political fugitives coming into the United States was a question for federal authorities.

About 2000 shots were exchanged at on the blink tomorrow, and Sol's smiling visage will be temporarily enshrouded.

To Lowell sky gazers, the eclipse will be plainly visible. A dark patch will obscure the lower portion of the sun.

Down in Florida and Africa the moon will appear directly in the centre of the sun, leaving a brilliant circle of light. Experienced sun gazers will resort to the good old method of looking through a smoked glass. This should be large enough to hold before both eyes. Even astronomers confess that it beats all other apparatus to a frazzle. The glass may be smoked over a gas flame, or preferably over a lamp with the chimney removed. No one should attempt to view the phenomenon with the naked eye.

The beauty of an eclipse is the fact that all can have a look without an admission fee.

The moon comes directly between the sun and the earth obscuring for a time a portion of the sun's disc. It is a great lesson in astronomy for the young and a sight that none should miss.

RENOVATING MATTRESSES AT THE LOWELL WORKSHOP FOR THE BLIND.

needy and worthy blind men in their own community was the problem to be solved by those in charge of the commission's employment bureau work. Obviously, the opening of a shop in which trades suitable for the blind, and the securing of the practical interest and patronage of the community, were the two factors which would assure its solution. Chair-seating in its various branches with mattress and cushion renovation and making, were chosen as the initial features of the workshop.

Work has already been sent in to a degree sufficient to furnish employment to two or three men. Others are in line upon the waiting list, and their admission to the shop as wage-earners now depends solely upon a more extended patronage on the part of the citizens generally.

Upon the success of the Lowell Workshop for the Blind, as above outlined, depends, not only the permanency of the enterprise, and the employment of a larger force of workers, but the introduction a little later of one or more other trades for blind artisans. The first will probably be shoe cobbling, in preparation for which the commission is now furnishing instruction in one of its industrial classes, to a Lowell blind man.

SCORED CLEAN CUT VICTORY OVER MANTELL

NEW YORK, June 27.—Tommy Sullivan scored a clean-cut victory over Frank Mantell last night in the star bout at the Fairmount A. C. Sullivan landed any number of left jabs that had Mantell in trouble, and at the end of the fifth the latter was in very bad shape. It was only through clever holding that Mantell lasted the distance.

In the semi-windup, Harry Scroggs and Jerry Murphy of Indianapolis fought a fast six-round battle.

LOCAL MASONS

OF DE MOLAY COMMANDERY, K. T. WENT TO NARRAGANSETT PIER.

The members of De Molay commandery, Knights Templar, of Boston left with their wives yesterday for Narragansett Pier, R. I. where they will hold festivities till next Monday.

Among the special guests invited from the various commanderies there were from Pilgrim commandery of Lowell: Edward Connors, Harry C. Bartlett and Mrs. Bartlett. Arrangements have been made for a most delightful outing. They will stop at Narragansett in the New Mathewson hotel, which will open for the first time to receive the Knights Templar and their party. The Waltham band has been engaged for the occasion.

EDWARD CONNORS

WAS PRESENTED WITH A POLICEMAN'S OUTFIT.

A number of the employees of the Boston and Northern street railway car-barn gathered at the barn yesterday afternoon and presented Mr. Edward J. Connors, the popular and highly esteemed electrician of the company, who was recently appointed to the local police force, with a policeman's outfit, consisting of a revolver and holster and a pair of hand-cuffs. The presentation speech was made by the superintendent of the works. Mr. Connors responded in a fitting manner, thanking his friends for the present and assured them that it would always remain a pleasant reminder of their good wishes.

After all wished him the best of success, the assembly adjourned.

Bilious Troubles

Bile causes no end of trouble. Sick headaches, bilious attacks, jaundice, constipation and many distressing ailments arise from an excess of bile, or from obstruction of the bile duct. Inactivity, sedentary occupations and indigestion in feeding and drinking are bile blunders that need to be guarded against. When the liver is disordered the best bile correctives are because they relieve the overworked liver, and gently stimulate it when it is sluggish. These pills control the flow of bile, restore its right consistency, and work for the immediate and lasting benefit of the stomach, bowels and blood. MONTICELLO, HOME OF THOMAS JEFFERSON

FIRECRACKERS spluttering on the streets, cannons booming from hill to hill, flags waving, oratory bubbling up in every public hall and picnic ground, the great American people wildly, tumultuously lively—this is Independence day as we understand it. Different, how different, was the first Independence day, July 4, 1776, in the hushed city of Philadelphia, when a group of grave men sat in the square, somber room of the old statehouse on Chestnut street and listened to the reading of a document as momentous as it was brief. After much serious talk they rose one by one and affixed their names to the paper while the little urchin waiting without clambered panting to the bell tower overhead shouting: "Ring! Grandfather, ring!" Then the awed people without, recognizing this signal, stood about in thoughtful groups, for liberty was an untold venture, and they braved a perilous thing—the wrath of a powerful king.

The first Independence day was one of anxiety and prayer. Even the author of the daring declaration, a slim young man of thirty-three, with a florid complexion, sandy hair and gray eyes, whose name stands third in the list of Virginia's signers, may have had his own qualms, known only, of course, to the one woman in the world, a little tawny-eyed man in stately white pillared mansion overlooking miles of picturesque Virginia scenery in Albemarle county. And this woman was probably "the woman in the case," for she was the inspiration, the first and only love, of Thomas Jefferson, the author of the declaration, a woman as intellectual as she was lovely. When he married her she was a widow, but a widow of only twenty-three, without any incumbrances, and there is no doubt that the match was based on romance. When she died, after ten years of married life, her husband was inconsolable; but, unlike many inconsolable husbands, he never remarried.

To know just how a man thinks it has been said one must know just how he lives, and to gratify this curiosity in regard to the mind that evolved the republic's charter of liberty a visit should be made to Charlottesville, Va., within a few miles of which is located Monticello, the home of Thomas and Martha Skelton Jefferson. The trip from Washington by rail is but a short one, amounting to about 116 miles. Through the courtesy of the present owner of the place visitors are admitted to the house and grounds, which are kept in the same condition as they were in Jefferson's days. A drive of four miles from Charlottesville brings one to the lodge which is at the entrance to the grounds. The house is on the top of a hill, where it commands a magnificent view. The name of the estate, Monticello (meaning little mountain), was suggested by its elevation. The house stands on the very summit of the hill, half a mile from the lodge along a winding road. Trees line the drive, and the carriage must pass through a second gateway bordered by an orange hedge before the house itself is reached. It is a low, rambling structure, not unlike an Italian villa, the great portico with four white pillars being the most imposing feature of its architecture. Like so many of the old Virginia mansions, it combines admirably both comfort and elegance. It is said that Thomas Jefferson himself, who was a most ingenious person, planned the house, supervised the building and at times did not disdain to lend a hand when a workman seemed slow or lacking in proficiency. The present owner of the mansion is Mr. Jefferson M. Levy, whose uncle purchased it from James T. Barclay, who secured it from the Jefferson family when they sold it to pay the unfortunate ex-president's debts. For, alas, the author of the Declaration of Independence was not thrifty. The wife of his youth, whose co-operation would have spared him many of the financial embarrassments of later years, was taken from him early. Their daughters were brought up by strangers, and the sober caution which such a wife might have taught him in his business relations with others was sadly wanting in the sage of Monticello. So long as she lived she was his confident and adviser. The daughter of John Wayles, a wealthy lawyer who lived near Williamsburg and with whom Jefferson had business relations, her education was liberal for an age when housewifely skill was accounted more creditable to a woman than much learning. She played on the harpsichord and sang beautifully. Jefferson himself was a fine performer on the violin, and their mutual taste for music may have first inspired mutual interest. Jefferson was fond of books, and so was she. Before he met her he had begun building Monticello on the hill that had been a favorite boyhood haunt, three miles from his birthplace, Shadwell. Probably it soon occurred to him that the pretty widow would make an excellent ornament for his home. At any rate, they were married Jan. 1, 1772, and her first view of Monticello was at the end of her bridal journey, when it lay under a mantle of snow. The long ride from her home near Williamsburg to the place in the then wild and little settled part of Albemarle county was made in a storm, and they were compelled by its severity to leave the coach and finish the journey on horseback, arriving at their destination at night, when the servants had retired to bed in their quarters and the dwelling was dark and cold and cheerless. It was a discouraging homecoming for a bride, but the young couple in their quiet way made light of it and no doubt were up early in the morning, she anxious to get a better glimpse of this wonderful new mansion and he anxious to show her its many points of excellence.

It was in this house that this admirable woman passed most of the ten brief years of life with Jefferson. His devotion was ideal. They walked and talked together in the beautiful grounds when evening came, and during the day she spent long hours with him in the library, where he told her of many of his dreams and aspirations. Several children came to bless them, the girls all lovely like their mother and all but one doomed to an early death. The Revolution was a stormy time, for the British saw in the author of the declaration an enemy whose head was worth having. When the traitor Arnold at the head of his British troops approached Richmond intent on capturing Governor Jefferson a detachment of soldiers under the notorious Tar-

ton was sent to take possession of Monticello, and Mrs. Jefferson fled with her young children to the home of Colonel Cole, fourteen miles away. The place was looted of all its valuables—one of Jefferson's fads was fine horses—and thousands of dollars' worth of grain and tobacco and many negro slaves were carried off. Probably more would have been lost but for the devotion of the servants, who managed to hide many articles of value in the house. Indeed it is said that the faithful house servant Caesar voluntarily remained for eighteen hours under the porch, where he had been burying the silver on the approach of the soldiers, rather than come out and arouse suspicion as to its hiding place. No doubt the anxieties of the Revolutionary period weakened a naturally delicate constitution, for in 1783, when her last child was born, Mrs. Jefferson's health gave way and she never rallied. She died on Sept. 6, and her nine-year-old daughter Martha, a child who inherited her mother's talent, became her father's companion and comforter. Marie, then aged three or four, was remarkable for her beauty. Lucy Elizabeth, the youngest, only two years old, died in 1784. With the close of the war for Independence his country had need of Jefferson. He went to France as minister from the new republic, and there his daughters were educated. When Adams succeeded Washington as president, Jefferson was chosen vice president, and at the close of Adams' administration he was elected president and spent eight years in the White House. His daughter Martha had married Thomas Mann Randolph, Jr., her father's ward, and lived on his estate not far from Monticello, while Marie, who was the wife of her cousin John W. Eppes, occupied the homestead.

Though many a sprightly widow and many a lovely belle set her cap for the distinguished widower in the White House, he never gave a thought to any of them, though often he had need of woman's help in the executive mansion when his daughters, Mrs. Eppes and Mrs. Randolph, were unable to be with him. In 1804 Mrs. Eppes, whose constitution was as frail as that of her mother, passed away, and Monticello was again without a mistress. When in 1809 her father closed his presidential career and returned gladly to his books and the memories of his beloved dead Mrs. Randolph and her family joined the lonely old man in the mansion on the hill, and there, surrounded by his grandchildren and friends, he spent his last years studying and writing and entertaining most hospitably the guests who flocked from all parts of the country to see him. In this case hospitality proved to be his financial ruin, for he kept open house at Monticello and entertained friend and stranger alike. Such lavishness made inroads on a fortune never very ample. A friend whose note he had endorsed failed to pay it, so he was forced to make good. Then at last what was to be expected happened, and he found himself practically bankrupt. He was in debt, knew that he could not live many years longer, and his daughter, Mrs. Randolph, was poorly provided for. In order to escape his difficulties he proposed to sell Monticello by means of a lottery since to pay what it had cost him was beyond the means of most purchasers. He had imported workmen from Italy to cut the stone since there were then none in America who could do such work, and the satinwood and rosewood inlaid floors were so carefully constructed that they are today even more beautiful than when first laid. Congress frowned on this idea of an ex-president selling his home in such a manner and agreed to buy his library, but it gave him only $24,000, which was half what it had cost. Before Monticello could be sold its owner died and was laid to rest in the simple family burying ground which still may be seen upon the estate and in which repose his wife and many members of his family. After his death the estate passed out of the hands of the Jeffersons, and it is fortunate that it is today in the hands of one who honors the memory of its builder. Far in the distance as one stands at Monticello may be seen the dome of the University of Virginia, which this versatile genius founded and whose buildings he also designed. Much as the present owner of the home of Jefferson prizes it, he might possibly be induced to part with it if the estate was to be kept as a public memorial like Mount Vernon. Better than the waste of money on Fourth of July fireworks and display would be the raising of a fund to secure the home of the author of the Declaration of Independence and provide for its preservation as an inspiration for coming generations. For the Daughters of the Revolution to join hands with the Sons of the Revolution in perpetuating the memory of Martha Skelton Jefferson and her husband would be a patriotic work well worthy of public support and encouragement.

CAUGHT ON THE FLIGHT FROM JEST TO EARNEST

IT'S all telling any one how to raise either chickens or children. That goes without saying.

But still the intelligent mind can't help reflecting, and with me to reflect is to scribble it out of my system.

How I despise the "mushy," weak-minded mother, the one who goes in to ecstasies over the baby's darling "itty bitty tootsie wootsies" and allows its milk bottle to grow sour while she rocks its agonies with a "hush-a-by, baby." And the louder the kid screams with a stomach ache the louder she chants.

Or what would you think of a dotting mother who kissed her darling all the time, but had not the strength to take it out in the park?

Or the weak mother who never slaps the kid's hands for touching things, but when the untaught youngster grabs the ink bottle and decorates the carpet literally spans it until she is tired?

I've seen those things! I tell you motherhood doesn't appear sacred so often to me as it does queer. Why heaven (2) sends children to some women dear only knows, unless it is that the percentage of badly brought up and criminal men and women must be kept up in order to have variety in the world.

One of the prettiest street gowns for a blond is a dress of black satin made with lace yoke and sleeves. The bodice is sewed to a crushed girdle, which in turn is joined to a beautifully fitted circular skirt trimmed with bias folds. This is a most useful gown, and it will not spot if the right quality of material is chosen.

Linens are always sweet, but they require a good many changes and the services of an excellent laundress or a dry cleaner. Those which have striped borders are the newest, and if a woman is tall enough nothing is prettier than a double skirt effect. The remainder of the border is used to outline the kimono sleeves.

All over embroideries are being dyed in red, pink and royal blue. These make stunning walking length gowns, especially if the embroidery contains eyelets. Parasols to match are the smart thing. A bit of the material left over is utilized, and the best headgear to correspond is a broad white sailor trimmed with the same shade of flowers.

They tell me challees are to be revived, but in a new silky weave and in pale colors only.

Old shawls are at a premium. They make perfectly stunning evening coats, while as for dresses—well, two or three white, deep fringed shawls make a gown that is simply dazzling.

Stripes are going out very rapidly. They are being worked to death in ten dollar suits and cotton voile ready made frocks trimmed with cheap taffeta.

I don't believe in encouraging quarrels between married people, but a wife should cling to her pride and self respect just as much after marriage as before.

It is not right to talk all kinds of talk from your husband's dear lady, just because you promised to love, honor and obey him. He owes something to you also, and if he finds that he can say slighting things to you and treat you in a way he wouldn't have dreamed of doing before marriage he is going to think less of you, that's all, and he is going to repeat the offense.

Give in on little things and don't be obstinate about them, but if ever a subject comes up where your best interests are at stake be firm about it and don't relinquish your rights or those of your children for the sake of peace.

Dress of black satin.

"DIS AM BETTAH DAN DE FOUR O' JULY!"

You are not gaining it in that way; you are only raising a tyrant for yourself.

If you are right, stick to your guns. If you are wrong, don't refuse to give in just for the sake of winning the battle.

For the matter of that, if your husband sees you are both just and firm in matters where you have a right to be firm there will be no disputes.

And, another thing, don't run after him after marriage any more than you did before. That's where many a young woman makes a big mistake. Don't fetch and carry too much for him. Let him do his share and remember that whether married or single a man likes to be the pursuer and not the pursued.

If you have an invalid in the house and you want to coax her appetite, don't fill her plate full. Give her a very small quantity at a time, and she will soon beg for more. There is nothing that discourages one so much as huge slabs of butter, thick pieces of bread and large chunks of meat swimming in luscious gravy. Cut the ordinary piece of meat into two triangular pieces and shave the meat into tiny pieces already sprinkled with pepper and salt. Garnish the plate with a crisp tiny heart of lettuce, and you will see a pleased expression on the sick person's face.

There is nothing more tiresome than the woman you meet at some afternoon reception who continually asks you what people you know.

"Are you acquainted with the Pembroke Whites?" No? I'm surprised! They are first cousins to the Willis Smiths. Everybody knows them.

You want to Pokeness mountain last summer? Such a charming spot! Of course you met Mrs. Fitzgerald Gadabout! Her mother's sister married the Marquis of Sprout. Dear Lady Sprout! Such a charming woman! Well, perhaps they weren't there when you were.

"And Mrs. Willingby? Her sister divorced Howard Spendthrift, the cotton broker, and her other sister is the Mrs. Van Swazger you have so often heard me speak of. You don't know any of them?" Well, well!

And so it goes on.

No wonder foreigners say we have no conversation in our drawing rooms outside of personalities.

Rag carpet weaving is being revived here in New York. I have seen the most charming striped mats made out of old carpet, while solid tone green small rugs are a distinct addition to a colonial bedroom belonging to a friend. They were made out of an old flowered carpet she was heartily sick of, and the beautiful green vegetable dye was applied by the firm that did the weaving.

As a nation we are beginning to appreciate quiet, substantial carpets.

Ask you what people you know.

more and more. We have passed the stage where cheap ingrain and the glories of designers shamelessly called Louis XV. dazzle us. We admire the rich tints of oriental rugs, and, educated by these, we appreciate the honest handwork and pure dyes of grandma's rag carpets.

Farmers' wives are bringing them out of their attics and selling them to city people for handsome prices just as they sold a few years ago their blue and white pottery and their spindle backed chairs.

There seems to be a general return to all that is practical and solid in interior decoration, and I'm glad of it.

NEW AERO PARK

Secretary McKenna Has Conference With Chas. J. Glidden

John A. McKenna, secretary of the Lowell Board of Trade, went to Boston today and by appointment met Mr. Charles J. Glidden at the latter's suite in the Hotel Touraine.

Mr. McKenna had a half hour conference with Mr. Glidden during which the proposition to lay out an aero park in Lowell was discussed. Mr. Glidden explained to Mr. McKenna that Lowell is an ideal place for an aero park providing the proper quality of gas can be secured. He said that gas of too great density would be of no service for balloons.

Mr. McKenna presented a rough plan of a suitable location for the proposed park near the gasometer and Mr. Glidden said that if the arrangements for locating the park in Lowell are made he will make the first ascension in his own balloon. He said that the great argument in favor of Lowell is the fact that it is so accessible to Boston.

ENGINEER KILLED

Deliberate Attempt Was Made to Derail a Train

HAZLETON, Pa., June 27.—A Pennsylvania railroad passenger train which left Pottsville at 5.30 a. m. for Nesquehanna, Pa., was wrecked at Lofly on the mountains near here at 6.30 a. m. today and the engineer is reported to have been killed and several passengers hurt. The engineer is under the wrecked engine. The accident occurred under the tracks of the Lehigh Valley R. R. which road is used for some distance between Delancey and Hazleton.

It is believed that the wreck was the deliberate attempt to derail the train by spliking the tracks.

GREAT RECEPTION

Awaited Secretary Taft at Oyster Bay

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 27.—Secretary Taft really disappointed the people of Oyster Bay today. It was expected that he would arrive here at 12.15 p. m. and arrangements had been made to give him a rousing reception. As a fact he arrived much earlier and comparatively few people were at the station. As the secretary, accompanied by Gov. Luke Wright, stepped from the train he was surrounded by persons who desired to greet him. He chatted genially with those about him shaking hands with all within reach. Among those who greeted him were fifteen or twenty women and children. Secretary Taft and Gov. Wright were confronted with a formidable battery of photographers but they went through the ordeal without blinking. The secretary remarked to Gov. Wright that it was a part of the game that he would have to accustom himself to play. Secretary Taft and Gov. Wright were conducted to a government automobile in waiting for them and were whirled away to Sagamore Hill. It is the intention of the war secretary to leave Oyster Bay this afternoon. He will then return to Washington.

LOWELL POLICE

SAY COUPLE WERE NOT ARRESTED IN THIS CITY.

Hormadus Perrost and Victoria Roberts were arraigned in court in Manchester the other day on charges of adultery and held for the superior court. It was stated in the Manchester court that the couple had been arrested in this city on a similar charge not very long ago and the man was sentenced to jail while the woman was placed on probation, but the Lowell police have no record of such people.

OUR PARK SYSTEM

Judge Pickman Talks Enthusiastically of Its Improvement

In the course of an interview with Judge Pickman of the park commission on the subject of the work of the park department, yesterday, the judge made the following interesting statement.

There is no city in this state and perhaps I may include the whole country that offers less to the average citizen than does Lowell. All that the citizens and tax payers get is from the library and the parks. There are no swimming places, no art galleries, no lecture courses, no great playgrounds, and all they get in the way of culture comes through the library and the parks. Thousands of our citizens and their families are compelled to remain at home during vacation period because they haven't the money to take a vacation amid other scenes, and the city in my opinion should attempt to benefit them and provide for their health and morals.

Judge Pickman is an enthusiast on the subject of a more extensive park system and more playgrounds, gymnasiums and the like and he would emulate the example of Ex-Mayor Quincy of Boston in impressing upon the citizens the actual need of these improvements. Judge Pickman has made a study of Boston's great system of parks and gymnasia and talks most interestingly on the subject.

When asked for his views as to the extension of Lowell's park system, Judge Pickman said: "In the first place let us consider the subject of Monument square as it is now before the city council. Shortly after city hall

CLERKS' OUTING OUT ALL NIGHT TWO ARRESTED

Employees of the Boston Office at Lakeview

Mass. Electric Co.'s Employees Entertained

The clerks of the Boston office of the Massachusetts Electric companies, are enjoying an outing at Lakeview park this afternoon. The affair is given by the railway company and Supt. Thomas C. Lees of division two, with headquarters in this city, and the local clerks are the entertainers.

The clerks, men and women, to the number of about fifty left Boston at one o'clock on a special car and came to this city by the way of Reading, arriving here at 3.15 o'clock.

At the grounds the various points of interest and amusement places were taken in. Boating, canoeing and bowling were also enjoyed. That the company decided to do the thing up in royal style was very evident for the clerks had the run of the place, anything and everything being free. A blue tag printed in gold with a golden tassel was worn by the clerks. One side of the card bore the inscription: "Outing of Boston Office Clerks of the Massachusetts Electric Companies, at Lowell and Lakeview park, June 27, 1908. Compliments of Superintendent Division Two." On the reverse side was what tickled the clerks: "This card will be honored at the theatre, dance hall, roller coaster, bowling alley, penny arcade, flying horse, carousel, riding ball game, soda fountain, for use of canoes and row boats. In the arcade call at cashier's desk for pennies."

On the return trip will be made during the early evening, the special car returning to Boston by the way of Woburn.

JACOB SLEEPER

EXPECTED TO REACH CUBA TOMORROW.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Jacob Sleeper, secretary of legation, and Lieut. Francis Ruggles, military attaché at Caracas, will probably arrive at Guantanamo, Cuba, tomorrow. They probably will be able to arrive here next Tuesday or Wednesday. Mr. Sleeper will doubtless bring information of service to the state department. Until he arrives no further action is expected on the part of the American government although steps may be taken at any time by President Castro that will make some procedure necessary.

SYRACUSE WON

"Peab" Thought He Had Lost Outfit

A young man and woman called at the livery stable of O. W. Peabody in Warren street at midnight last night and the young man engaged a horse and carriage, stating to the night man that he would return in a short time with the outfit. The couple failed to return at eight o'clock this morning when Mr. Peabody called at the stable and the night man reported the matter. Mr. Peabody immediately notified the police that a young woman of this city, accompanied by a young man, whose name he did not know, had failed to return with the rig and asked for the police to be on the lookout for the horse and carriage.

The police failed to locate the outfit or the couple, but at noon today three boys drove up to the stable with the horse and carriage and informed Mr. Peabody that a young woman had met them on Cabot street and told them to bring the rig to the stable.

FIVE BIG CREWS

To Face at Poughkeepsie Today

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 27.—All Poughkeepsie rose with the sun today to welcome perfect weather for the intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson in which the crews of Columbia, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Syracuse were entered to compete. Weather and water conditions this morning were calculated to satisfy the most capricious coach or oarsman. Hundreds arrived here during the morning keen and eager to witness the contests. Rarely in the long history of these intercollegiate regattas has there been one in which rowing sharpers were so widely at variance in their opinions as to the outcome. The result was that Syracuse, Columbia and Pennsylvania were almost equal favorites; but the other two, Cornell and Wisconsin, were nevertheless not without their ardent followers. With every promise of weather and water conditions holding the coaches indicated that Cornell's record for the four mile contest of 15 minutes, 33 seconds, made in 1901 might be nearly approached.

Coach Courtney frankly said that Cornell's best time over the course in practice was 19 minutes, and 27 seconds and indicated that he did not believe this time was fast enough to return Cornell a winner. Pennsylvania and Syracuse are said to have made better time than this in their private dashes over the varsity course.

The first race, scheduled for 3 a. m. is for the university four oared shells over the two mile course for the Kennedy challenge trophy. Four crews are entered—Syracuse, Cornell, Columbia and Pennsylvania. The second race, scheduled for 3.45 p. m. is for freshmen eight oared shells over the same two mile course for the Stevens cup. Five crews are scheduled to start—Syracuse, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Cornell and Columbia. The university eight oared shell, the big event of the regatta, will start at 5 p. m. wind and water permitting.

Five crews, Wisconsin, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Syracuse, are entered to compete for the varsity challenge cup. This contest is over a course of four miles beginning three miles above the great steel bridge and ending a mile below.

Following Bachelor Dinner at Binghampton

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., June 27.—As a result of a bachelor dinner given in this city last night by Mackey Wells of Milwaukee, Wis., who is to wed Miss Alida Carter of New York today, Geo. M. Orr of Worcester, Mass., the groomsmen, and Person Wells of Milwaukee, were arrested last night. It is stated that after the dinner they proceeded to celebrate and a number of broken windows were found in their wake. Patrolman Clapper warned them to desist as they were about to enter an auto left standing near the curb. According to the patrolman, they made some impudent remarks and Mr. Wells was placed under arrest. Orr, it is charged, then struck the officer, freeing his companion. Two officers caught Wells and later Orr came to the police station to express his opinion of the arrest and was detained. Bail was furnished and today fines of $100 and $25 were imposed and paid.

BY OFFICERS OF CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETY.

A pretty lawn party by the officers of the Christian Endeavor of the Branch Street Free Baptist church was held at the home of A. F. Libby in Wannalaucit street, last night. The lawn was prettily lighted with Japanese lanterns and the pleasures of the evening were enhanced by orchestral music. Lemonade, ice cream and cake were disposed at tables that were well patronized. The lemonade table was in charge of Mrs. A. R. Toothacre, assisted by her Sunday school class. The ice cream and cake table was under the able management of Leon Brown and Ralph Greenleaf.

HABEAS CORPUS

Harry K. Thaw Secures New Writ From Court

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 27.—Harry Thaw has obtained a new writ of habeas corpus "returnable" before Supreme Court Justice Mills at White Plains at 10.30 Monday morning when counsel for Thaw will endeavor to secure a jury trial to pass upon his mental condition. The writ was served today on Under Sheriff Townsend in anticipation of Judge Morschauser's signing an order at 11 o'clock this forenoon recommending Thaw to Matteawan. The writ has the effect of holding Thaw here until Monday when the sheriff will be required to produce him before Judge Mills at White Plains.

The anticipation by Thaw and his counsel that Justice Morschauser would recommend the slayer of Stanford White to Matteawan proved correct. District Attorney Mack presented to the judge this forenoon the formal order of recommendation to Matteawan which Justice Morschauser promptly signed. It would have had the effect of returning Thaw to Matteawan today had not the new writ of habeas corpus been served upon Under Sheriff Townsend. Thaw will be represented in the new proceeding by Attorney Charles Morschauser, a brother of Justice Morschauser.

Thaw was delighted today with the turn affairs have taken.

"I cannot bear the thought of returning to Matteawan," said Thaw, "on account of being obliged to associate there with insane people. I would rather go to prison. I have thought all along that if I could get my case to a jury I would be able to convince twelve men of my present sanity and thereby secure my liberty. During my stay in the Poughkeepsie jail I frequently heard of Charles Morschauser as a successful trial lawyer and asked him to call on me. He told me that he could not take any action until his brother had finally disposed of my case. Now he is in charge of my interests, and will, if possible, secure for me a trial by jury."

JEROME'S VIEWS. LAKEVILLE, Conn., June 27.—District Attorney Jerome this noon said relative to the new writ of habeas corpus obtained by Harry Thaw's counsel, that he had had no definite information on the matter. Mr. Jerome said: "If the law is plain that Thaw is entitled to a jury trial on the matter of his mental condition, I do not see wherein I could oppose it. If the subject is not clearly determined I should, speaking in light of only indefinite information, certainly oppose the jury trial. I should oppose on the ground at least of objection to prolongation of the litigation."

Overseer Mosher Resigns From Boot Mills

To Take Part in Temperance Parade

Mr. C. P. Mosher, overseer of, ring spinning in the Boot mills, has severed his connection with that concern and at noon today he was made the recipient of a beautiful gold mounted briar pipe and a cigar holder of pure amber. The presentation took place in the mill. The presentation speech was by Miss Sylvia Burnham, and although taken completely by surprise, Mr. Mosher responded in words that carried with them the fullness of his appreciation. He will take a much needed rest and will then seek his fortune in the golden west.

Mr. Mosher has had the reputation of being the most popular overseer in the Boot.

YOUNG MAN AND A BOY FELL INTO RIVER.

DERBY, Conn., June 27.—Herbert Moore, aged 13 and Clarence Smith, colored, aged 8, were drowned here today. Moore with Young Smith on his shoulders was standing on a rock which is used for diving when he lost his balance, both boys falling into the river. Neither boy could swim.

POLICE BOARD

To Hear Members of Bunting Club

At the meeting of the police board to be held Tuesday night, representatives of the United States Bunting Cricket and Athletic association will appear before the body at the request of the commissioners. Commissioners Hanson and Stearns, accompanied by Supt. McLaughlin, called at the clubhouse last Sunday night and while one of the commissioners stated that no charges of violating the law would be pressed, several representatives of the club would in all probability appear before the board and be instructed as to how affairs should be conducted at the club.

Chairman Stearns is busily engaged in preparing his report of the police board, which will be included in the annual report of the police department.

BOSTON, June 27.—Some 4000 children will parade the streets of Boston tomorrow in protest against the evils of Intemperance. It is planned to have the event one of the most imposing spectacles in the history of the temperance movement in this city. The celebration will be the Sunday known as "Temperance Sunday" within the octave of St. John the Baptist, the patron saint of Catholic total abstinents. Religious services will be held at the cathedral of the Holy Cross following the parade.

CIRCUIT COURT

Grants Restraining Order Against Gaugers

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Commissioner Capers of the international revenue bureau has received information from Cincinnati, Ohio, that the New York United States circuit court had granted a restraining order to show cause why a temporary injunction should not be issued to restrain the collectors and gaugers from making the distillers' packages in accordance with regulations issued by the treasury department May 5th last.

MADE AN ASCENSION. NORTH ADAMS, June 27.—H. Morgan and J. T. Wade, both of Lowell, O., made an ascension in the balloon Sky Pilot from Aero park here today. Allan R. Hawley of New York piloted the balloon.

There was hardly a breath of air stirring, and although the balloon rode to an altitude of more than 700 feet and remained in the air for more than an hour and a half the aeronauts were barely able to get across Haverhill town.

BITTEN BY DOG

Rabbi Told That He Must Die

CLEVELAND, June 27.—Waiting calmly for the fate that his physicians say threatens him, Rabbi L. Friedman is at his home, the victim of a rabid dog.

"If God desires to call me at this time I am ready to go," the rabbi said. "I do not feel any pain and I trust the treatment will prove successful. But the doctor seems to be discouraged."

The crisis in the disease will be reached perhaps tomorrow. The physicians refuse to make a hopeful forecast.

Rabbi Friedman is 64 years of age and has retired as an active pastor.

RECOUNT OVER

MAYOR McCLELLAN'S PLURALITY FIXED AT 2855.

NEW YORK, June 27.—With the recount of ballots in the contested mayoralty election of 1905 practically completed yesterday, Mayor McClellan's plurality over W. R. Hearst stands 2855. The count of the election inspectors gave him 3334.

Counsel for Hearst announced yesterday that he will present in court Monday his evidence to support his allegations of stuffing of the ballot boxes.

THREE ARRESTED

MEN CHARGED WITH BREAKS AT PEPPERELL.

NASHUA, N. H., June 27.—The Nashua police yesterday arrested Arthur Merchant, Delore Merchant and Louis Caron for the Pepperell, Mass. police on a charge of being connected with a series of robberies that occurred in Pepperell last Saturday night, when three stores were broken into. Pepperell is but 14 miles from Nashua, and the Nashua police were warned immediately upon the discovery of the breaks to be on the lookout for suspects. The three arrested formerly worked in the paper mills in Pepperell, but have recently been employed here.

Each pleaded not guilty on warrants charging burglary.

STORY OF BATTLE

Between Mexicans and Revolutionists

EL PASO, Tex., June 27.—In an encounter between revolutionists and troops of the Mexican government at the town of Las Vacas in Coahuila, Mexico, near the border across from Del Rio, Texas, early yesterday between 50 and 50 were killed and the commandant of the Mexican troops was badly injured according to a despatch received here last night.

The story of the battle is as follows:

The quarters of the Mexican officers and barracks were fired upon by the attacking band and the assault centered on the federal customs house. Forty troops were finally assembled. In the disorder following the initial attack upon the barracks and the discovery that the quarters of the soldiers were burning, the revolutionists captured about 60 horses belonging to the Mexicans. At the custom house the troops made a determined stand and the fighting lasted all morning without intermission. It is said that five thousand shots were exchanged. The revolutionists cut all telephone and telegraph wires leading to Las Vacas and thus prevented the besieged town sending for reinforcements.

After heavy firing until about noon the attacking party was repulsed and communication was established out of Las Vacas.

Troops were rushed to the place and were expected to arrive here late last night but advices from Del Rio say that a second outbreak was feared before the arrival of assistance.

The sheriff of Valverde county, this state, telegraphed Gov. Campbell of Texas that the revolutionists had been repulsed and that a number of them were fleeing to the United States.

The county officials asked the governor if he could apprehend the fugitives for violation of the neutrality laws.

Under advices from the attorney general Gov. Campbell advised the sheriff that the federal authorities alone had jurisdiction and instructed him to keep hands off.

OFFICIALS SILENT.

CITY OF MEXICO, June 27.—Repeated efforts to obtain official confirmation of the attack on the border town of Las Vacas by bandits have failed with failure.

The office of the secretary of the interior has remained closed during the night and at the residence of Minister Corral, no visitors are being received.

The secretary of the interior refused a statement regarding the affair. Despatches from various points in northern Mexico show this section to be in a state of ferment. During all of last night armed men, many of the (thousand) Americans, occupied the roofs of the Banco de las Naciones and the Banco de London and Mexico.

The despatches still characterize the raiders as bandits, but it is believed here that they are half criminal aggregations of political malcontents whose main purpose is to loot under the guise of insurrection.

The government says that the raiders do not number more than 50 armed men, but other reports place their total number as larger.

The railroad in Coahuila, injured by the bandits, has been repaired and the trains are now carrying troops to that region. Troops have arrived in the city of Torreon and will spread over the northern country to form a network for the capture of the marauders. Reports of impending trouble in the state of Nuevo Leon cannot be confirmed at this time.

KETCHUP GAME POSTPONED.

The game scheduled between the Ketchup club of the Navy Yard and the sanctuary choir team of St. Patrick's parish, to be played at Spaulding park this afternoon, was cancelled last night, because the grounds were not available.

The two teams will lineup for the game in the course of two weeks or more.

The old time rivals of the Sanctuary choir team, the Immaculate Conception church team, of Lawrence, will be seen here in a short time. It will be remembered that it was this team that took the championship of the Merrimack Valley, two years ago from the choir team, negotiations are under way.

THE DEFENDERS

Kept Up by the Artillery Commands

BOSTON, June 27.—Warming to the fray the members of the state militia and regular coast artillery corps stationed on the several forts on Boston harbor as the defending force in the simulated warfare now in progress today redoubled their efforts to prevent a landing by the naval fleet which is manoeuvring about looking for an opportunity to score. The first and second artillery commands continued practice with the guns today although all the batteries did not use the regulation service charges. Observation officers were stationed at the guns to take note of the result of the gunners' efforts at vessel tracking by sights and the batteries instructed in the proper movements for overcoming possible vessels seeking to land attacking parties.

The shooting at Fort Heath which is occupied by Boston and Fall River companies has been considered specially commendable thus far, the 18 shots with service charges having resulted in a percentage of eighty in hits.

RYAN WILL DIE

Was Found on Ledges at Waterville

WATERVILLE, Me., June 27.—John Ryan, a wanderer, was found on the bottom ledges at Titicoca falls yesterday afternoon with bad wounds upon head and face. Just how he came to be there is unknown.

Whether he went to sleep on the bank in the rear of the Lockwood coal pokers on the Winslow side of the river, and in his sleep rolled over the upper ledge, or whether he was pushed or thrown by others, is a matter of conjecture.

Ryan with 20 others were driven over into Winslow yesterday morning by City Marshal Ferrington and his officers. Several men who were lying about the top of the ledge in a more or less intoxicated condition were taken to the Winslow police station by the town constable, assisted by the police of this city.

Ryan's skull is fractured, the scalp is torn from the forehead, the nose is crushed and the cheeks are terribly lacerated.

INJURIES FATAL

MALDEN WOMAN VICTIM OF NEWPORT ACCIDENT.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 27.—Mrs. Henry Winn of Malden, Mass., who figured in the overturning of a trolley while on a pleasure excursion here yesterday in connection with the convention of the general federation of women's clubs in Boston, died early today from the fractures received in the accident, without recovering consciousness. The death of Mrs. Winn made the second death among the ranks of the club women as a result of their visit to this city. Mrs. Sarah Shute of Coon Rapids, Ia., having died yesterday also from heart disease.

Mrs. Bennett F. Davenport of Watertown, Mass., and Mrs. Helen C. Sundown of Lincoln, Neb., the only others whose injuries were considered so serious that it was thought dangerous to remove them to Boston, were reported at the Newport hospital this morning to have passed as comfortable a night as might be expected and to be in a condition which gave them much chance for recovery.

BOSTON, June 27.—The nine automobiles which arrived in this city last night from Portsmouth, N. H., on the tour promoted by the Automobile club of America left the Hotel Brunswick early this forenoon with Waterbury, Conn., as the destination of their day's run. Thus far the trip has brought the tourists through the Berkshires, the White mountains, Poland Springs and Portsmouth, N. H., and on their arrival at Waterbury they will be prepared to cover the last leg of the run to New York where they are expected to finish the tour on Sunday.

6 O'CLOCK BUTLER ARRESTED

Charged With Stabbing Prominent French Banker

PARIS, June 27.—The arrest in this city yesterday of the butler Renard, charged with complicity in the murder of Auguste Remy, a wealthy retired banker who has stabbed to death June 6 in his home in Paris has revealed the existence of an astounding state of affairs in the banker's household prior to the assassination.

The banker's nephew, named Rango, after a severe examination, told the magistrate that Renard had killed his uncle. Then breaking down completely, Rango explained that after years of service in his uncle's house, Renard had become completely master of the household, gaining ascendancy over the banker's wife to such a point that the keys to her money and jewel boxes were always in his possession. Continuing his revelation he then confessed that he and Renard had had relations similar to those which the recent so-called "Round Table" scandals in Germany.

M. Remy often complained of Renard's growing domination in his household but his wife defended the butler. The climax came the day before the assassination when the banker discovered his nephew and Renard together. He then informed his wife that he would no longer endure the situation and that he intended to send his nephew to a disciplinary school and that he was going to discharge the butler.

High words followed this announcement; Madame Remy refused to believe the stories told her and finally, it seems, with her maid she left the house. That same night, Rango has been charged with the murder of his uncle, Auguste Remy, who was stabbed to death June 6 in his home in Paris. The butler arranged the house and dining room in such a manner as to give support to the theory that the crime had been committed by burglars.

Another arrest in the case is expected momentarily.

HARVARD CREW SHAN'S FRIENDS

Said to Have Won A Victory

LONDON, June 27.—There is little prospect of the Harvard varsity eight that vanquished Yale at New London getting a race in England this year. The Harvard crew cannot row in the annual Henley regatta as the stewards have decided not to accept foreign crews to complete in the regatta of 1908 and they are too late to enter for the Olympic regatta to be held July 29, the entries for which closed June 1.

An exception has been made in the case of some of the crews, for example Canada and a few Continental countries, have until June 30 to enter for the Olympics but it was decided that the names of the American and some other crews must be in the hands of the secretary of the Olympic association not later than June 1.

When shown a despatch from New Haven saying that the Harvard crew was to sail next week with the idea of rowing here on July 28, the secretary of the British association said: "I am afraid there is some misapprehension. We have not received their entry and as the time expires June 1, I am certain the association would not accept the entry should it come this late."

James E. Sullivan, the American secretary of the association, is of the same opinion. "The only hope of Harvard getting a race in England this year," Mr. Sullivan said, "is with one of the English universities, preferably Cambridge, who defeated Oxford. I tried hard to get the Olympic association to give us until June 30 to get in American entries but I was refused. We could not enter June 1, as we could not pick our crews until after the big races. If this time had been extended by one month we would have had a crew in the Olympic regatta."

Mr. Stuart, the Cambridge stroke, when questioned today regarding Harvard's coming here, said: "I know nothing of Harvard being invited to row." Mr. Stuart last year objected to racing with Harvard on the ground that the English oarsmen did not care to extend their period of training, which now covers over six months beginning early in the year, for the university race and not concluding until after Henley. Mr. Stuart will stroke a crew at Henley early in July and he will also stroke an English crew at the Olympic regatta.

Stole Them Passed Away

Michael Finnegan, better known as "Mike Finnegan," who aspires to be an actor, but who has made a bigger hit on the witness stand in police court than in treading the stage, is in the toils again.

While Patrolman George Palmer was on his beat about 5:30 o'clock this morning he espied Mike carrying an armful of pinks. The officer questioned Mike and when the latter could not give a good account of himself he was placed under arrest. In court this morning Finnegan pleaded not guilty to a complaint charging him with the larceny of 200 pinks, valued at one cent each from some person unknown.

Patrolman Palmer testified that he met Finnegan this morning with an armful of pinks. Witness asked him where he got them and he said he purchased them from a man in Dracut.

"Do you want to ask any questions?" asked Deputy Welch.

"I do," said Finnegan.

Addressing the witness, Finnegan said: "Didn't I tell you I paid for them?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, that's all the question I desire to ask you."

Deputy Welch testified that Finnegan said he purchased the pinks from two Frenchmen in Collinsville, but when the deputy said he would send a couple of officers to visit the men from whom he purchased the pinks, the prisoner said the officers could not find the place anyway.

Finnegan was then called to the stand and testified as follows: "Well, Your Honor, you see times are very hard and I've had some hard luck and it is difficult to find work, you know, and I thought I would buy some flowers and sell them. I never stole those flowers. I think a great deal of my mother, who has been blind for 15 years, and that is all I've got to say."

Finnegan said he would not go out with an officer to the man from whom he purchased the flowers, but he said he would tell the court what he would do and that was that he would go out himself and see the man and get a note saying that the flowers had been paid for. The court, however, would not agree to that.

Finnegan said: "I don't care for myself, it is my mother I am thinking of. I don't care about being away from her."

"Did you see your mother much during the months of January and February?" asked Deputy Welch.

"Yes, I did."

"Where't you in jail?"

"Now, that's a different subject. That pompadour haircut of yours is getting too big."

The case was continued till Monday morning.

BRYAN WILLING

That Sullivan Should Be Running Mate

OMAHA, Neb., June 27.—A special to the Bee from Des Moines, Ia., says: Hon. Jerry B. Sullivan today received a letter from W. J. Bryan saying that the suggestion of Mr. Sullivan for vice president on the democratic ticket met with his approval; that he knew of no reason why Mr. Sullivan should not be named for vice president and knew that he was eminently fitted for the position. He assures Mr. Sullivan that if his ambition runs in that direction he will be glad to add his name to the available list. Mr. Sullivan will second the nomination of Bryan at the democratic convention at Denver, having been selected for that honor by Mr. Bryan himself.

FIRE ALARM

FROM BOX 131 ON SO. CANTON STREET.

The alarm from box 131 at 1:47 this forenoon was for a fire in an ash barrel in South Canton street. The only damage was the loss of the barrel.

A reporter for The Sun was at the Gorham street engine house when the alarm sounded from box 131 and so quick were the movements of the firemen that one team was in the street before the full number was in. The Gorham street house answers to numbers 13 and 13 and when the first "T" struck it was all off for that house and the team was returned to the fire house. It was a quick movement on the part of the firemen, something that is very rare.

ACCUSED JURY

MISCONDUCT IS THE CHARGE AGAINST THEM.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 27.—Misconduct of the jury after the case was submitted to it, amounting to a barter of the liberty of Frederick Hyde and Joest H. Schneider of San Francisco to affect an agreement upon a verdict, is alleged by Hyde and Schneider, recently convicted of conspiracy to defraud the government of public lands. This supplemental reason made public in the criminal court today charges that the verdict was the result of an agreement among the jurors that if some of their number who held a different view would agree to convict the two men other jurors would vote to acquit Benson and Diamond.

GUilty OF LARCENY BURNED TO DEATH

Alfred St. Dennis Sent to Jail for Ten Months

Alfred St. Dennis, well known to the police, was arrested this morning by Inspector John Walsh on warrants charging him with larceny. When arraigned in court he was charged with being drunk, also for the larceny of a clock, a coat and pair of pants, also the larceny of George Pegalus, also the larceny of two coats, a pair of pants and vest, the property of Nicholas Metropoulos.

St. Dennis pleaded guilty to all three complaints. He was sentenced to five months on each of the larceny charges and the case of drunkenness was placed on file.

St. Dennis has been before the court on ten different occasions and on five of those the charges against him were larceny.

HELD IN 400. Benjamin Randlett, aged 24 years, was arrested yesterday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock on a charge of drunkenness, assault and battery on Mary F. Burdard, aged ten years. The mother of the girl had the warrant issued and the arrest was made by Patrolman Peter Cawley. In court this morning Randlett pleaded guilty to being drunk, and not guilty to assault. The government asked for a continuance till Tuesday morning and it was granted. Randlett being held under $50 bonds.

PLACED ON PROBATION. Arthur Dufresne was charged with the larceny of food valued at $10. It seems that Dufresne had been boarding at the Quincy House in Lee street and jumped his board bill. He was placed on probation providing he paid the $10 within six weeks.

THE DRUNKS. The case of Michael Sullivan, charged with drunkenness and assault and battery, was continued till July 6.

Albany Perry, a third offender, was sent to the state farm.

Michael F. Sexton made his third appearance and he will spend the next four months in jail.

John J. Leary received a suspended sentence of four months in jail.

Joseph Quinn and John J. O'Hare, second offenders, were fined $5 each.

Seven first offenders were fined $2 each.

BAILEY FAMILY QUINN IS GUILTY

Held Reunion at Amesbury Yesterday

Convicted of Assaulting Martin Calnin

AMESBURY, June 26.—The Bailey family of the United States met here yesterday, 200 strong in its 15th annual reunion. The business session was held at the Union Congregational church, which is not far from the house in which John Bailey, the founder of the family, lived, when he settled in Amesbury in 1635.

Representatives were present from nearly every state in the Union. In the absence of President Nathan O. Bailey of Providence, the Hon. Hollis Bailey of Cambridge presided. At noon, dinner was served by the ladies of the church. The afternoon was spent in making short pilgrimages to the home of John Bailey, Bailey's hill, and Galloway, the first cemetery in Amesbury, where the founder of the family is buried.

Officers elected today were: President, the Hon. Charles O. Bailey, Newbury; vice-presidents, John A. Bailey of Lowell, J. W. Bailey of Somerville, Horace W. Bailey of Newbury, Vt., Solon W. THE LATTER'S LEG WAS BROKEN

And He Was Confined to Hospital

Michael J. Quinn was arraigned in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with assaulting Martin Calnin in Middlesex street on May 22. It was alleged that Quinn pushed Calnin into the road and the latter in falling broke his leg. The case has been continued time and time again because of Calnin being confined to the hospital.

Martin Calnin, the complainant, said he had known Quinn for some time. He met Quinn on Middlesex street on the morning of the 22d of May and they went into a saloon and had a couple of drinks. Quinn then invited Calnin to go to his boarding house on the Hamilton corporation but Calnin refused whereupon, he says, Quinn struck and pushed him off the curb into the street breaking his leg. Calnin said he had been confined to the hospital for four weeks.

A Mr. Davis testified to seeing Quinn strike Calnin.

Inspector Walsh said he arrested Quinn in Central street shortly after the occurrence.

Michael J. Quinn, the defendant, said he met Calnin in Donnelly's saloon in Middlesex street on the day of the alleged assault. He left the saloon and Calnin followed him. Calnin called him a vile name which he resented and struck him a slight blow. He said Calnin was intoxicated, and as a result Calnin fell into the street.

The court found Quinn guilty and continued the case till the 16th of July. In the meantime it is expected that Calnin and Quinn will meet and make a settlement.

SURPRISE PARTY

MRS. ELLA MULLIGAN PRESENTED WITH BRACELET.

That Miss Ella Mulligan is held in high esteem by her many friends was shown by the large gathering which assembled at her home in Richmond street last evening. The feature of the evening was the presentation of a beautiful bracelet, Mr. William Duffy making the presentation speech. Although overcome with surprise, Miss Mulligan accepted the gift, responding emotionally, thanking all for their thoughtful consideration of her. During the evening there were piano selections by the following: Miss Jose O'Connor, Miss Margaret Box and Prof. William Fraser. All the latest songs were rendered, the solos being sustained by the following: Misses Jose O'Connor, Sadie Kenney, Anna Lawcannon and Kathryn Masterson. Mr. Lionel Loupret made a decided hit with his song, "Everybody Looks Good to Me Now," having composed it himself. Mr. Peter Mulligan sang "What Shall We Have for Supper, Beans?" beautifully, receiving many encores.

Thomas McAndrews, William Duffy, Frank Chabrait and Harry Lapple (belong to the Agony quartet) helped entertain with their selections. Marie Jacques played the entire party with her brilliant solos and clog dancing.

Joseph Henry and John Downs gave an excellent exhibition of acting in "The Grab Bag, or That Walk to Christian Hill." The Sagamore quartet also sang several of the latest songs. The party broke up at a late hour, all having enjoyed themselves immensely, singing an ode written especially for the affair entitled "The Boys and Girls of Hibernia."

BODY FOUND

IDENTIFIED AS THAT OF PRIVATE RUSSELL.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., June 27.—The only tragedy of the camp came to light yesterday when the body of Private William Russell, Company K, Twenty-fourth Infantry, was found floating in the Sagamore, about two miles from camp.

The body was in such a state of decomposition that Coroner Pierce, who went from here and viewed it last night, did not decide whether the death had been violent. There was a mark behind the left ear and one over the left eye. The skull was not fractured.

BUILDING PERMITS. The only permits granted at the office of the inspector of lands and buildings since the last were published was one to William R. Campbell to make alterations in the building, 1 to 37 Gorham street.

THREE CHILDREN LOST

Their Lives

CLEVELAND, O., June 27.—Three children were burned to death last night, when fire destroyed the home of William Kilmacks.

The dead are: Arthur Kilmacks, aged 5; Walter Kilmacks, aged 4; Ida Kilmacks, aged 2.

The injured are: William Kilmacks, father, hands, face and back burned, condition critical; Mrs. Anna C. Kilmacks, mother, badly burned; Mrs. Mary Elman, injured by jumping.

The fire started in the upper portion of the house from an unknown cause. The father made a desperate effort to rescue the family but failed to get at his children.

HEART FAILURE

CAUSED DEATH OF DELEGATE TO WOMEN'S CLUB CONVENTION.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 27.—Mrs. Sarah Shulte of Coon Rapids, Iowa, who came east as a delegate to the General Federation of Women's clubs in Boston, died last night of heart failure at the Newport hospital. Mrs. Shulte, and her daughter, Miss Sarah Shulte, joined the excursion of delegates to Newport yesterday, coming from Boston by way of Providence and thence by the steamer Mount Hope to this city. Mrs. Shulte was taken ill on the steamer.

BUFFALO BILL

RETURNS AFTER FOUR YEARS OF TRIUMPHANT SUCCESS ABROAD.

The announcement is made that Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders of the World will visit this city on July 3, coming direct from its opening engagement at Madison Square Garden, New York, where it succeeded in convincing the newspapers and public of its increased magnitude and historical merit.

Col. Wm. F. Cody ("Buffalo Bill") has been abroad for the past four years and in that time has shown to the nations of Europe his animated scenes in the early history of his native land. As a universal educator along lines which tell of the conquest of the great west there can be no equal for Buffalo Bill's remarkable exhibition.

His entertainment depicts actual scenes in the reclaiming of vast acres to the uses of civilization; his congress of rough riders demonstrates the usefulness of the horse as a factor in colonizing the boundless plains and throughout the entire entertainment the enthusiasm is expressed more vividly than through any back with the huculean task which confronted the pioneer and plainsman in his task of subduing the redman.

Special features for the present tour of the Wild West include "The Battle of Summit Springs" and "The Great Train Hold-up," both of which are essentially suited to Buffalo Bill's exhibit showing, as they do, two widely varying incidents in the development of the western wilds. Both productions are set in appropriate surroundings and in each instance the care and attention to detail both in the matter of scenery and the persons engaged in the productions have been carefully and historically considered.

"The Battle of Summit Springs" is a reproduction of one of the most thrilling and decisive conflicts known in the annals of Indian warfare, and shows Buffalo Bill and his surroundings in which he achieved one of the most noteworthy triumphs in his long career as an Indian fighter, scout, guide and plainsman. It was in this battle that "Buffalo Bill" was numbered among the merciless redmen who fell before the unerring aim of Col. Cody, and it was his scouting and guiding which directed Gen. E. A. Carr and his cavalry to the scene of his victory.

"The Great Train Hold-up" depicts a scene as typically western as the battle with the Indians, although in the train holding scene only white men are participating either as outlaws or as the pursuing and avenging "bandit-hunters of the Union Pacific."

A HOUSE DIVIDED AGAINST ITSELF. Omaha World Herald: A house divided against itself cannot stand. Taft and Sherman, the timid reformer and the stubborn reactionary on the same ticket.

Temporary Chairman Burrows snubbing Roosevelt and permanent Chairman Lodge glorifying him in the same convention.

Publicity of campaign contributions reported, although previously demanded in the president's message and incorporated in the Crumpacker bill, when it passed the house a month ago.

Roosevelt savings banks endorsed in the platform, although killed by republican leaders at the session of congress just closed.

A declaration for tariff revision within four weeks after a republican congress has assumed office.

A pretended declaration against government by force in the platform, and a candidate who invested government by injunction standing on the platform.

An endorsement of Roosevelt for his progressive policy and a platform from which progressive planks are excluded by an overwhelming vote.

Such are some of the evidences that the republican party in the three or four years since its election from its national convention at Chicago from a national platform, patched up its tattered old platform, and a couple of new planks.

WORKED OVERTIME

But Lowell Pulled Off the Victory

Greenwell Pitched a Steady Game and Howard and Vandergriff Made Timely Hits—A Lively, Scrappy Game

Lowell and Fall River played ball at Washington park yesterday and it was quite noticeable that the attendance was much smaller than at any other game during the week, the recent defeats evidently having affected the attendance.

Unlucky, the Haverhill shortstop, was in uniform this afternoon, but it is doubtful if he will be signed by Lowell as he will have to quit playing the first of August in order to go west where he has a position in a hospital.

Umpire Joseph O'Brien called the game at 3:15 o'clock.

FIRST INNING.

Fall River scored two runs in the first inning, but the best that Lowell could do was to send one man over the plate. Messenger was the first man up for the visitors and he hit to Shannon and was out at first. Kane drew a free pass. Austin sent a grounder which Wolfe allowed to go by him and Kane scored. Toomey flied to Howard, the latter making a beautiful one-hand catch near the trees in deep center field. Austin went to third on the put out. A wild pitch scored Austin. Thorndell hit through Wolfe, the latter making his second error. Connor closed the inning with a fly to Zinsar.

In the latter half of the inning Shannon drew a base on balls and went to second on Zinsar's sacrifice. Magee hit to Donovan and was out at first. Howard singled to right field scoring Shannon. Howard tried to steal second and was thrown out.

Score—Fall River 2, Lowell 1.

SECOND INNING.

Neither side scored in the second inning. Donovan opened with a single and went to second on Norris' sacrifice. Gilroy hit to Wolfe and was out at first. Donovan going to third, but the latter died there for Messenger hit to Wolfe and was out at first.

In Lowell's half Duff was hit by a pitched ball and went to second on Wolfe's sacrifice. Vandergriff flied out to Donovan. Ainsmith drew a base on balls and Greenwell hit to Donovan forcing Ainsmith at second.

Score—Fall River 2, Lowell 1.

THIRD INNING.

Neither side scored in the third inning. Kane opened with a fly to Duff. Austin flied to Howard and Toomey hit to Shannon and was out at first. Shannon flied to Thorndell and Zinsar hit to Donovan and was out at first. Magee hit to right field for a single, but in trying to make two bases was thrown out.

Score—Fall River 2, Lowell 1.

FOURTH INNING.

The fourth inning opened with Thorndell hitting Vandergriff and going out at first, while Connor and Donovan flied out to Howard. Lowell tied the score in the latter half of the fourth inning. Howard opened with a base on balls and went to second on Duff's sacrifice. Wolfe sent the ball to center field for a single and Howard scored. Vandergriff singled to right field. At this point Capt. Connor of the visiting team wanted to bench Gilroy and put in another pitcher, but wanted to delay the game in order to give another pitcher time to warm up. The umpire refused to agree to this whereupon Connor ripped the ball. The umpire put another ball in play and Gilroy continued to pitch. Ainsmith drew a base on balls, filling the bases. Greenwell flied out to Thorndell and Shannon flied to Austin.

Score—Lowell 2, Fall River 2.

FIFTH INNING.

In the fifth inning Norris struck out and Cooney who took Gilroy's place hit to Shannon and was out at first. Messenger drew a base on balls, but was caught while trying to steal second.

Score—Lowell 2, Fall River 2.

SIXTH INNING.

With three men on base and none out in the sixth inning Lowell pulled out of a very bad box. Kane opened with a base on balls. Austin bunted where it was almost impossible to get the ball and Toomey hit to Vandergriff, but the latter instead of running to third and forcing Kane, tried to tag him and make a double play, the result being that he failed to tag the runner and bases were filled. Thorndell struck at Connor hit a red hot line drive which Greenwell knocked down and throwing to the plate nailed Kane. Donovan hit to short center field, Wolfe catching the ball.

Duff hit to Donovan and was out at first. Wolfe got hit by a pitched ball and walked to first. Vandergriff singled. Ainsmith hit to Connor forcing Vandergriff at second. Ainsmith stole second, but Greenwell hit to Thorndell and was out at first.

Score—Lowell 2, Fall River 2.

SEVENTH INNING.

In the seventh inning Norris flied to Magee and Cooney flied out to Howard. Messenger drew a base on balls and Kane then hit to left field. Messenger tried to make third on the play and the ball was sent to Vandergriff but Messenger slid in and was safe. The ball was then sent to second and Kane was nailed.

In this inning Manager O'Brien of the Fall River team and Umpire O'Brien got into an argument and O'Brien ordered O'Brien off the grounds.

In the latter half of the inning Shannon drew a base on balls, but was thrown out trying to steal second. Zinsar hit to Donovan and was out at first. Magee hit to Connor and was out at first. Magee hit to Connor and was out at first.

Score—Lowell 2, Fall River 2.

EIGHTH INNING.

Austin hit the ball to right field but Zinsar flied the ball quickly and threw him out at first. Toomey drew a base on balls. Thorndell flied out to Howard and the latter sent the ball to first to get Toomey, but Duff instead of tagging the base tried to tag the runner and Toomey slid back to the base and was safe. Connor got a single. Donovan flied out to Wolfe.

Howard struck out. Duff did likewise. Wolfe flied out to Kane.

Score—Lowell 2, Fall River 2.

NINTH INNING.

Norris flied out to Wolfe. Cooney got a single which almost knocked Vandergriff over. Messenger flied out to Wolfe. Cooney tried to steal second and was thrown out by Ainsmith. Vandergriff hit to Thorndell and was out at first. Ainsmith hit to Donovan and was out at first. Greenwell got a base on balls. Shannon hit a fly to Messenger who was so sure of it that he dropped it. Greenwell went to second on the play. Zinsar flied out to Thorndell.

Score—Lowell 2, Fall River 2.

TENTH INNING.

Kane bunted to Vandergriff and was out at first. Austin hit a high line drive to Shannon who caught it and there were two out. Toomey got a single to right field. Thorndell hit to Shannon, forcing Toomey at second. Magee flied out to Norris. Howard hit to right field for a single, sending Howard to second. Wolfe hit one too hard for Donovan to handle, filling the bases. Vandergriff got a single, scoring Howard.

DIAMOND NOTES

Fall River once more.

Rivard and Manager Sharrott had a mix-up during the game and Sharrott ordered Rivard off the bench. Napoleon refused and Sharrott called a police officer whereupon he went. Later he was suspended and fined $10.

The meeting of the O'Briens, umpire and manager, was brief and to the point.

Paddy Duff and Vandergriff made two very amateurish plays yesterday and both lost on them. In Duff's case with a runner on first the batter flied out to Howard who threw back to first beautifully. All Duff had to do was to put his foot on the bag and the double play was completed. But instead of that he waited for the runner and attempted to tag him out and the latter made a "get away" slide and Paddy tagged the empty air. Vandergriff's case was on a force out at third. He got the ball ahead of the runner and instead of making the base he went for the runner who slid under him.

Greenwell knocked down a hot liner with the bare hand yesterday that only few pitchers would tackle. The play shut out a run.

THE AVERAGES

Of the High School League Players

In the high school league race just closed Joe Fern of the Lawrence high team led at the bat with the remarkably high average of .419. Rowley Vaughn of Haverhill was a close second with .405. Brickett of Haverhill easily earned the slugging honors of the league for exactly six of his 11 hits were for extra bases.

four being doubles and two triples. In base running Foye of Lowell and Parthum of Lawrence are tied and here also Vaughn is a close second. A glance at the team batting and field averages offered below will show that all three schools were evenly matched and that Lowell was mighty lucky to get off with initial honors as easily as she did. While the fielding averages of the teams are omitted, the representative team of the league would show up like this: Catch, Foye; Lowell; pitcher, Yule; Lawrence; first base, Ferrin; Lawrence; second base, Vaughn; Haverhill; shortstop, McVey; Lowell; third base, Stephens; Lowell; left field, Elward; Lawrence; center field, Parker; Lowell and right field, Brickett, Haverhill. AUTOMOBILE NEWS

The steady betterment of local ordinances regulating the use of motor vehicles in cities throughout the eastern states is shown by the recent action of the borough council of Media, Pa. Hereafter automobilists will be permitted to drive their cars through that place at the rate of ten miles an hour along the streets and at seven miles an hour when rounding corners.

M. H. Franklin, treasurer of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers, has decided to go into this year's Glidden tour, though he had abstained from going into the affair in any previous year. His reason for not entering former Glidden tours is in brief as follows:

"This is the first time in the history of the Glidden tour that the Franklin car has been represented, the reason heretofore given being that the Glidden tour, while no doubt allowing contestants an opportunity to demonstrate some of the good points of their machines, did not in any great extent prevent the less able cars from qualifying in a manner which would cause it to appear that they were equal to their more worthy competitors. In short, it has up to this time been looked upon as more of a tour than a reliability contest, this however is not true of the coming event, which on account of the penalization system is more severe and proves better the points claimed for the entrant's car."

Mr. Franklin received Nos. 12 and Nos. 13 and 14 were assigned to John Wilkinson and G. H. Stillwell, who also entered. Franklins, all three cars being entered as a team to represent the Automobile club of Syracuse. F. A. Barton has entered a Franklin runabout as a contestant for the Hower trophy.

CLEVELAND BURIED

Brief and Simple Was Service Over Body of Former President

Body Lowered Into the Grave as Sun Was Sinking in the West—Strong Guard of Soldiers to Protect Pres. Roosevelt—Four Clergymen Assisted at the Services

PRINCETON, N. J., June 27.—Grover Cleveland's body lies buried in the Cleveland plot in Princeton cemetery.

At 5 o'clock, just as the sun was sinking in the west, a distinguished company silently watched as the body was lowered into the grave. Then the simple burial service of the Presbyterian church was read, and before the last of the carriages in the cortege had driven up to the path leading to the burial place the benediction had been pronounced and the members of the family, President Roosevelt and others who had gathered about the grave, were leaving the cemetery. Many of the personal friends of the dead statesman lingered about the spot which was to mark his last resting place and each in turn was permitted to cast a shovelful of earth into the grave.

OF SIMPLEST CHARACTER.
Agreeable to the wishes of Mrs. Cleveland, the services both at the house and at the cemetery were of the simplest character. An invocation, scriptural reading, a brief prayer and the reading of Wordsworth's poem, "Character of the Happy Warrior," constituted the services at the house, while the reading of the burial service at the grave was brief and impressive.

Although the funeral was of a strictly private nature, those in attendance numbered many distinguished citizens, including President Roosevelt, Gov. Fort of New Jersey, Gov. Hughes of New York, Gov. Hoke Smith of Georgia, a member of President Cleveland's cabinet, officials of the Equitable life assurance society, members of the Princeton university, faculty, friends and neighbors.

Mr. Cleveland was buried with all the simplicity and privacy that he himself desired.

CLEAR THE COMPLEXION OVER NIGHT

Pimples, Rash, Eruptions, Etc., Quickly Eradicated by New Skin Remedy.

Since its discovery one year ago, posium, the new skin remedy, has, in its extraordinary accomplishments, exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the eminent specialist who gave it to the world. It has cured thousands of cases of eczema and eradicated facial and other disfigurements of years' standing. The terrible itching attending eczema is stopped with the first application, giving proof of its curative properties at the very outset.

In less serious skin affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, blackheads, acne barbae's itch, etc., results show after an overnight application, only a small quantity being required to effect a cure. Those who use posium for these minor skin troubles can now avail themselves of the special 50-cent package, recently adopted to meet such needs. Both the 50-cent package and the regular $2 jar may now be obtained in Lowell at Falls & Burkinshaw's, Carter & Sherburne's, and other leading drug stores.

Samples for experimental purposes may be had free of charge by writing direct to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York city.

of Mrs. Cleveland as the impressive final words were spoken. The services lasted less than five minutes.

The ceremonies over, President Roosevelt with Secretary Loeb and several secret service men, who attended him, were driven to the railroad station where he entered his private car and remained until the train pulled out at 6:20 o'clock when he appeared on the rear platform and acknowledged the cheers and good-byes of the crowd at the station.

Mrs. Cleveland and the immediate members of the family returned to Westland while the majority of the guests went to the Princeton inn, where light refreshments were served with Mrs. Russell of Princeton as hostess.

Governors Hughes, Fort and Smith left the city soon after the ceremony. Several photographers in their eagerness to photograph Governor Hughes and other distinguished guests upon their arrival, refused to comply with the order of the guardsmen to fall within the lines, and it was not until one of the troopers rode over to the scene that the photographers desisted. At the station, shortly before his departure, Governor Hughes, good naturedly, posed for a score of camera men. The governor left for New York in the private car of George Westinghouse, which brought Mr. Westinghouse, Paul Martin and a number of representatives of the Equitable Life Assurance society.

VISITORS ARRIVE.
As early as two o'clock distinguished visitors began to arrive. Among the first were Secretary George B. Cortelyou and former United States Senator James Smith. General James G. Thompson and William Herbert followed soon after. The guests were received on the veranda of the house of Prof. John Hibben and Cleveland F. Bacon, nephew of Mr. Cleveland.

Governor Charles E. Hughes was the first state executive to arrive. As he stepped from his carriage all the other assembled officials rose to greet him. The guests were received into the house at 4 o'clock. Jesse Lynch Williams, Henry J. Van Dyke 3rd, and William H. Bradford of Princeton ushering the visitors to seats in various parts of the house. In the reception room with the casket were Mrs. Cleveland and the children and relatives and the officiating clergymen. As each clergyman delivered his part of the service he stood at the door of the reception room so that he could be heard by all.

On the casket were flowers and a wreath from Nassau hall. The floral offerings were conveyed to the cemetery before the procession started from Westland and were arranged about the plot.

HEAVY POLICE GUARD.
For over an hour before the services and until President Roosevelt had left the Cleveland home the streets and cemetery were carefully guarded by miles of police. The Mammoth troops of Red Bank and the Trenton companies of the Second regiment, which constituted the visiting militia, in addition to the local company, left for their respective stations last night.

Soon after the grave was filled the cemetery was opened to the public and the crowds, which up to that time had been denied admittance, surged into the grounds to view the grave and floral display.

MONUMENT TO CLEVELAND.

GIVING OUT

The Struggle Discourages Many a Citizen of Lowell

Around all day with an aching back; Can't rest at night; Enough to make any one "give out." Dean's Kidney Pills will give renewed life. They will cure the backache; Cure every kidney ill. Here is Lowell proof that this is so: Miss Mary Enright, of 26 Thorndike st., Lowell, Mass., says: "In the spring of 1898 I recommended Dean's Kidney Pills after procuring them at Ellingwood & Co's drug store. My brother at that time was having considerable trouble from backache and kidney complaint, as I understand most all who follow his occupation as a painter, have more or less trouble from those organs. The remedy was just what he needed and the backache was quickly ended and the kidneys restored to a good healthy condition. I have heard him speak of Dean's Kidney pills many times during the past seven years, and he always speaks of them in the highest terms of praise."

BOY KIDNAPPED

He Was Taken Away in An Auto PARENTS OF THE LAD SEPARATED Strangers Managed to Make Their Escape

NORTH HAMPTON, N. H., June 27.—Francis Robert Drake, 5½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford S. Drake, was forcibly carried away by two strange men who appeared, from nobody knows where, at the home of the child's grandmother, Mrs. Justin E. Drake, near the bridge over the eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad about 11 o'clock this morning.

It is believed the abduction of the sunny-haired little fellow is the outcome of domestic trouble between his father and mother, who have been living apart about two years.

The father is at present in Chicago and the grandmother is of the opinion that the men who carried little Francis off knew of his absence.

The grandmother's story of the abduction is that shortly before 11 o'clock a two-seated automobile, containing two men, stopped in front of the house, apparently as though it had broken down. One of the men she described as of light complexion and wearing a long linen coat, the other dark, both wearing the goggles so common to automobilists.

One the piazza at the time were playing little Francis, the abducted boy, Joshua, aged 10; Marion, aged 9, and Dorothy, aged 5, children of some neighbors.

The men in the automobile after watching the little group a few minutes asked Mrs. Drake, who had appeared on the scene if they could have some water for the automobiles, and how far it was to the nearest telephone station.

When told it was about a half-mile away, they said they would be going, but invited the children to take a ride with them.

Mrs. Drake, without suspicion, consented, and the children trooped into the automobile, much pleased with the prospect of a ride.

The continuation of the story of the abduction is furnished by little Joshua, who says that before the automobile had gone very far the man who wore the long linen coat asked Francis if his name were not Francis Robert Drake and the little fellow replied that it was. Meanwhile the automobile had kept on until Breakfast hill, about a mile from the Drake homestead, was reached.

Here, according to Joshua's story, the automobile was stopped and the man in a linen coat, who did all the talking, gave him a quarter of a dollar and asked him to go to a house nearby to get a wrench. He got out and his two little sisters followed him, as well as Francis, but hardly had the children alighted from the automobile when the man in the linen coat got out and quickly snatching up Francis, again entered the automobile and gave his companion the signal to start.

Joshua, overjoyed at little Francis' protesting in a childish way at being separated from his companions, and he heard his captor assure the little fellow that it would be all right and that he would soon rejoin them.

All this time the automobile was making away with the boy, and in a few minutes it was out of sight over the hill.

Joshua and his two sisters, understanding little of the real purport of the carrying away of Francis, then made their way home, arriving shortly after noon.

Here they quickly told their story and Mrs. Drake at once drove to the nearest telephone station and notified Col. John H. Bartlett at Portsmouth and through him the police of neighboring places were warned to be on the lookout for the boy and his captors.

With the long start that it had, however, the automobile got safely away and when the alarm was given was undoubtedly well out of the district, as up to a late hour no trace of it had been secured.

PROPOSED CHANGES IN TEXT BOOKS

THE SCHOOL BOARD, IT IS ALLEGED, IS ABOUT TO CHANGE THE SYSTEM OF WRITING AS WELL AS THE SYSTEM OF MUSIC, OR, PERHAPS, IF IT FAILS, TO PUT THROUGH THE PROPOSED CHANGE IN THE MUSIC SYSTEM.

OBJECTION IS RAISED TO THE VERTICAL SYSTEM AND THE FIRST CHANGE IS TO A SEMI-SLANT SYSTEM. SHOULD THAT BE ADOPTED THERE WOULD SOON BE AN OPPORTUNITY FOR MR. MCGRAFT TO SUGGEST ANOTHER CHANGE, BACK TO THE SPENCERIAN OR ORIGINAL SLANT SYSTEM.

FINANCIALLY, THE CITY IS NOT IN A POSITION TO MAKE CHANGES IN THE SYSTEM OF MUSIC OR THAT OF WRITING THIS YEAR. BOTH HAVE SERVED VERY WELL FOR A CONSIDERABLE TIME AND THEY ARE JUST AS GOOD TODAY AS THEY WERE ON THE FIRST DAY OF THEIR ADOPTION EVEN IN COMPARISON WITH LATER SYSTEMS. WE NEVER ADMIRE THE VERTICAL SYSTEM OF WRITING, WE ALWAYS FELT IT CLUMSY AND UNHANDY, BUT IT IS HERE AND WE ARE NOT PREPARED TO DISLODGE IT JUST AT PRESENT. IT IS SURPRISING TO WHAT AN EXTENT THE CHANGE IN A TEXT BOOK DISCOMMODES THE WORK OF A SCHOOL AND DISCONCERTS BOTH PUPILS AND TEACHERS.

THIS IS NO YEAR TO CHANGE TEXT BOOKS EVEN THOUGH THE CHANGE WERE NECESSARY. IN MUSIC THERE IS NO NEED OF A CHANGE; IN THE WRITING SYSTEM, WE BELIEVE, A MISTAKE WAS MADE WHEN VERTICAL WRITING WAS INTRODUCED. NOW, HOWEVER WE ARE ACQUAINTED WITH IT, WE HAVE BEEN TAUGHT TO USE IT AND IT WOULD BE A GREAT WASTE OF TIME FOR ANY PUPIL TO CHANGE TO A NEW SYSTEM OF WRITING. SUCH A SYSTEM SHOULD BE INTRODUCED GRADUALLY, PASSING WITH THE BABY CLASS FROM GRADE TO GRADE UPWARD SO THAT NO PUPIL WILL BE REQUIRED TO CHANGE HIS STYLE OF HANDWRITING. TO REQUIRE A PUPIL TRAINED TO THE VERTICAL TO CHANGE HIS STYLE WOULD BE THE HEIGHT OF ABSURDITY AND IMPOSITION.

THE OBLATE FATHERS OF THIS CITY ARE TO BE HEARTILY CONGRATULATED ON THE PURCHASE OF THE FRED AYER ESTATE FOR AN ORPHANAGE. NO BETTER ESTATE COULD BE FOUND IN LOWELL AND THERE IS NO OTHER CHARITABLE INSTITUTION MORE NEEDED IN LOWELL THAN AN ORPHANAGE.

THOSE WHO ATTEND THE POLICE COURT ARE NO STRANGERS TO THE HEART-RENDING SCENES ATTENDING THE SEPARATION OF PARENTS AND CHILDREN WHEN THE STATE STEPS IN AND TAKES CHARGE OF THE CHILDREN ON THE GROUND THAT THE PARENTS HAVE FAILED PROPERLY TO PROVIDE FOR THEM. CHILDREN IN SUCH CASES ARE ORPHANIZED BY LAW AND SENT TO HOMES FROM WHICH THEY ARE SELDOM HEARD OF AGAIN. IT IS A CRUEL THING TO DO BUT THE LAW ORDAINS IT AS A NECESSITY.

IT WOULD BE A REAL CHARITY IF THIS NEW ORPHANAGE WOULD ACCEPT SUCH CHILDREN AS WELL AS THOSE WHO HAD LOST THEIR PARENTS BY DEATH. THE CHILDREN IN THE ONE CASE ARE FULLY AS DESTITUTE AND AS HELPLESS AS IN THE OTHER, EQUALLY THE OBJECTS OF CHARITY.

OUR PARK SYSTEM

IT IS REFRESHING TO FIND A MEMBER OF THE PARK BOARD SO ENTHUSIASTICALLY IN FAVOR OF BEAUTIFICATION AND DEVELOPMENT ALONG POPULAR LINES AS IS JUDGE PICKMAN, AS INDICATED IN AN INTERVIEW WITH THAT GENTLEMAN PRINTED IN TODAY'S SUN.

LOWELL, IT IS TRUE, HAS NOT AS MANY PRIVILEGES FOR ITS PEOPLE AS MOST OTHER CITIES AND IT IS ONLY BY THE GRADUAL DEVELOPMENT OF A SYSTEM THAT THE NECESSARY RESULTS CAN BE OBTAINED. PATIENCE AND PERSEVERANCE ALONG THE RIGHT LINES WILL EVENTUALLY GIVE US A SYSTEM OF PUBLIC PARKS OF WHICH OUR CITY MAY WELL FEEL PROUD.

IT IS TO BE HOPED THAT LOWELL OFFICIALS WILL SOON LEARN TO LEAVE NO FOUNDATION FOR INDICTMENTS ON CRIMINAL CHARGES. WE HAVE HAD MANY CASES OF THAT KIND OF LATE AND SOME CONVICTIONS THAT REFLECT UPON OUR CITY'S GOOD NAME. IT IS NO CREDIT TO THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY TO SECURE INDICTMENTS ON FLIMSY CHARGES. IT IS BESIDES A SOURCE OF EXPENSE TO THE COUNTY AS WELL AS TO THE DEFENDANTS.

SEEN AND HEARD

A Kansas girl is engaged to a Chicago young man and recently, upon returning from a visit at the home of his intended, the lover purchased two presents, one for his intended and one for her little brother. To his amusement he sent a beautifully bound copy of "Lucie," and to the boy a fine baseball bat. In some inconceivable way both the accompanying notes and packages were exchanged with the result that the young lady received the baseball bat and the little brother received "Lucie." Please accept this small memento as a token of my regard. Take it out with the boys and develop your muscles. Enter into the spirit of the game and learn to hit hard. It may stand you in hand in later life. Take this bat, split on your hands, walk up to the plate and paste the ball in the solar plexus. Learn to slide even if it does tear your trousers. The game! The boy will not tell what was in his letter because his sister refuses to trade presents. She is learning to hit hard on the ground that it may stand her well in hand after she is married.

Now, what's de use o' joshin'
An' allus givin' digs,
A-laughin' an' a-jokin'
An' sayin' boys is pigs?Pa says me stumnick's rubber,
Er gomerlastly stuff,
An' says me legs is holter,
I never gits enough.An' sister, she's a teacher
Way up to number five,
She says the superconder
Jest eats 'em up alive.An' how a nostril gables
An' gulps wid' great delight,
Jest grabs an' grabs an' swallows
Most anything in sight!Aunt Jane she says my manners
Is really shockin' bad,
T' see a boys' greediness
Is 'scouragin' an' sad!But ma she knows about it,
She's Johnny-on-the-spot!
She says when boys is growin'
Dey has t' eat a lot.An' bread an' jam is cheaper
An' medicine an' pills;
She radder pay de grocer
Dan pay de doctor bills.An' sometimes when dey's knockin'
She sorter winks her eye,
An' slips across de table
Anudder piece o' pie.An' says: "Now, don't s' mind 'em,
I knows 'em, dat I do,
Wen dey was kids an' hungry,
W'y dey was jest like you!"

oldest painters in this city. He has for more than half a century been actively engaged in painting and has perhaps painted more houses in Lowell than any other painter of the paint brush in this city. Another feature of old Uncle Abe's history is that he is the only surviving member of the old Lowell brigade band which went with the sixth regiment to Washington, D. C. There are few men at his age who would have the courage to cross the country to establish a new home. The majority of men at his age consider that they are living on borrowed time, but not so with Uncle Abe. He is still up and coming with the young "uns." It is interesting to hear him tell of his trip through Baltimore and to describe the debts that were made in his old home by bricks that were thrown from windows, roofs of houses and other places of vantage.

In the Lazy Hills are trees of shade,
By the dreaming Brooks of Sleep,
And the rollicking River of Pleasure laughs,
And gambols down the steep;
But when the blasts of Winter come,
The Brooks and the River are frozen dumb.Then woe to those in the Lazy Hills.
When the blasts of Winter moan,
Who strayed from the paths of a Bank Account
And the path to a House of Their Own;
These paths are hard in the summer heat,
But in Winter they lead to a snug retreat.

SPRINGFIELD'S NOVEL CELEBRATION

New Bedford Standard: Springfield has an ambitious Fourth of July program, including a chorus of eight hundred voices to sing in the open air, and a boy regiment of cavalry, one thousand strong. The town also feels that it has drawn a great prize in the fact that a good part of the Buffalo Bill show will join the procession, though that show was given up the street parade as a means of advertising itself. Springfield restricts noise-making by explosives on Independence Day more rigorously than is the custom in most cities.

THE ARRAY OF COLLEGES.

Worcester Post: Statistics from the United States commissions of education have interest at this season of commencements. He reports 82 institutions of higher learning for men in this country. Of these five have 2200 or more students; 17 have 1000 or more and in 14 the average enrollment is above 200.

This above all others is the country of colleges. More than $25,000,000 has been contributed in private benefactions for their endowment in the 12 months just past. The largest amount, $4,300,000, has gone to the university of Chicago. Perhaps the wisest single benefaction is the one just announced of $500,000 by Mr. Phipps to Johns Hopkins university for the study of insanity. Maladies of the mind are playing an increasingly serious part in our civilization and in no branch of medicine has so little progress in diagnosis or treatment been made, whether because of the inherent obscurity of the subject or because of lack of adequate research the results of Mr. Phipps' benefaction may some time help to show.

The number of inmates of the insane hospitals of the country is upwards of 200,000 and the annual cost of maintenance nearly $21,000,000.

APOTHEOSIS OF LAFOLETTE.

New York Sun: The Hon. Henry Fire Cochrane of Wisconsin, who nominated Battle Bob, may not have the voice of Knight of California, but he treated the convention to its first bit of empyrean rhetoric:

"Through all the years Robert M. La Follette has stood like a bold mountain about whose summit the hurricanes have raved in vain and upon whose base the angry waves have beat their surge, unshaken and unshakable! For ten years he has carried this war upon the point of his sword, and the light that gleamed from his shining blade was lit the blaze that carried forward, the war in Disunion, fired the heart of Roosevelt and today, like the force of the morning, is leading the national crusaders along the pathway of reform."

Mr. LaFollette may have had reason to consider himself the legitimate heir, but as a precursor and inspirer he must be loathsome to the great browner and conveyor of other men's principles and words.

WHAT IS RHEUMATISM?

Well Known Remedy That Absolutely Cures This Dread Disease.

No other disease is so painful as rheumatism. Uric Acid crystals are deposited in and about the joints, and that is called rheumatism. The only way in which this painful and dangerous disease can be absolutely cured is with Neuralgic Anodyne, a remedy that has an entirely different action from anything else.

Small doses are taken internally that reach the nerve centers and prevent the formation of Uric Acid. It is also rubbed on the affected parts, quieting and relieving the pain, reducing the rheumatic fever, and restoring health to the aching tissues and muscles. A large sized bottle of Neuralgic Anodyne costs but 25c, and it is so successful in curing rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, toothache and relieving bruises and sprains that the leading druggists and chemists, and the proprietors, The Twichell-Chapman Co., Portland, Me., authorize dealers everywhere to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

REPUBLICAN ESTIMATE OF CLEVELAND.

Haverhill Gazette: Whatever may be thought of Grover Cleveland's judgment, the honesty of his motives will hardly be questioned even by critics that have been bitterly opposed to his theories and interpretation of the needs of the times. With old school notions and a firm belief that the financial runs must needs be greased at the first sign of a flurry in the business sky, he acted sometimes in a manner that seemed arbitrary in quarters better informed. He had no sympathy with the growth of radicalism first in his own party and later as evidenced in the policies of President Roosevelt. Loyal to the last to the old standards of government, he refused to concede the effect of years and new conditions, and stood stubbornly against the progress of change. He was possessed, nevertheless, of many sterling qualities that will be remembered when the bitterness caused by some of his official acts have been forgotten.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

There are two hundred Indians in the Thirty-seventh. Being a rural corps the Haidimands are weak in strength and considerably more than half of them are redmen, second or third year men almost without exception. At the time of the Toronto inspection in 1901 the Thirty-seventh had but seven companies. Of his own initiative Capt. Johnson, an Indian himself, came forward and organized a company of redmen from the Six Nations. Today he is captain of as keen a body of recruits as there is in the whole camp. His son is a lieutenant in the same company. Lieutenant Smith, who was one of the two natives of North America who went to the coronation from the Thirty-seventh, is an officer in the third company. He is a full-blooded Mohawk. All these servants of the king are well off officers of military bearing and clean-cut, expressive features.

"The cause of temperance is working great headway in Norway. We have adopted the local option policy with excellent results," said P. Anensen, a manufacturer of white paper, from Skien, Norway.

"Whenever the people of a certain district or county wish to abolish drinking houses an election is held at which all adult males in that territory are supposed to vote. If any are absent their votes are counted for prohibition. Another election cannot be held until after five years, and it is very seldom that a second vote is ever taken when a community once goes against license. Another thing that has made national sobriety is the regulation, in many places, that liquor cannot be bought except by the bottle, and requiring the purchaser to take the bottle to his home before using any of its contents."

Mrs. Sarah Tooley has written an account of the literary career of the Baroness Orczy which should be stimulating to readers. She began with detective stories. "Treasure Island" on the top of an omnibus just beyond the Westbourne park station over one of the squalid bridges that cross the canal at that miserable corner of London. I looked down one of the most desolate streets I know," the author says "and it struck me what a number of mysterious forgotten crimes must have been perpetrated down the ill lighted, squalid portions of mighty London." This led the baroness to write the detective stories told by "The Old Man in the Corner." When she had written "A Son of the People" she failed for a long time to find a publisher willing to accept the book, because the scene was laid in Hungary. When the "Scarlet Pimpernel" had been accepted as a play the publishers looked askance at the idea of bringing out a book by the same name. But the story has sold in a quarter of a million copies and has been translated into twelve languages. "A Son of the People" brought her a fortune, for through it the baroness was found to be the heir to the chateau and estate which her readers knew as Bideakut.

Joaquin Miller lives on the hills overlooking San Francisco and the Golden Gate. He writes his verses lying in bed with a pencil and pad near him where he can look at his view and write when the spirit moves him. The essential thing in poetry or prose, Mr. Miller claims, is to use as few and as simple words as possible. He calls attention to the fact that the sermon on the Mount has only 263 words in it. He never keeps any of his books about him, for he says, "They do not seem very good to me after I have finished them."

Charles Rann Kennedy has in hand a series of seven dramas in which the central themes are the conception of brotherly living, the destructive force that comes from the lie, the woman question, the child influence, the conflict of races and the ideals of freedom.

PROF. HAGGERTY

TO SPEND THREE MONTHS WITH THE MONKEYS.

NEW YORK, June 27.—For the next three months all communications for Professor Melvin E. Haggerty of Harvard should be addressed "Care of Monkey House, Bronx Geological Park."

Beginning today, Professor Haggerty will start light housekeeping in the neat but inexpensive quarters that have been prepared for him in the simian shed by Director Hornaday.

After 90 days' close association with the jungle exiles, Professor Haggerty expects to qualify as an interpreter of their language.

Professor Haggerty is the assistant of Professor Robert M. Yerkes of Harvard, an expert on animal life, and well up among the heavy hitters in the "dingy league."

It was after a conference with his superior that Professor Haggerty conceived the idea of spending his vacation among the monkeys.

Director Hornaday entered into the proposition with great zest, and the work of fitting up suitable quarters for the professor has been going on for the last two weeks.

It is Professor Haggerty's intention to camp on Jack's trail until he is familiarized himself with every detail of monkey life and oratory. With the data secured it is the purpose of Professors Yerkes and Haggerty to compile an encyclopaedia dictionary, which will be the first lexicon of the kind ever built.

IN WOODEN BOX

A Fitchburg Woman's

Plan of Travel

FITCHBURG, June 27.—Mrs. William Tryon left yesterday concealed in a wooden box with a glass covering, her own invention, for Salisbury, N. C., where she will seek to restore her health.

Mrs. Tryon has been in ill health for a number of months, suffering from nervous prostration and bronchitis. She has remained in her apartments at 10 Day street for the past year, stopping in a room where she refused to allow any fresh air to enter. She has been kept in bed, and was covered with heavy blankets and other bed clothing. She complained of the cold air even with the temperature at 80.

Several weeks ago she conceived the idea of traveling to the south in a large wagon, but when she was told that this was impossible, invented the plan which was adopted yesterday.

A few weeks ago she called in a carpenter and gave him instructions to build a large wooden extension case with glass doors, the case to be upholstered, in which she could recline while riding in the train to Salisbury. The box was completed Thursday and was taken to her room for inspection. After a few changes were made Mrs. Tryon said that she was ready for the journey.

She was placed in the box, the doors were closed and the box was placed in a baggage car, and she was started on her journey.

Mrs. Tryon is a member of the German Plaster company, of which her husband is president, and she has lived here about two years. She hopes to remain in her health in the warm climate of North Carolina.

Her method of traveling attracted a large number of persons to the railroad station.

Macdonald, who has for the past four years been manager of the fruit stand at the Union station, arrived here yesterday and was accorded a splendid reception. Last evening a dozen of his friends invited him to Mr. Drew's house and when he arrived there he found his friends had collected and when he entered the dining room he was seized and greeted affectionately by all those present. Dinner was served and games of various kinds were enjoyed. Speeches were made by all those present and each extolled Mr. Macdonald because of his good fellowship. The following were present: Charles Fortner, Bob McArthur, Charles Hamilton, Geo. Frederick, Ralph Blacknell, George Gray, John Coyne, William A. TRAINING SCHOOL

Held Graduating Exercises Last Night

ABLE ADDRESS BY PROF. BALLIET

His Subject Was, "Interest in Education"

The Training school graduating exercises were held at Associate hall last night and the event was witnessed by a good number of relatives and friends of the graduates and friends of the school. The following named young women graduated: Misses Susan Florence Burbank, Clara Augusta Delany, Alice Mabelle French, Elizabeth Anna Gilson, Fannie Goodwin Hobbs, Cora Ethel Jones, Eleanor Jane LeLachar, Charlotte Olive Love, Ellen Frances Lynch, Charlotte Ann Parsons, Alice Olive Stickey, Grace May Thibault.

Mr. Burton H. Wiggin of the school committee spoke words of praise for the school, its mission and its work. The graduation address was delivered by Prof. Thomas M. Balliet, dean of the School of Pedagogy of New York university. Prof. Balliet was superintendent of the schools of Springfield, Mass., before going to New York and his address was an able and interesting one. He struck the keynote to his subject when he said that the great aim of education is reached when the child has been made to understand and to love what is good for him.

Prof. Balliet was introduced by Miss Edmund, principal of the school, as the leader student of the philosophy of education in the country.

PROF. BALLIET'S ADDRESS.

The speaker's subject was "Interest in Education," and he said in part: "The whole work of education, and its effect upon the mind, may be summed up in the meaning and reach of interest, the word here meaning the feeling of joy and attention with which the mind turns to one thing, when another offers no charm."

"It is often said that a child is educated by what he does, not by what you do for him. In my mind this is a platitude. Self-activity only educates according to the saying, but it should be remembered that there are many forms of self-activity, and that this is certainly not true of all. The first is play, where the actuating motive is that of pure pleasure in doing without results, and not for what the doing accomplishes. Another kind is where the work is done partly for pleasure in the doing and partly for accomplishment. A third form is when the duty is unpleasant but the feeling is that it must be done and accomplished. This is the work of a step further comes that which the child dislikes to do and yet do while feeling that it accomplishes nothing, and that is drudgery. There is mental activity in all four.

"In which of these our work shall be classified depends on our mental attitude. It all lies in the state of mind. Therefore, the function of education, therefore, lies in getting people to like doing the things which are good, and to dislike the others. It lies in creating interest, and in infecting people with enthusiasm for the good and the beautiful.

"The great aim of education is reached when the child has been made to understand and to love what is good for him. Then is the school truly created. This is introducing into work the great element of pleasure. To project into the life work the element of play, which is another name for 'loving one's work' is really the great aim to be sought. No man has ever done anything that counted in this world, accomplished anything beneficial to his country or his fellow men, without having been a labor of love.

"Children from the first should be given work that they like to work that is play. Then gradually the power to do things not only for the love of doing, but also for the sake of accomplishing, will be developed. But the joy, the zest of play will remain in doing the things worth while, later, for duty's sake, when that spirit of play has not been killed by its being starved in childhood. The power of a man's life is influenced, or even changed, by the dwarfing in childhood of this happy instinct of play. It is lost for the years to come when stifled at that age, and the man who develops from the play-starved child has so lost his habit that he can no longer find zest in the work of life. All play and no work is certainly not good, but it is even better than all work and no play.

"The great work of the teacher lies then in creating interest in the child's mind, in giving him a personal realization of the things worth while, which shall thereafter make him take these things not as unpleasant work which must be accomplished at the cost of joy, but rather as play, that is, activity for the sake of pleasure. This is infinitely better than the most brilliant examinations. Leaving school with such an interest, such a realization means everything. It is the root of all intellectual life, for interest leads to volition, and from volition to conduct. The effects the most dazzling of examinations may end at the school door. Interest in the best things of the mind and heart will last through life.

"The infection of enthusiasm for these things is therefore the teacher's highest function. Teaching worthy of the great name is not cramming the child's mind with so many dates and facts and figures, for the result is, it is infecting him with a love of study which shall be his through life, and give him, as a man, that feeling of joy in it that he felt in play as a child. Something is wrong with the teacher who falls in this, and to whose study study remains all work and no play. The only influence which could give her moral and mental stamina, and the personal proofs she could give of her ability to teach have been the things which have opened the door before her, to have done the absolutely fair thing by every child. Nothing but the capacity of the girl herself has ever been considered, for we have never put in mind that in the school room the vital thing is the teacher. She is called upon to influence thousands of children through the long years of her career, and so much depends upon her intelligence and ability that to allow ourselves to be influenced by any other considerations would be to fail signally in a great trust."

THE GRADUATES.

Diplomas were presented the graduates by Supl. Whitcomb who also presented diplomas to the following graduates of the grammar school: Catherine Veracunda Foley, Ida Matilda Caster, Marjorie Elizabeth Regan, Beatrice Miriam Ramsden, Margaret Josephine Lepper, Alice Veracunda Ryan, Clara Elsie Mann, Catherine Rose Delany, Vivian May Cowen, Elizabeth Catherine Thomas, Agnes Loretta O'Connor, Louise Gertrude Reilly, Margaret Jane Joyce, Helen Graves, Robert Charles Crowley, John Henry Neville, Wilfred Edward Reilly, Arthur John Forbes, John McDermott, Richard Francis Preston, Frederick William Conney, Edward Aloysius Callahan, Albert Laurence Carney, John Thomas Gill, John James Quirk.

Miss Lynch, president of the class, presented the class gift, a picture, to the school. Miss Edmund accepted it. After the exercises the usual reception to the graduates took place. The decorations were of flags, greenery and picturesque bunches of crimson rambling roses. Hubbard's orchestra played.

PLEASANT SURPRISE

TO MRS. JAMES MUIR ON DEPARTURE FOR SCOTLAND.

A pleasant surprise party was held last night at the home of Mrs. James Muir at 15 West Ninth street, the affair being under the auspices of Princess lodge, Daughters of St. George. Mrs. Muir is about to leave on an extensive visit to Scotland.

During the evening she was presented a handsome gold pin with the emblems of the order. Piano solos were rendered by Miss Grace Robinson and there were songs by Mr. Blackstock and the other members of the party. Refreshments were served by the Messrs. Robinson and Clark. The evening was brought to a close with a hearty wish of a safe and pleasant voyage. Mrs. Muir will leave next Tuesday on the "Plymouth" of the White Star line and will return to the city some time in September.

KINGDOM OF LOVE

Rev. J. Haven Richards
S. J., the Preacher

AT ST. PETER'S LAST EVENING

Forty Hours' Devotion at Sacred Heart

The closing services in the triduum in honor of the feast of the Sacred Heart at St. Peter's church were largely attended and were conducted by Rev. W. George Mullin. The sermon was preached by Rev. J. Haven Richards, S. J., of Boston college, formerly president of Georgetown University.

The preacher spoke on "The Kingdom of Love." He said in part: "What is the great motive power of the world? Some might say that it is science, others would have it that avarice, the hoarding together of wealth, was the prime factor in life, while others are at variance on many things. Love, however, is the greatest of powers in this universe. It rules and prompts men's actions. It is the heart that judges and acts and makes for all the good things in life and in the hereafter. So God has made his kingdom the kingdom of love.

"And yet that love which God asks of us has fallen almost dormant, into oblivion in many ways. God asks to be loved and in return, he offers his great love, that which is all powerful, all great and all comforting. What that ingratitude he has found in us. In the olden times his love for man and man's love for him were foremost in the minds of everyone, but as times progressed there was a gradual eking away of that love which was the present time finds us confronted with what is called modernism, a turning away from God and the ignoring of his love.

"A little more than 200 years ago, there appeared before a good man, wrapped in prayer, an image of the Sacred Heart, bleeding and bruised and suffering from the want of the love of man. God, at that time, said to her, 'Look upon this heart of mine, think of the love I hold for my people and then consider the ingratitude shown me.' He asked that a special service be said that this love should be returned to him, and since then this devotion which we are engaged in tonight has been instituted that his wishes might be gratified.

"To love God in his infinite divinity is a difficult matter. If we love God of our own free will we have done what he asks but how many of us, think you, do this. There are some who serve and love God faithfully through fear, others do it from a stern sense of justice and duty and others, too few, I might say, love him of their own accord, because they believe he fully deserves it.

"There are many incidents showing the love of men for their commanders, their generals, their leaders, still these same men fail to do justice in loving their greatest leader as they should. God loves us as we have never been loved and will continue so until the end of the world.

"We may think that as laymen or laywomen our love is too insignificant to give God, but think not thus, for one's love, no matter what his or her station in life, may be, accomplishes much in the end.

"Every one of you can and should become a soldier in the army of love for God. We have been called upon to assist God and the greatest assistance we can render him is by showing our

FOURTH OF JULY AND MONTICELLO

ENTRANCE HALL AT MONTICELLO

MONTICELLO, HOME OF THOMAS JEFFERSON

JEFFERSONS' OFFICE AND SERVANTS' QUARTERS

FIRECRACKERS spluttering on the streets, cannons booming from hill to hill, flags waving, oratory bubbling up in every public hall and picnic ground, the great American people wildly, tumultuously lively—this is Independence day as we understand it. Different, how different, was the first Independence day, July 4, 1776, in the hushed city of Philadelphia, when a group of grave men sat in the square, somber room of the old statehouse on Chestnut street and listened to the reading of a document as momentous as it was brief. After much serious talk they rose one by one and affixed their names to the paper while the little urchin waiting without clambered panting to the bell tower overhead shouting: "Ring! Grandfather, ring!" Then the aged people without, recognizing this signal, stood about in thoughtful groups, for liberty was an untold venture, and they braved a perilous thing—the wrath of a powerful king.

The first Independence day was one of anxiety and prayer. Even the author of the daring declaration, a slim young man of thirty-three, with a florid complexion, sandy hair and gray eyes, whose name stands third in the list of Virginia's signers, may have had his own qualms, known only, of course, to the one woman in the world, a little tawny eyed matron in stately white pillared mansion overlooking miles of picturesque Virginia scenery in Albemarle county. And this woman was probably "the woman in the case," for she was the inspiration, the first and only love of Thomas Jefferson, the author of the declaration, a woman as intellectual as she was lovely. When he married her she was a widow, but a widow of only twenty-three, without any incumbrances, and there is no doubt that the match was based on romance. When she died, after ten years of married life, her husband was inconsolable; but, unlike many inconsolable husbands, he never remarried.

To know just how a man thinks it has been said one must know just how he lives, and to gratify this curiosity in regard to the mind that evolved the republic's charter of liberty a visit should be made to Charlottesville, Va., within a few miles of which is located Monticello, the home of Thomas and Martha Skelton Jefferson. The trip from Washington by rail is but a short one, amounting to about 115 miles. Through the courtesy of the present owner of the place visitors are admitted to the house and grounds, which are kept in the same condition as they were in Jefferson's days. A drive of four miles from Charlottesville brings one to the lodge which is at the entrance to the grounds. The house is on the top of a hill, where it commands a magnificent view. The name of the estate, Monticello (meaning little mountain), was suggested by its elevation. The house stands on the very summit of the hill, half a mile from the lodge along a winding road. Trees line the drive, and the carriage must pass through a second gateway bordered by an orange hedge before the house itself is reached. It is a low, rambling structure, not unlike an Italian villa, the great portico with four white pillars being the most imposing feature of its architecture. Like so many of the old Virginia mansions, it combines admirably both comfort and elegance. It is said that Thomas Jefferson himself, who was a most ingenious person, planned the house, supervised the building and at times did not disdain to lend a hand when a workman seemed slow or lacking in proficiency. The present owner of the mansion is Mr. Jefferson M. Levy, whose uncle purchased it from James T. Barclay, who secured it from the Jefferson family when they sold it to pay the unfortunate ex-president's debts. For, alas, the author of the Declaration of Independence was not thrifty. The wife of his youth, whose co-operation would have spared him many of the financial embarrassments of later years, was taken from him early. Their daughters were brought up by strangers, and the sober caution which such a wife might have taught him in his business relations with others was sadly wanting in the sage of Monticello. So long as she lived she was his confident and adviser. The daughter of John Wayles, a wealthy lawyer who lived near Williamsburg and with whom Jefferson had business relations, her education was liberal for an age when housewifely skill was accounted more creditable to a woman than much learning. She played on the harpsichord and sang beautifully. Jefferson himself was a fine performer on the violin, and their mutual taste for music may have first inspired mutual interest. Jefferson was fond of books, and so was she. Before he met her he had begun building Monticello on the hill that had been a favorite boyhood haunt, three miles from his birthplace, Shadwell. Probably it soon occurred to him that the pretty widow would make an excellent ornament for this home. At any rate, they were married Jan. 1, 1772, and her first view of Monticello was at the end of her bridal journey, when it lay under a mantle of snow. The long ride from her home near Williamsburg to the place in the then wild and little settled part of Albemarle county was made in a storm, and they were compelled by its severity to leave the coach and finish the journey on horseback, arriving at their destination at night, when the servants had retired to bed in their quarters and the dwelling was dark and cold and cheerless. It was a discouraging homecoming for a bride, but the young couple in their quiet way made light of it and no doubt were up early in the morning, she anxious to get a better glimpse of this wonderful new mansion and he anxious to show her its many points of excellence.

It was in this house that this admirable woman passed most of the ten brief years of life with Jefferson. His devotion was ideal. They walked and talked together in the beautiful grounds when evening came, and during the day she spent long hours with him in the library, where he told her of many of his dreams and aspirations. Several children came to bless them, the girls all lovely like their mother and all but one doomed to an early death. The Revolution was a stormy time, for the British saw in the author of the declaration an enemy whose head was worth having. When the traitor Arnold at the head of his British troops approached Richmond intent on capturing Governor Jefferson a detachment of soldiers under the notorious Tarle-

ton was sent to take possession of Monticello, and Mrs. Jefferson fled with her young children to the home of Colonel Coles, fourteen miles away. The place was looted of all its valuables—one of Jefferson's fads was fine horses—and thousands of dollars' worth of grain and tobacco and many negro slaves were carried off. Probably more would have been lost but for the devotion of the servants, who managed to hide many articles of value in the house. Indeed it is said that the faithful house servant Caesar voluntarily remained for eighteen hours under the porch, where he had been burying the silver on the approach of the soldiers, rather than come out and arouse suspicion as to his hiding place. No doubt the anxieties of the Revolutionary period weakened a naturally delicate constitution, for in 1782, when her last child was born, Mrs. Jefferson's health gave way and she never rallied. She died on Sept. 6, and her nine-year-old daughter Martha, a child who inherited her mother's talent, became her father's companion and comfort. Marie, then aged three or four, was remarkable for her beauty. Lucy Elizabeth, the youngest, only two years old, died in 1784. With the close of the war for Independence his country had need of Jefferson. He went to France as minister from the new republic, and there his daughters were educated. When Adams succeeded Washington as president, Jefferson was chosen vice president, and at the close of Adams' administration he was elected president and spent eight years in the White House. His daughter Martha had married Thomas Mann Randolph, Jr., her father's ward, and lived on his estate not far from Monticello, while Marie, who was the wife of her cousin, John W. Eppes, occupied the homestead.

Though many a sprightly widow and many a lovely belle set her cap for the distinguished widower in the White House, he never gave a thought to any of them, though often he had need of woman's help in the executive mansion when his daughters, Mrs. Eppes and Mrs. Randolph, were unable to be with him. In 1804 Mrs. Eppes, whose constitution was as frail as that of her mother, passed away, and Monticello was again without a mistress. When in 1809 her father closed his presidential career and returned gladly to his books and the memories of his beloved dead Mrs. Randolph and her family joined the lonely old man in the mansion on the hill, and there, surrounded by his grandchildren and friends, he spent his last years studying and writing and entertaining most hospitably the guests who flocked from all parts of the country to see him. In his case hospitality proved to be his financial ruin, for he kept open house at Monticello and entertained friend and stranger alike. Such lavishness made inroads on a fortune never very ample. A friend whose note he had indorsed failed to pay it, so he was forced to make good. Then at last what was to be expected happened, and he found himself practically bankrupt. He was in debt, knew that he could not live many years longer, and his daughter, Mrs. Randolph, was poorly provided for. In order to escape his difficulties he proposed to sell Monticello by means of a lottery since to pay what it had cost him was beyond the means of most purchasers. He had imported workmen from Italy to cut the stone since there were then none in America who could do such work, and the solidwood and rosewood inlaid floors were so carefully constructed that they are today even more beautiful than when first laid. Congress frowned on this idea of an ex-president selling his home in such a manner and agreed to buy his library, but it gave him only $24,000, which was half what it had cost. Before Monticello could be sold its owner died and was laid to rest in the simple family burying ground which still may be seen upon the estate and in which repose his wife and many members of his family. After his death the estate passed out of the hands of the Jeffersons, and it is fortunate that it is today in the hands of one who honors the memory of its builder. Far in the distance as one stands at Monticello may be seen the dome of the University of Virginia, which this versatile genius founded and whose buildings he also designed. Much as the present owner of the home of Jefferson prizes it, he might possibly be induced to part with it if the estate was to be kept as a public memorial like Mount Vernon. Better than the waste of money on Fourth of July fireworks and display would be the raising of a fund to secure the home of the author of the Declaration of Independence and provide for its preservation as an inspiration for coming generations. For the Daughters of the Revolution to join hands with the Sons of the Revolution in perpetuating the memory of Martha Skelton Jefferson and her husband would be a patriotic work well worthy of public support and encouragement.

ALICE DE BERDT.

CAUGHT ON THE FLIGHT FROM JEST TO EARNEST

IT'S all telling any one how to raise either chickens or children. That goes without saying.

But still the intelligent mind can't help reflecting, and with me to reflect is to scribble it out of my system.

How I despise the "mushy," weak-minded mother, the one who goes in to ecstasies over the baby's darling "itty bitty tootsie woosies" and allows its milk bottle to grow sour while she rocks its agonies with a "hush-a-by, baby." And the louder the kid screams with a stomach ache the louder she chants.

Or what would you think of a doting mother who kissed her darling all the time, but had not the strength to take it out in the park? Or the weak mother who never slaps the kid's hands for touching things, but when the untought youngster grabs the ink bottle and decorates the carpet literally spansk it until she is tired?

I've seen those things! I tell you motherhood doesn't appear sacred so often to me as it does queer. Why heaven (?) sends children to some women dear only knows, unless it is that the percentage of badly brought up and criminal men and women must be kept up in order to have variety in the world.

One of the prettiest street gowns for a blond is a dress of black satin made with lace yoke and sleeves. The bodice is sewed to a crushed girdle, which in turn is joined to a beautifully fitted circular skirt trimmed with bias folds. This is a most useful gown, and it will not spot if the right quality of material is chosen.

Linens are always sweet, but they require a good many changes and the services of an excellent laundress or a dry cleaner. Those which have striped borders are the newest, and if a woman is tall enough nothing is prettier than a double skirt effect. The remainder of the border is used to outline the kimono sleeves.

All over embroideries are being dyed in red, pink and royal blue. These make stunning walking length gowns, especially if the embroidery contains eyelets. Parasols to match are the smart thing. A bit of the material left over is utilized, and the best headgear to correspond is a broad white sailor trimmed with the same shade of flowers.

They tell me challoes are to be revived, but in a new silky weave and in pale colors only.

Old shawls are at a premium. They make perfectly stunning evening coats, while as for dresses—well, two or three white, deep fringed shawls make a gown that is simply dazzling.

Stripes are going out very rapidly. They are being worked to death in ten dollar suits and cotton voile ready made frocks trimmed with cheap taffeta.

I don't believe in encouraging quarrels between married people, but a wife should cling to her pride and self respect just as much after marriage as before.

It is not right to take all kinds of talk from your husband, my dear lady, just because you promised to love, honor and obey him. He owes something to you also, and if he finds that he can say slighting things to you and treat you in a way he wouldn't have dreamed of doing before marriage he is going to think less of you, that's all, and he is going to repeat the offense.

Give in on little things and don't be obstinate about them, but if ever a subject comes up where your best interests are at stake be firm about it and don't relinquish your rights or those of your children for the sake of peace.

Dress of black satin.

You are not gaining it in that way; you are only raising a tyrant for yourself.

If you are right, stick to your guns. If you are wrong, don't refuse to give in just for the sake of winning the battle.

For the matter of that, if your husband sees you are both just and firm in matters where you have a right to be firm there will be no disputes.

And, another thing, don't run after him after marriage any more than you did before. That's where many a young woman makes a big mistake. Don't fetch and carry too much for him. Let him do his share and remember that whether married or single a man likes to be the pursuer and not the pursued.

If you have an invalid in the house and you want to coax her appetite, don't fill her plate full. Give her a very small quantity at a time, and she will soon beg for more. There is nothing that discourages one so much as huge slabs of butter, thick pieces of bread and large chunks of meat swimming in bounteous gravy. Cut the ordinary piece of bread into two triangular pieces and shave the meat into tiny pieces already sprinkled with pepper and salt. Garnish the plate with a crisp tiny heart of lettuce, and you will see a pleased expression on the sick person's face.

There is nothing more tiresome than the woman you meet at some afternoon reception who continually asks you what people you know.

"Are you acquainted with the Pembroke Whites? No? I'm surprised! They are first cousins to the Willie Smiths. Everybody knows them."

"You went to Pokenose mountain last summer? Such a charming spot! Of course you met Mrs. Fitzgerald Gadabout? Her mother's sister married the Marquis of Sprout. Dear Lady Sprout! Such a charming woman! Well, perhaps they weren't there when you were."

"And Mrs. Willingby? Her sister divorced Howard Spendthrift, the cotton broker, and her other sister is the Mrs. Van Swagger you have so often heard me speak of. You don't know any of them? Well, well!"

And so it goes on.

No wonder foreigners say we have no conversation in our drawing rooms outside of personalities.

Rag carpet weaving is being revived here in New York. I have seen the most charming striped mats made out of old carpet, while solid tone green small rugs are a distinct addition to a colonial bedroom belonging to a friend. They were made out of an old flowered carpet she was heartily sick of, and the beautiful green vegetable dye was applied by the firm that did the weaving.

As a nation we are beginning to appreciate quiet, substantial carpets.

more and more. We have passed the stage where cheap Ingrain and the glories of designs shamelessly called Louis-XV. dazzle us. We admire the rich tints of oriental rugs, and, educated by these, we appreciate the honest handwork and pure dyes of grandma's rag carpets.

Farmers' wives are bringing them out of their attics and selling them to city people for handsome prices just as they sold a few years ago their blue and white pottery and their spindle backed chairs.

There seems to be a general return to all that is practical and solid in interior decoration, and I'm glad of it.

BITTEN BY DOG

Rabbi Told That He Must Die

CLEVELAND, June 27.—Waiting calmly for the fate that his physicians say threatens him, Rabbi L. Friedman is at his home, the victim of a rabid dog.

"If God desires to call me at this time I am ready to go," the rabbi said. "I do not feel any pain and I trust the treatment will prove successful. But the doctor seems to be discouraged."

The crisis in the disease will be reached perhaps tomorrow. The physicians refuse to make a hopeful forecast.

STORY OF BATTLE

Between Mexicans and Revolutionists

EL PASO, Tex., June 27.—In an encounter between revolutionists and troops of the Mexican government at the town of Las Vacas in Coahuila, Mexico, near the border across from Del Rio, Texas, early yesterday between 40 and 50 were killed and the commandant of the Mexican troops was badly injured according to a despatch received here last night. The story of the battle is as follows:

The quarters of the Mexican officers and barracks were fired upon by the attacking band and the assault centered on the federal customs house. Forty troops were daily assembled. In the disorder following the initial attack upon the barracks and the discovery that the quarters of the soldiers were burning, the revolutionists captured about 90 horses belonging to the Mexicans. At the custom house the troops made a determined stand and the fighting lasted all morning without intermission. It is said that five thousand shots were exchanged. The revolutionists cut all telephone and telegraph wires leading to Las Vacas and thus prevented the beset town sending for reinforcements.

A heavy firing until about noon the attacking party was repulsed and communication was established out of Las Vacas.

Troops were rushed to the place and were expected to arrive there late last night but advices from Del Rio say that a second outbreak was feared before the arrival of assistance.

The sheriff of Valverde county, Texas state, telegraphed Gov. Campbell of this state that the revolutionists had been repulsed and that a number of them were being taken to the United States.

The county officials asked the governor if he could apprehend the fugitives for violation of the neutrality laws.

Under advices from the attorney general Gov. Campbell ordered the sheriff that the federal authorities alone had jurisdiction and instructed him to keep hands off.

OFFICIALS SILENT.

CITY OF MEXICO, June 27.—Repeated efforts to obtain official confirmation of the attack on the border town of Las Vacas by bandits have met with failure.

The office of the secretary of the interior has remained closed during the night and at the residence of Minister Corral, no visitors are being received.

The secretary of the interior refused a statement regarding the affair. Despatches from various points in northern Mexico show that section to be in a state of ferment. During all of last night armed men, many of the them Americans, occupied the roofs of the Banco de la Nacion and the Banco de Comercio.

The despatches still characterize the raiders as bandits, but it is believed here that they are half criminal aggregations of political malcontents whose main purpose is to loot under the guise of insurrection.

The government says that the raiders do not number more than 50 armed men, but other reports place their total number as larger.

The railroad in Coahuila, injured by the bandits, has been repaired and the trains are now carrying troops to that region. Troops have arrived in the city of Tlaxcala and will spread over the northern country to form a network for the capture of the marauders. Reports of impending trouble in the state of Nuevo Leon cannot be confirmed at this time.

LOWELL MEN

TO TAKE PART IN PARADE IN BOSTON SUNDAY.

The big demonstration in honor of St. John's day, by the Holy Family Temperance league will be held in Boston tomorrow afternoon. A parade of the members of the league escorted by the C. T. A. H. of the archdiocese, will take place with Major John J. Leonard, chief Marshal. Prominent local abstinence workers from this city will ride on the chief marshal's staff. The parade will conclude with services in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross. A sermon will be delivered by His Grace, Most Rev. Wm. H. O'Connell, archbishop of Boston.

KETCHUP GAME POSTPONED.

The game scheduled between the Ketchup club, of the Navy Yard and the sanctuary choir team of St. Patrick's parish, to be played at Spaulding park this afternoon, was cancelled last night, because the grounds were not available.

The two teams will lineup for the game in the course of two weeks or more.

The old time rivals of the Sanctuary choir team, the Immaculate Conception church team, of Lawrence, will be seen here in a short time. It will be remembered that it was this team that took the championship of the Merrimack Valley, two years ago from the choir team, negotiations are under way.

THE DEFENDERS

Kept Up by the Artillery Commands

BOSTON, June 27.—Warming to the fray the members of the state militia and regular coast artillery corps stationed on the several forts on Boston harbor as the defending force in the simulated warfare now in progress today redoubled their efforts to prevent a landing by the naval fleet which is maneuvering about looking for an opportunity to score. The first and second artillery commands continued practice with the guns today although all the batteries did not use the regulation service charges. Observation officers were stationed at the guns to take note of the result of the gunners' efforts at vessel tracking by sights and the batteries instructed in the proper movements for overcoming possible vessels seeking to land attacking parties.

The shooting at Fort Henth which is occupied by Boston and Fall River companies has been considered specially commendable thus far, the 19 shots with service charges having resulted in a percentage of eighty in hits.

RYAN WILL DIE

Was Found on Ledges at Waterville

WATERVILLE, Me., June 27.—John Ryan, a wanderer, was found on the bottom ledges at Waterville yesterday afternoon with bad wounds upon head and face. Just how he came to be there is unknown.

Whether he went to sleep on the bank in the rear of the Lockwood coal docks on the Winslow falls of the river, and in his sleep rolled over the river ledge, or whether he was pushed or thrown by others, is a matter of conjecture.

Ryan, with 29 others were driven over into Winslow yesterday morning by City Marshal Ferrington and his officers. Seven men who were lying along the top of the ledge in a more or less intoxicated condition were taken to the Winslow police station by the town constable, assisted by the police of this city.

Ryan's skull is fractured, the scalp is torn from the forehead, the nose is crushed and the cheeks are terribly lacerated.

INJURIES FATAL

MALDEN WOMAN VICTIM OF NEWPORT ACCIDENT.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 27.—Mrs. Henry Winn of Malden, Mass., who figured in the overturning of a trolley while on a pleasure excursion here yesterday in connection with the convention of the general federation of women's clubs in Boston, died early today from the fractures received in the accident, without recovering consciousness. The death of Mrs. Winn made the second death among the ranks of the club women as a result of their visit to this city. Mrs. Sarah Shute of Coon Rapids, Ia., having died yesterday also from heart disease.

Mrs. Bennett F. Davenport of Watertown, Mass., and Mrs. Helen C. Sundean of Lincoln, Neb., the only others whose injuries were considered so serious that it was thought dangerous to remove them to Boston, were reported at the Newport hospital this morning to have passed as comfortable a night as might be expected and to be in a condition which gave them much chance for recovery.

Mr. Harry S. Phillips and Miss Nettie M. Shaw were married yesterday afternoon at the parsonage of the Chelmsford Street F. B. church by Rev. A. E. Kenyon. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips will live in Lyman, Me.

PAUL-PLAISTED.

Robert A. Paul, who conducted a school of languages in Lowell, was quietly married in his apartments in Nashua last Monday to Miss Olive Ellen Plaisted of Boston. The marriage was performed by U. S. District Attorney Charles W. Holt, as justice of the peace.

Dr. Edward J. Welch of Lowell was Mr. Paul's witness, and the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Zelpha Plaisted, also of Boston.

They will spend the summer at the bridegroom's bungalow, which is located not far from the Tyngs Island bridge on the Lowell road. It is understood that later they will reside in Nashua. The next winter Mr. Paul made his home in Lowell. Lowell was the former home of the bride.

Tomorrow will be the regular communion for the Sacred Heart sodality of St. Patrick's church.

The members of the sodality will receive communion at the 5:30 o'clock mass.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

Discussed Report of National President

BOSTON, June 27.—Saddened by the announcement at the opening of today's meetings of the death of Mrs. Henry Winn of Malden at Newport, R. I., where she was injured yesterday in an accident which threatened the lives of fourteen other delegates, the clubwomen in attendance at the convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs today took up their regular sessions as usual. In addition to the death of Mrs. Winn it was announced also that Mrs. Sarah Shute of Coon Rapids had died at Newport from heart disease. The president, Mrs. Sarah Decker of Denver, in announcing the fatal ending of yesterday's accident, expressed her sorrow and sympathy with the departed woman's family.

The meeting under the head of household economies, listened to discussions by Mrs. Burton Smith of Atlanta, Ga. Mrs. Robert J. Burdett of Los Angeles, Cal., Mrs. Virginia Meredith of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Junia Sheppard of St. Paul, Minn.

"The co-operation of women's organizations for good schools," was described by Miss Laura D. Gill and Mrs. Desha Brenneridge of Lexington, Ky., told of the educational awakening in Kentucky. The conditions under which "English" scholarships for American women might be obtained and the advantages which an American woman might secure by a study abroad under them," were told by Miss Eleanor Glynes on the subject.

The report of the national president was made the subject for general discussion during the latter part of the forenoon.

The proceedings during the forenoon were gone over in duplicate at a meeting in the afternoon in which all those visiting clubwomen who were not regularly accredited delegates or alternates might attend.

6 O'CLOCK BUTLER ARRESTED

Charged With Stabbing Prominent French Banker

PARIS, June 27.—The arrest in this city yesterday of the butler Renard, charged with complicity in the murder of Auguste Remy, a wealthy retired banker who has stabbed to death June 6 in his home in Paris has revealed the existence of an astounding state of affairs in the banker's household prior to the assassination.

The banker's nephew, named Ralongo, after a severe examination, told the magistrate that Renard had killed his uncle. Then breaking down completely, Ralongo explained that after years of service in his uncle's house, Renard had become completely master of the establishment, gaining ascendancy over the banker's wife to such a point that the keys to her money and jewel boxes were always in his possession. Continuing his revelation he then confessed that he and Renard had had relations similar to those which the recent recalled "Round Table" scandals in Germany.

M. Remy often complained of Renard's growing domination in his household but his wife defended the butler. The climax came the day before the assassination when the banker discovered his nephew and Renard together. He then informed his wife that he would no longer endure the situation and that he intended to send his nephew to a disciplinary school and that he was going to discharge the butler.

High words followed this announcement; Madame Remy refused to believe the stories told her and finally, it seems, with her maid she left the house. That same night, Ralongo quarreled during dinner and Renard killed the banker by stabbing him with a dessert knife. After killing the old man the butler arranged the house and dining room in such a manner as to give support to the theory that the crime had been committed by burglars.

Another arrest in the case is expected momentarily.

HARVARD CREW SHAH'S FRIENDS

Will Not Race in England This Year Said to Have Won A Victory

LONDON, June 27.—There is little prospect of the Harvard varsity eight that vanquished Yale at New London getting a race in England this year. The Harvard crew cannot row in the annual Henley regatta as the stewards have decided not to accept foreign crews to complete in the regatta of 1908 and they are too late to enter for the Olympic regatta to be held July 28, the entries for which closed June 1.

An exception has been made in the case of some countries, for example Canada and a few Continental countries have until June 30 to enter for the Olympia but it was decided that the names of the American and some other crews must be in the hands of the secretary of the Olympic association not later than June 1.

When shown the despatch from New Haven saying that the Harvard crew was to sail next week with the idea of rowing here on July 28, the secretary of the British association said: "I am afraid there is some misapprehension. We have not received their entry and as the time expired June 1, I am certain the association would not accept the entry should it come this late."

TIFLIS, Morocco, June 27.—Fighting is going on between the followers of the shah and the factions opposed to him at Ardabil, Kasvin, Rasht and other Persian cities along the Russian frontier. The partisans of the shah are said to have gained the upper hand.

It is reported that in several cases revolutionary leaders who were captured were subjected to severe torture. According to special despatches received here from Teheran the shah yesterday received several deputations including a group of members of parliament. He said he had no desire to punish parliament for the recent disorders, the responsibility for which rested upon those persons who had first attacked the shah. The deputations then thanked the shah for restoring order. Rigorous measures against the press of Teheran have been adopted.

HE CARRIED PINKS

And Police Thought He Stole Them

Michael Finnegan, better known as "Mike Finnegan," who aspires to be an actor, but who has made a bigger hit on the witness stand in police court than in reading the stage, is in the toils again.

While Patrolman George Palmer was on his beat about 5.30 o'clock this morning he espied Mike carrying an armful of pinks. The officer questioned Mike and when the latter could not give a good account of himself he was placed under arrest. In court this morning Finnegan pleaded not guilty to a complaint charging him with the larceny of 200 pinks, valued at one cent each from some person unknown.

Patrolman Palmer testified that he met Finnegan this morning with an armful of pinks. Witness asked him where he got them and he said he purchased them from a man in Dracut. "Do you want to ask any questions?" asked Deputy Welch.

"I do," said Finnegan.

Addressing the witness, Finnegan said: "Didn't I tell you I paid for them?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, that's all the question I desire to ask you."

Deputy Welch testified that Finnegan said he purchased the pinks from two Frenchmen in Collinsville, but when the deputy said he would send a couple of officers to visit the men from whom he purchased the pinks, the prisoner said the officers could not find the place anyway.

Finnegan was then called to the stand and testified as follows: "Well, Your Honor, you see times are very hard and I've had some hard luck and it is difficult to find work, you know, and I thought I would buy some flowers and sell them. I never stole those flowers. I think a great deal of my mother, who has been blind for 15 years, and that is all I've got to say."

Finnegan said he would not go out with an officer to the man from whom he purchased the flowers, but he would do and that was that he would go out himself and see the man and get a note saying that the flowers had been paid for. The court, however, would not agree to that.

Finnegan said: "I don't care for myself, I care for my mother. I am thinking of I don't care about being away from her."

"Did you see your mother much during the months of January and February?" asked Deputy Welch.

"Yes, I did."

"Were you in jail?"

"Now, that's a different subject. That pondorous haircut of yours is getting too big."

The case was continued till Monday morning.

FUNERALS

MURPHY—The funeral of Leo Murphy took place this morning at 11.30 o'clock from the parlors of C. H. Molloy & Sons. The service was held at the depot and the remains were sent to Haverhill on the 12 o'clock train. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery there, under the direction of C. H. Molloy & Sons.

DENAUT—The funeral of Hubert Denaut took place yesterday from his home, 749 Merrimack street, and was largely attended. A solemn funeral mass was sung at St. Joseph's church. Rev. Fr. Dubreuil, O. M. I., officiated, with Rev. Fr. Lamotte and Ouellette, O. M. I., as deacon and sub-deacon. At the offertory, Miss Blanche Dextra sang "Gounod's 'Pie Jesu,'" Frank Gourdau sang "O Christe," and Dr. Geo. E. Caisse sang "O Mortem Passions." Frank Gourdau directed and Joseph A. Bernard played the organ. The bearers were Hilarie Dozois, Hormidas Arivals, Algie Polesant, Honore Mayrand, Pierre Bouguet, Alphonse Hibeault, Mose Gervais and John T. Vincent.

A number of beautiful floral offerings. Among those present at the services were Sylvie Denaut of Toronto, a brother of the deceased, and Mrs. Therien of North Adams, a sister. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, and Rev. Fr. Dubreuil, O. M. I., officiated at the grave. Undertaker Amede Archambault had charge.

FRECHETTE—The funeral of Elizabeth M. Frechette took place yesterday afternoon from the warehouses of Undertakers Peter H. Savage. Services were held at the Immaculate Conception church, Rev. Fr. McBray, O. M. I., officiating. The bearers were William H. Shaw, Leandre Frechette, Joseph Frechette and Frank Barner. Among the floral tributes were sprays of roses and bouquets from friends. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery in charge of Undertaker Peter H. Savage.

O'MALLEY—The funeral of George S. O'Malley was held yesterday afternoon from his residence, 232 Westford street. At 2.30 o'clock services were conducted by Rev. A. P. Wedge, assisted by Rev. Mr. Shattuck. There was singing by Mrs. Horace Hansen and Miss Duncan, and the bearers were Burton H. Wiggin, Clarence Kimball, Nathan Flanders and A. Barron. Burial was in the Edison cemetery. Undertaker C. M. Young had charge.

CRAFTS—The funeral of Mrs. Mary Crafts took place yesterday afternoon at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. P. McKissock, 65 Stevens street. Rev. E. Kenyon of the Chelmsford Street Free Baptist church officiated and the bearers were W. B. F. McKissock, Robert McKissock, John Sargent and Stephen Russell. Burial was in the Edison cemetery. Undertaker J. A. Weinbeck had charge.

MARTIN—The funeral services of Mrs. Beatrice J. Martin, who died June 18 in Georgia, were held yesterday afternoon at the Edison cemetery. Rev. William K. Gardner of Quincy officiating. Burial was in the Edison cemetery, in charge of Undertaker Young.

CYLINDER CARRIED AWAY.

NEWPORT, R. JOHN P. MAHONEY

Well Known Citizen Passed Away

In the death of ex-Assessor John P. Mahoney, the archdiocese of Boston loses a noted advocate of the cause of temperance of many years' standing; the Hibernians of New England, one of their leading members, the city of Lowell a well-known and highly respected citizen, and the family of the deceased, a loving husband and devoted father.

The deceased served the city faithfully. For 18 years as principal assessor, two years as registrar of voters, and two years as a member of the city council. He was a well known figure throughout Middlesex county, being two years president of the C. T. A. U. of the archdiocese of Boston, during which time his voice was heard in every city and town in Middlesex county advocating the cause of temperance.

At the head of the A. O. H. for four years, as county president of Middlesex, then elected state secretary of the Massachusetts order of A. O. H., which position he held until compelled to resign on account of the illness which culminated in his death.

During his connection with the A. O. H., he represented Massachusetts in five different conventions, at Detroit, Michigan; Trenton, N. J.; Denver, Colorado; Boston, and Saratoga.

The local organizations to which he belonged are the Knights of Columbus, the Celtic association and Division 23, A. O. H.

The funeral will take place Monday morning at 8.15 o'clock from his late residence, 41 Butterfield street. A high mass of requiem will be celebrated at nine o'clock at St. Patrick's church. Friends are requested not to send flowers. The funeral will be under the direction of Funeral Director Peter H. Savage.

BRYAN WILLING

That Sullivan Should Be Running Mate

OMAHA, Neb., June 27.—A special to the Bee from Des Moines, Ia., says:

Hon. Jerry R. Sullivan today received a letter from W. J. Bryan saying that the suggestion of Mr. Sullivan for vice president on the democratic ticket met with his approval; that he knew the reason why Mr. Sullivan should not be named for vice president and knew that he was eminently fitted for the position. He assures Mr. Sullivan that if his ambition runs in that direction he will be glad to add his name to the available list. Mr. Sullivan will second the nomination of Bryan at the democratic convention at Denver, having been selected for that honor by Mr. Bryan himself.

FIRE ALARM

FROM BOX 151 ON SO. CANTON STREET.

The alarm from box 151 at 10.47 this forenoon was for a fire in an 4th barrel in South Canton street. The only damage was the loss of the barrel.

A reporter for The Sun was at the Gorham street engine house when the alarm sounded from box 151 and so quick were the movements of the firemen that one team was in the street before the full number was in. The Gorham street house answers to numbers 151 and 152 and when the "beat" struck it was all off for that house and the team was returned to the fire house. It was too quick a movement on the part of the firemen, something that is very rare.

ACCUSED JURY

MISCONDUCT IS THE CHARGE AGAINST THEM.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 27.—Misconduct of the jury after the case was submitted to it, amounting to a barter of the liberty of Frederick Hyde and Joost H. Schneider of San Francisco, to affect an agreement upon a verdict, is alleged by Hyde and Schneider, recently convicted of conspiracy to defraud the government of public lands. The supplemental reason made public in the criminal court today charges that the verdict was the result of an agreement among the jurors that if some of their number who held a different view would agree to convict the two men other jurors would vote to acquit Benson and Diamond.

GUILTY OF LARCENY

Alfred St. Dennis Sent to Jail for Ten Months

Alfred St. Dennis, well known to the police, was arrested this morning by Inspector John Walsh on warrants charging him with larceny. When arraigned in court he was charged with being drunk, also for the larceny of a clock, a coat and pair of pantaloons the property of George Pagalus, also the larceny of two coats, a pair of pantaloons and vest, the property of Nicholas Metropoulos.

St. Dennis pleaded guilty to all three complaints. He was sentenced to five months on each of the larceny charges and the case of drunkenness was placed on file.

St. Dennis has been before the court on ten different occasions and on five of those the charges against him were larceny.

Held in $500.

Benjamin Handlett, aged 24 years, was arrested yesterday afternoon about 5.30 o'clock on a charge of drunkenness and assault on Mary F. Blane, aged ten years. The mother of the girl had the warrant issued and the arrest was made by Patrolman Peter Cowley.

In court this morning Handlett pleaded guilty to being drunk, and not guilty to assault. The government asked for a continuance till Tuesday morning and it was granted, Handlett being held under $50 bonds.

PLACED ON PROBATION.

Arthur Dufresne was charged with the larceny of food valued at $10. It seems that Dufresne had been boarding at the Quincy House in Lee street and jumped his board bill. He was placed on probation providing he paid the $10 within six weeks.

THE DRUNKS.

The case of Michael Sullivan, charged with drunkenness and assault and battery, was continued till July 6.

Albany Perry, a third offender, was sent to the state farm.

Michael F. Sexton made his third appearance and he will spend the next four months in jail.

John J. Leary received a suspended sentence of four months in jail.

Joseph Quinn and John J. O'Hara, second offenders, were fined $5 each.

BAILEY FAMILY QUINN IS GUILTY

Held Reunion at Amesbury Yesterday Convicted of Assaulting Martin Calnin

AMESBURY, June 26.—The Bailey family of the United States met here yesterday, 200 strong in its 15th annual reunion. The business session was held at the Union Congregational church, which is not far from the house in which John Bailey, the founder of the family, lived, when he settled in Amesbury in 1835.

Representatives were present from nearly every state in the Union. In the absence of President Nathan O. Bailey of Providence, the Hon. Hollis Bailey of Cambridge presided. At noon, dinner was served by the ladies of the church. The afternoon was spent in making short pilgrimages to the home of John Bailey, Bailey's hill, and Golgotha, the first cemetery in Amesbury, where the founder of the family is buried.

Officers elected today were: President, the Hon. Charles O. Bailey, Newbury; vice-presidents, John A. Bailey of Lowell, J. W. Bailey of Somerville, Horace W. Bailey of Newbury, Vt., Solon V. Bailey of Cambridge, George E. Bailey of Everett, William F. Bailey of Brooklyn, Volney C. Bailey of Detroit, Edmund P. Bailey of Chicago; secretary, Edward A. Bailey of Lexington; treasurer, Hollis P. Bailey, Cambridge; auditor, Walter E. Robey, Waltham.

Mr. John A. Bailey, who was elected vice president at yesterday's reunion is the well known editor of Ayer's almanac and a resident of Columbia street, this city.

CLERKS' OUTING

Employees of the Boston Office at Lakeview

Mass. Electric Co.'s Employees Entertained

The clerks of the Boston office of the Massachusetts Electric companies, are enjoying an outing at Lakeview park this afternoon. The affair is given by the railway company and Supt. Thomas C. Lees of division two, with headquarters in this city, and the local clerks are the entertainers.

The clerks, men and women, to the number of about fifty left Boston at one o'clock on a special car and came to this city by the way of Reading, arriving here at 3:15 o'clock.

At the grounds the various points of interest and amusement places were taken in. Boating, cantering and bowling were also enjoyed.

That the company decided to do the thing-up in royal style was very evident for the clerks had the run of the place, anything and everything being free. A blue tag printed in gold with a golden tassel was worn by the clerks. One side of the card bore the inscription: "Outing of Boston Office Clerks of the Massachusetts Electric Companies, at Lowell and Lakeview park, June 27, 1908. Committees of Superintendent Division Two."

On the reverse side was what tickled the clerks: "This card will be honored at the theatre, dance hall, roller coaster, bowling alleys, penny arcade, sliding horse carousal, rolling ball game, soda fountain, for use of canoes and row boats. In the arcade call at cashier's desk for 'tassels'."

At 4:30 o'clock an excellent dinner was served in the dining hall by the D. L. Page Co.

The return trip will be made during the early evening, the special car returning to Boston by the way of Woburn.

JACOB SLEEPER

EXPECTED TO REACH CUBA TOMORROW

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Jacob Sleeper, secretary of legislation, and Lieut. Francis Ruggles, military attaché at Caracas, will probably arrive at Guantanamo, Cuba, tomorrow. They probably will be able to arrive here next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Mr. Sleeper will doubtless bring information of service to the state department. Until he arrives no further action is expected on the part of the American government although steps may be taken at any time by President Castro that will make some procedure necessary.

BIG FIGHT

FOR THE GUBERNATORIAL NOMINATION IN TENNESSEE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 27.—The campaign for the democratic gubernatorial nomination between former Senator Carmick and Gov. Patterson closed last night and today the primary is being held throughout the state. Carmick, who stands for a state-wide prohibition, has the support of the Woman's Christian Temperance union. The liberal element in state is solidly behind the governor. Some of the most prominent women in Nashville accompanied by children paraded the streets of Nashville singing temperance songs. Hundreds of them are at work at the polls. At various points in the city prayers are being offered for a prohibition victory.

MADE AN ASCENSION

NORTH ADAMS, June 27.—A. H. Morgan and J. T. Wade, both of Cleveland, O., made an ascension in the balloon Sky Pilot from Aero park here today. Allan R. Hawley of New York piloting the balloon.

There was hardly a breath of air stirring, and although the balloon rose to an altitude of more than 7000 feet and remained in the air for more than an hour and a half the aeronauts were barely able to get across Hoosac mountain.

TWO ARRESTED

Following Bachelor Dinner at Binghampton

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., June 27.—As a result of a bachelor dinner given in this city last night by Mackey Wells of Milwaukee, Wis., who is to wed Miss Alida Carter of New York today, Geo. M. Orr of Worcester, Mass., the groomsmen, and Person Wells of Milwaukee, were arrested last night. It is stated that after the dinner they proceeded to celebrate and a number of broken windows were found in their wake. Patrolman Clapper warned them to desist as they were about to enter an auto left standing near the curb. According to the patrolman, they made some impudent remarks and Mr. Wells was placed under arrest. Orr, it is charged, then struck the officer, freeing his companion. Two officers caught Wells and later Orr came to the police station to express his opinion of the arrest and was detained. Bail was furnished and today fines of $100 and $25 were imposed and paid.

OUT ALL NIGHT

"Peab" Thought He Had Lost Outfit

A young man and woman called at the livery stable of O. W. Peabody in Warren street at midnight last night and the young man engaged a horse and carriage, stating to the night man that he would return in a short time with the outfit. The couple failed to return at eight o'clock this morning when Mr. Peabody called at the stable and the night man reported the matter.

Mr. Peabody immediately notified the police that a young woman of this city, accompanied by a young man, whose name he did not know, had failed to return with the rig and asked for the police to be on the lookout for the horse and carriage.

The police failed to locate the outfit or the couple, but at noon today three boys drove up to the stable with the horse and carriage and informed Mr. Peabody that a young woman had met them on Cabot street and told them to bring the rig to the stable.

FIVE BIG CREWS

To Face at Poughkeepsie Today

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 27.—All Poughkeepsie rose with the sun today to welcome perfect weather for the intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson in which the crews of Columbia, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Syracuse were entered to compete. Weather and water conditions this morning were calculated to satisfy the most capricious coach or oarsman. Hundreds arrived here during the morning keen and eager to witness the contests. Rarely in the long history of these intercollegiate regattas has there been one in which rowing sharps were so widely at variance in their opinions as to the outcome. The result was that Syracuse, Columbia and Pennsylvania were almost equal favorites; but the other two, Cornell and Wisconsin, were nevertheless not without their ardent followers. With every promise of weather and water conditions holding the coaches indicated that Cornell's record for the four mile contest of 18 minutes, 50 seconds, made in 1901 might be nearly approached.

Coach Courtney frankly said that Cornell's best time over the course in practice was 19 minutes and 27 seconds and indicated that he did not believe this time was fast enough to return Cornell a winner. Pennsylvania and Syracuse are said to have made better time than this in their private dashes over the varsity course.

The first race, scheduled for 3 a. m., is for the university four oared shells over a two mile course for the Kennedy challenge trophy. Four crews are entered—Syracuse, Cornell, Columbia and Pennsylvania.

The second race, scheduled for 3:45 p. m., is for freshmen eight oared shells over the same two mile course for the stewards cup. Five crews are scheduled to start, Syracuse, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Cornell and Columbia. The university eight oared shell, the big event of the regatta, will start at 5 p. m., wind and water permitting.

AN OUTING

ENJOYED BY MEMBERS OF PRIMITIVE METHODIST CHURCH

The members of the Primitive Methodist church of Gorham street are enjoying an outing at Milligan's grove this afternoon. Four special cars laden with men, women and children, left the church at two o'clock and followed the 215 Wilmington car to the grove.

AT WILLOW DALE

The members of the Swedish Methodist church are having an outing today at Willow Dale.

WENT TO REVERE

Hector Bislin, of 169 Salem street, conducted a party to Revere beach this morning, the special car leaving the square at 8:45 o'clock.

YOUNG MAN AND A BOY FELL INTO RIVER

DERBY, Conn., June 27.—Herbert Moore, aged 18 and Clarence Smith, colored, aged 8, were drowned here today. Moore with Young Smith on his shoulders was standing on a rock which is used for diving when he lost his balance, both falling into the river. Neither boy could swim.

DIAMOND NOTES

Fall River once more.

Rivard and Manager Sharrott had a mix-up during the game and Sharrott ordered Rivard off the bench. Napoleon refused and Sharrott called a police officer whereupon he went. Later he was suspended and fined $10.

The meeting of the O'Briens, umpire and manager, was brief and to the point.

Paddy Duff and Vandergriff made two very amateurish plays yesterday and both lost on them. In Duff's case out to Howard who threw back to first but his foot on the bag and the double play was completed. But instead of that he waited for the runner and attempted to tag him out and the latter made a "get away" slide and Vandergriff tagged the empty air. Vandergriff's case was on a force out at third. He got the ball ahead of the runner and instead of making the base he went for the runner who slid under a hot liner.

Greenwell knocked down a hot liner with the bare hand yesterday that only few pitchers would tackle. The play shut off a run.

THE AVERAGES

Of the High School League Players

In the high school league race just closed Joe Ferrin of the Lawrence high team led at the bat with the remarkably high average of .412. Rowley Vaughn of Haverhill was a close second with .405. Brickett of Haverhill easily earned the slugging honors of the league for exactly six of his 11 hits were for extra bases.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

The steady betterment of local ordinances regulating the use of motor vehicles in cities throughout the eastern states is shown by the recent action of the borough council of Media, Pa. Hereafter automobilists will be permitted to drive their cars through that place at the rate of ten miles an hour along the streets and at seven miles an hour when rounding corners.

M. H. Franklin, treasurer of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers, has decided to go into this year's Glidden tour, though he had abstained from going into the affair in any previous year. His reason for not entering former Glidden tours is in brief as follows:

"This is the first time in the history of the Glidden tour that the Franklin car has been represented, the reason heretofore given being that the Glidden tour, while no doubt allowing contestants an opportunity to demonstrate some of the good points of their machines, did not to any great extent prevent the less able cars from qualifying in a manner which would cause it to appear that they were equal to their more worthy competitors; in short, it has up to this time been looked upon as more of a tour than a reliability contest, this however is not true of the coming event, which on account of the penalization system is more severe and proves better the points claimed for the entrant's car."

Mr. Franklin received No. 12 and Nos. 13 and 14 were assigned to John Wilkinson and G. H. Stilwell, who also entered Franklins, all three cars being entered as a team to represent the Automobile club of Syracuse. F. A. Barton has entered a Franklin runabout as a contestant for the Howar trophy.

YOUNG DEER

SEEN TO CROSS MIDDLESEX STREET TODAY.

That deer are very plentiful in the immediate vicinity of Lowell is being shown every day. This morning shortly before eight o'clock a deer came up from the river at Middlesex Village, crossed Middlesex street and went through the Pratt estate and into the woods beyond Princeton street. An electric car on its way to Lowell was passing at the time and the motorman stopped the car so that all on board had a good look at the pretty little deer as he covered the distance between the river and his wood home.

OUR PARK SYSTEM

Judge Pickman Talks Enthusiastically of Its Improvement

In the course of an interview with Judge Pickman of the park commission on the subject of the work of the park department, yesterday, the judge made the following interesting statement:

There is no city in this state and perhaps I may include the whole country that offers less to the average citizen than does Lowell. All that the citizens and tax payers get is from the library and the parks. There are no swimming places, no art galleries, no lecture courses, no great playgrounds, and all they get in the way of culture comes through the library and the parks. Thousands of our citizens and their families are compelled to remain at home during vacation period because they haven't the money to take a vacation amid other scenes, and the city in my opinion should attempt to benefit them and provide for their health and morals.

Judge Pickman is an enthusiast on the subject of a more extensive park system and more playgrounds, gymnasia and the like and he would emulate the example of Ex-Mayor Quincy of Boston in impressing upon the citizens the actual need of these improvements. Judge Pickman has made a study of Boston's great system of parks and gymnasia and talks most interestingly on the subject.

MONUMENT SQUARE PARK.

When asked for his views as to the extension of Lowell's park system, Judge Pickman said: "In the first place let us consider the subject of Monument square as it is now before the city council. Shortly after city hall

CLEVELAND BURIED

Brief and Simple Was Service Over Body of Former President

Body Lowered Into the Grave as Sun Was Sinking in the West—Strong Guard of Soldiers to Protect Pres. Roosevelt—Four Clergymen Assisted at the Services

PRINCETON, N. J., June 27.—Graveside services for the body of President Cleveland were held at 6 o'clock this morning.

At 6 o'clock, just as the sun was sinking in the west, a distinguished company silently watched as the body was lowered into the grave. Then the simple burial service of the Presbyterian church was read, and before the last of the carriages in the cortege had driven up to the path leading to the burial place the benediction had been pronounced and the members of the family, President Roosevelt and others who had gathered about the grave, were leaving the cemetery. Many of the personal friends of the dead statesman lingered about the spot which was to mark his last resting place and each in turn was permitted to cast a shovelful of earth into the grave.

OF SIMPLEST CHARACTER.
Agreeable to the wishes of Mrs. Cleveland, the services both at the house and at the cemetery were of the simplest character. An invocation, scriptural readings, a brief prayer and the reading of Wordsworth's poem, "Character of the Happy Warrior," constituted the services at the house, while the reading of the burial service at the grave was brief and impressive.

Although the funeral was of a strictly private nature, those in attendance numbered many distinguished citizens, including President Roosevelt, Gov. Fort of New Jersey, Gov. Hughes of New York, Gov. Hoke Smith of Georgia, a member of President Cleveland's cabinet; officials of the Equitable life assurance society, members of the Princeton university faculty, friends and neighbors.

Mr. Cleveland was buried with all the simplicity and privacy that he himself

CLEAR THE COMPLEXION OVER NIGHT

Pimples, Rash, Eruptions, Etc., Quickly Eradicated by New Skin Remedy.

Since its discovery one year ago, the new skin remedy, has, in its extraordinary accomplishments, exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the eminent specialist who gave it to the world. It has cured thousands of cases of eczema and eradicated facial and other disfigurements of years standing. The terrible itching attending eczema is stopped with the first application, giving proof of its curative properties at the very outset.

In less serious skin affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, blackheads, and barber's itch, etc., results show after an overnight application, only a small quantity being required to effect a cure. Those who use posium for these minor skin troubles can now avail themselves of the special 50-cent package, recently adopted to meet such needs. Both the 50-cent package and the regular $2 jar may now be obtained in Lowell at Falls & Burkinshaw's, Carter & Sherburne's, and other leading drug stores.

Samples for experimental purposes may be had free of charge by writing direct to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York city.

of Mrs. Cleveland as the impressive final words were spoken. The services lasted less than five minutes.

The ceremonies were presided over by President Roosevelt with Secretary Loeb and several secret service men, who attended him, were driven to the railroad station where he entered his private car and remained until the train pulled out at 6:30 o'clock when he appeared on the rear platform and acknowledged the cheers and good-byes of the crowd at the station.

Mrs. Cleveland and the immediate members of the family returned to Westland while the majority of the guests went to the Princeton inn, where light refreshments were served with Mrs. Russell of Princeton as hostess.

Governors Hughes, Fort and Smith left the city soon after the ceremony. Several photographers in their eagerness to photograph Governor Hughes and other distinguished guests upon their arrival, refused to comply with the order of the guardsmen to fall within the lines, and it was not until one of the troopers rode over to the scene that the photographers desisted. At the station shortly before his departure, Governor Hughes, good naturedly, posed for a score of camera men. The governor left for New York in the private car of George Westinghouse, which brought Mr. Westinghouse, Paul Morton and a number of representatives of the Equitable Life Assurance society.

VISITORS ARRIVE.
As early as two o'clock distinguished visitors began to arrive. Among the first were Secretary George E. Cortelyou and former United States Senator James Smith. General James G. Wilson and Hilary Herbert followed soon after. The guests were received on the terrace of the house of Prof. John Hibben and Cleveland F. Bacon, nephew of Mr. Cleveland.

Governor Charles E. Hughes was the first state executive to arrive. As he stepped from his carriage all the other assembled officials rose to greet him.

The guests were received into the house at 4 o'clock. Jesse Lynch Williams, Henry J. Van Dyke Jr., and William H. Edwards of Princeton ushered the visitors to seats in various parts of the house. In the reception room with the casket were Mrs. Cleveland and the children and relatives and the officiating clergymen. As each clergyman delivered his part of the service he stood at the door of the reception room so that he could be heard by all.

On the casket were flowers and an ivory wreath from Nassau hall.

The floral offerings were conveyed to the cemetery before the procession started from Westland and were arranged about the plot.

HEAVY POLICE GUARD.
For over an hour before the services and until President Roosevelt left the Cleveland home the streets and cemetery were carefully guarded by miles of police. The Monmouth troops of Red Bank and the Trenton companies of the Second regiment, which constituted the visiting militia, in addition to the local company, left for their respective stations last night.

Soon after the grave was opened the cemetery was opened to the public and the crowds, which up to that time had been denied admittance, surged into the grounds to view the grave and floral display.

MONUMENT TO CLEVELAND.

GIVING OUT

The Struggle Discourages Many a Citizen of Lowell

Around all day with an aching back; Can't rest at night; Enough to make any one "give out." Doan's Kidney Pills will give renewed life. They will cure the backache; Cure every kidney ill.

Here is Lowell proof that this is so: Miss Mary Enright, of 26 Thordike st., Lowell, Mass., says: "In the spring of 1903 I recommended Doan's Kidney Pills after procuring them at Ellingwood & Co.'s drug store. My brother at that time was having considerable trouble from backache and kidney complaint, and I understood most all who follow his occupation as a painter, have more or less trouble from these organs. This remedy was just what he needed and the backache was quickly ended and the kidneys restored to a good healthy condition. I have heard him speak of Doan's Kidney pills many times during the past seven years, and he always speaks of them in the highest terms of praise."

BOY KIDNAPPED

He Was Taken Away in An Auto

Strangers Managed to Make Their Escape

NORTH HAMPTON, N. H., June 27.—Francis Robert Drake, 5½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford S. Drake, was forcibly carried away by two strange men who appeared, from nobody knows where, at the home of the child's grandmother, Mrs. Justin E. Drake, near the bridge over the eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad about 11 o'clock this morning.

It is believed the abduction of the sunny-haired little fellow is the outcome of domestic trouble between his father and mother, who have been living apart about two years.

The father is at present in Chicago and the grandmother is of the opinion that the men who carried little Francis off knew of his absence.

The grandmother's story of the abduction is that shortly before 11 o'clock a two-seated automobile, containing two men, stopped in front of the house, apparently as though it had broken down. One of the men she describes as of light complexion and wearing a long linen coat, the other dark, both wearing the goggles so common to automobilists.

One of the men at the time were playing little Francis, the abducted boy, Joshua, aged 10; Marion, aged 9, and Dorothy, aged 5, children of some neighbors.

The men in the automobile after watching the little group a few minutes asked Mrs. Drake, who had appeared on the scene if they could have some water for the automobile, and how far it was to the nearest telephone station.

When told it was about a half-mile away, they said they would be going, but invited the children to take a ride with them.

Mrs. Drake without suspicion consented and the children trooped into the automobile, much pleased with the prospect of a ride.

The continuation of the story of the abduction is furnished by little Joshua, who says that before the automobile had gone very far the man who wore the long linen coat asked Francis if his name were not Francis Robert Drake and the little fellow replied that it was. Meaning the automobile had kept on until breakfast hill about a mile from the Drake homestead, was reached.

Here, according to Joshua's story, the automobile was stopped and the man in a linen coat, who did all the talking, gave him a quarter of a dollar and asked him to go to a house near by and get a wrench. He got out and his two little sisters followed him, as well as Francis, but hardly had the children alighted from the automobile when the man in the linen coat got out and quickly snatching up Francis, again entered the automobile and gave his companion the signal to start.

Joshua overheard little Francis protesting in a childish way at being separated from his companions, and he heard his captor assure the little fellow that it would be all right and that he would soon rejoin them.

All this time the automobile was making away with the boy, and in a few minutes it was out of sight over the hill.

Joshua and his two sisters, understanding little of the real purport of the carrying away of Francis, then made their way home, arriving shortly after noon.

Here they quickly told their story and Mrs. Drake at once drove to the nearest telephone station and notified Col. John H. Bartlett at Portsmouth of the kidnapping, and the police of neighboring places were warned to be on the lookout for the boy and his captors.

With the long start that it had, however, the automobile got safely away and when the alarm was given was undoubtedly well out of the district, as up to a late hour no trace of it had been secured.

ON STREET WORK

The Committee Recommends Improvements

Hall Street Will Not Yet Be Accepted

After a tour of inspection of streets where improvements had been petitioned for, the committee on streets met last evening and disposed of a raft of business. The committee voted to recommend the appropriation of $7000 for macadamizing streets.

The committee voted to accept Beaulieu street, from West Sixth street to Victor street, and Florence avenue from Pine to Westford street.

The petition that Christian street be laid out and accepted was laid on the table and it was voted to accept Eaton street from London to Manchester streets after the street had been put to grade. Bowdoin, Whidden and Bourne streets will be accepted when they have been put to grade.

The sidewalk in Dalton street was accepted and it was voted to pave Westford street from Wilder to Chester street with Hassam paving.

The petitioners who petitioned that Hall St. be accepted were given leave to withdraw. The same action was taken on the petition that Grand street be watered, and the petition that Parkview avenue be macadamized.

The petition for a cinder sidewalk in Cogroove street and the petition to macadamize Methuen street from Beacon street to the city limits were referred to the superintendent of streets. To the superintendent were also referred the petitions to macadamize Union street and for watering Tenth and Beacon streets.

PROPOSED CHANGES IN TEXT BOOKS

THE SCHOOL BOARD, IT IS ALLEGED, IS ABOUT TO CHANGE THE SYSTEM OF WRITING AS WELL AS THE SYSTEM OF MUSIC, OR, PERHAPS, IF IT FAILS, TO PUT THROUGH THE PROPOSED CHANGE IN THE MUSIC SYSTEM.

OBJECTION IS RAISED TO THE VERTICAL SYSTEM AND THE FIRST CHANGE IS TO A SEMI-SLANT SYSTEM. SHOULD THAT BE ADOPTED THERE WOULD SOON BE AN OPPORTUNITY FOR MR. MCGRAFT TO SUGGEST ANOTHER CHANGE, BACK TO THE SPENCERIAN OR ORIGINAL SLANT SYSTEM.

FINANCIALLY, THE CITY IS NOT IN A POSITION TO MAKE CHANGES IN THE SYSTEM OF MUSIC OR THAT OF WRITING THIS YEAR. BOTH HAVE SERVED VERY WELL FOR A CONSIDERABLE TIME AND THEY ARE JUST AS GOOD TODAY AS THEY WERE ON THE FIRST DAY OF THEIR ADOPTION EVEN IN COMPARISON WITH LATER SYSTEMS. WE NEVER ADMIRER THE VERTICAL SYSTEM OF WRITING, WE ALWAYS FELT IT CLUMSY AND UNHANDY, BUT IT IS HERE AND WE ARE NOT PREPARED TO DISLODGE IT JUST AT PRESENT. IT IS SURPRISING TO WHAT AN EXTENT THE CHANGE IN A TEXT BOOK DISCOMMODES THE WORK OF A SCHOOL AND DISCONCERTS BOTH PUPILS AND TEACHERS.

THIS IS NO YEAR TO CHANGE TEXT BOOKS EVEN THOUGH THE CHANGE WERE NECESSARY. IN MUSIC THERE IS NO NEED OF A CHANGE; IN THE WRITING SYSTEM, WE BELIEVE, A MISTAKE WAS MADE WHEN VERTICAL WRITING WAS INTRODUCED. NOW, HOWEVER WE ARE ACQUAINTED WITH IT, WE HAVE BEEN TAUGHT TO USE IT AND IT WOULD BE A GREAT WASTE OF TIME FOR ANY PUPIL TO CHANGE TO A NEW SYSTEM OF WRITING. SUCH A SYSTEM SHOULD BE INTRODUCED GRADUALLY, PASSING WITH THE BABY CLASS FROM GRADE TO GRADE UPWARD SO THAT NO PUPIL WILL BE REQUIRED TO CHANGE HIS STYLE OF HANDWRITING. TO REQUIRE A PUPIL TRAINED TO THE VERTICAL TO CHANGE HIS STYLE WOULD BE THE HEIGHT OF ABSURDITY AND IMPOSITION.

THE OBLATE FATHERS OF THIS CITY ARE TO BE HEARTILY CONGRATULATED ON THE PURCHASE OF THE FRED AYER ESTATE FOR AN ORPHANAGE. NO BETTER ESTATE COULD BE FOUND IN LOWELL AND THERE IS NO OTHER CHARITABLE INSTITUTION MORE NEEDED IN LOWELL THAN AN ORPHANAGE.

THOSE WHO ATTEND THE POLICE COURT ARE NO STRANGERS TO THE HEART-RENDING SCENES ATTENDING THE SEPARATION OF PARENTS AND CHILDREN WHEN THE STATE STEPS IN AND TAKES CHARGE OF THE CHILDREN ON THE GROUND THAT THE PARENTS HAVE FAILED PROPERLY TO PROVIDE FOR THEM. CHILDREN IN SUCH CASES ARE ORPHANIZED BY LAW AND SENT TO HOMES FROM WHICH THEY ARE SELDOM HEARD OF AGAIN. IT IS A CRUEL THING TO DO BUT THE LAW ORDAINS IT AS A NECESSITY.

IT WOULD BE A REAL CHARITY IF THIS NEW ORPHANAGE WOULD ACCEPT SUCH CHILDREN AS WELL AS THOSE WHO HAD LOST THEIR PARENTS BY DEATH. THE CHILDREN IN THE ONE CASE ARE FULLY AS DESTITUTE AND AS HELPLESS AS IN THE OTHER, EQUALLY THE OBJECTS OF CHARITY.

OUR PARK SYSTEM

IT IS REFRESHING TO FIND A MEMBER OF THE PARK BOARD SO ENTHUSIASTICALLY IN FAVOR OF BEAUTIFICATION AND DEVELOPMENT ALONG POPULAR LINES AS IS JUDGE PICKMAN. AS INDICATED IN AN INTERVIEW WITH THAT GENTLEMAN PRINTED IN TODAY'S SUN.

LOWELL, IT IS TRUE, HAS NOT AS MANY PRIVILEGES FOR ITS PEOPLE AS MOST OTHER CITIES AND IT IS ONLY BY THE GRADUAL DEVELOPMENT OF A SYSTEM THAT THE NECESSARY RESULTS CAN BE OBTAINED. PATIENCE AND PERSEVERANCE ALONG THE RIGHT LINES WILL EVENTUALLY GIVE US A SYSTEM OF PUBLIC PARKS OF WHICH OUR CITY MAY WELL FEEL PROUD.

IT IS TO BE HOPED THAT LOWELL OFFICIALS WILL SOON LEARN TO LEAVE NO FOUNDATION FOR INDICTMENTS ON CRIMINAL CHARGES. WE HAVE HAD MANY CASES OF THAT KIND OF LATE AND SOME CONVICTIONS THAT REFLECT UPON OUR CITY'S GOOD NAME. IT IS NO CREDIT TO THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY TO SECURE INDICTMENTS ON FLimsy CHARGES. IT IS BESIDES A SOURCE OF EXPENSE TO THE COUNTY AS WELL AS TO THE DEFENDANTS.

SEEN AND HEARD

A Kansas girl is engaged to a Chicago young man and recently, upon returning from a visit at the home of his intended, the lover purchased two presents, one for his intended and one for her little brother. To his informant he sent a beautifully bound copy of "Lullie," and to the boy a fine baseball bat. In some inconceivable way both the accompanying notes and packages were exchanged with the result that the young lady received the baseball bat and the attached advice: "Please accept this small memento as a token of my regard. Take it out with the boys and develop your muscles. Earn to the spirit of the game and learn to hit hard. It may stand you in hand in later life. Take this bat, spit on your hands, walk up to the plate and paste the ball in the solar plexus. Learn to slide even if it does tear your trousers. Be game!" The boy will not tell what was in his letter because his sister refuses to trade presents. She is bearing to hit hard on the ground that it may stand her well in hand after she is married.

Now, what's de use o' Joshin' An' allus givin' dics, A-laughin' an' a-jokin' An' sayin' boys is pigs? Pa says me stumblin' rubber, Er gumerlastic stuff, An' says me legs is holter, I never gits enoug.

oldest painters in this city. He has for more than half a century been actively engaged in painting and has perhaps painted more houses in Lowell than any other member of the paint brush in this city. Another feature of old Uncle Abe's history is that he is the only surviving member of the old Lowell brigade band which went with the sixth regiment to Washington in '61. There are few men at his age who have or would have the courage to cross the country to establish a new home. The majority of men at his age consider that they are living on borrowed time, but not so with Uncle Abe. He is still up and coming with the young "uns." It is interesting to learn from him that he has been in the army and to describe the details that were made known by his friends that were thrown from windows, roofs of houses and other places of vantage.

In the Lazy Hills are trees of shade, By the dreaming Brooks of Sleep, And the rollicking River of Pleasure laughs, And gambols down the steep; But when the blasts of Winter come, The brooks and the river are frozen dumb.

Then woe to those in the Lazy Hills. When the blasts of Winter moan, Who strayed from the paths of a Bank Account And the path to a House of Their Own? These paths are hard in the summer heat, But in Winter they lead to a snug retreat. —Sam Walter Foss, born June 10, 1858.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

SPRINGFIELD'S NOVEL CELEBRATION

New Bedford Standard: Springfield has an ambitious Fourth of July program, including a chorus of eight hundred voices to sing in the open air, and a boy regatta, a cavalry, one and a half mile race, and a foot race, that it has drawn a great prize in the fact that a good part of the Buffalo Bill show will join the procession, though that show was given up the street parade as a means of advertising itself. Springfield restricts noise-making by explosives on Independence Day more rigorously than is the custom in most cities.

THE ARRAY OF COLLEGES.

Worcester Post: Statistics from the United States commissioner of education have interest at this season of commencements. He reports 622 institutions of higher learning for men in this country. Of these there have been 2200 or more students; 17 have 1000 or more and in 114 the average enrollment is above 200.

This above all others is the country of colleges. More than $23,000,000 has been contributed in private benefactions for their endowment in the 12 months just past. The largest amount, $4,300,000, has gone to the university of Chicago. Perhaps the wisest single benefaction is the one just announced of $500,000 by Mr. Phipps to Johns Hopkins university. The study of insanity, Maladies of the mind are playing an increasingly serious part in our civilization and in no branch of medicine has so little progress in diagnosis or treatment been made, whether because of the inherent obscurity of the subject or because of lack of adequate research. The results of Mr. Phipps' benefaction may some time help to show.

The number of inmates of the insane hospitals of the country is upwards of 200,000 and the annual cost of maintenance nearly $21,000,000.

APOTHEOSIS OF LAFOLLETTE.

New York Sun: The Hon. Henry Fire Cochems of Wisconsin, who nominated Battle Bob, may not have the voice of Knight of California, but he treated the convention to its first big empyrean rhetoric.

"Through all the years Robert M. La Follette has stood like a bold mountain about whose summit the hurricanes have raved in vain and upon whose base the angry waves have beat their surge, unshaken and unshakable." For ten years he has carried this war upon the point of his sword, and from the light that gleamed from his shining blade was lit the blaze that carried forward the war in Wisconsin, freed the heart of Roosevelt and today, like the face of the morning, is leading the national crusaders along the pathway of reform.

Mr. LaFollette may have had reason to consider himself the legitimate heir, but as a precursor and inspirer he must be loathsome to the great hordes and conveyor of other men's principles and words.

UNTHINKABLE.

Well Known Remedy That Absolutely Cures This Dread Disease.

No other disease is so painful as rheumatism. Uric Acid crystals are deposited in and about the joints, and that is called rheumatism. The only way in which this painful and dangerous disease can be absolutely cured is with Neuralgic Anodyne, a remedy that has an entirely different action from anything else.

Small doses are taken internally that reach the nerve centers and prevent the formation of Uric Acid. It is also rubbed on the affected parts, quickening and relieving the pain, reducing the rheumatic fever, and restoring health to the aching tissues and muscles. A large sized bottle of Neuralgic Anodyne costs but 25c, and it is so successful in curing rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, indigestion and relieving bruises and sprains that the proprietors, The Twentieth-Century Co., Portland, Me., authorize dealers everywhere to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

REPUBLICAN ESTIMATE OF CLEVELAND.

Haverhill Gazette: Whatever may be thought of Grover Cleveland's judgment, the honesty of his motives will hardly be questioned even in quarters that have been bitterly opposed to his theories and interpretation of the needs of the times. With old school notions and a firm belief that the financial ruin must needs be greased at the first sign of a flurry in the business sky, he acted sometimes in a manner that seemed arbitrary in quarters better informed. He had no sympathy with the growth of radicalism first in his own party and later as evidenced in the policies of President Roosevelt. Loyal to the last to the old standards of government, he refused to concede the effect of years and new conditions, and stood stubbornly against the progress of change. He was possessed, nevertheless, of many sterling qualities that will be remembered when the bitterness caused by some of his official acts have been forgotten.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

There are two hundred Indians in the Thirty-seventh. Being a rural corps the Haddamans are weak in strength and considerably more than half of them are without exception. At the time of the Toronto inspection in 1894 the Thirty-seventh had but seven companies. Of his own initiative Capt. Johnson, an Indian himself, came forward and organized a company of recruits from the Six Nations. He is captain of as keen a body of recruits as there is in the whole camp. His son is a lieutenant in the same company. Lieutenant Smith, who was one of the two natives of North America who went to the coronation from the Thirty-seventh, is an officer in the third company. He is a full-blooded Mohawk. All these servants of the king are well set officers of military bearing and clean-cut, expressive features.

"The cause of temperance is working great headway in Norway. We have adopted the local option policy with excellent results," said P. A. Andersen, a manufacturer of white paper, from Skien, Norway.

"Whenever the people of a certain district or county wish to abolish drinking houses an election is held at which all adult males in that territory are supposed to vote. If any are absent their votes are counted for prohibition. Another election cannot be held until after second time is ever taken when a community once has against license. Another thing that is against license is the fact that liquor cannot be bought except by the bottle, and requiring the purchaser to take the bottle to his home before using any of its contents."

Mrs. Sarah Tooley has written an account of the literary career of the Baroness Orcutt, which should be stimulating to writers. She began with detective stories. "Travelling one day on the top of an omnibus just before the Westbourne park station over the canal at that miserable corner of London, I looked down one of the most desolate streets I have ever known," the author says, "and it struck me what a number of mysterious, forbidden crimes must have been perpetrated down the ill lighted, squalid portions of mighty London." This led the baroness to write the detective stories told by "The Old Man in the Corner." When she had written "A Son of the People" she failed for a long time to find a publisher willing to accept the book, because the scene was laid in Hungary. When the "Scarlet Pimpernel" had been accepted as a play the publishers looked askance at the idea of bringing out a book by the same name. But the story has sold in a quarter of a million copies and has been translated into twelve languages. "A Son of the People" brought her a fortune, for through it the baroness was found to be the heir to the chateau and estate which her readers knew as Bideaskut.

Joaquin Miller lives on the hills overlooking San Francisco and the Golden Gate. He writes his verses lying in bed with a pencil and pad near him where he can look and read him while when the spirit moves him. The essential thing in poetry or prose, Mr. Miller claims, is to use as few and as simple words as possible. He calls attention to the fact that the Seamon on the Mount has only 203 words in it. He, for keeps any of his books about him, for he says, "They do not seem very good to me after I have finished them."

Charles Rann Kennedy has in hand a series of seven dramas in which the central themes are the conception of brotherly living, the destructive force of the love from the lie, the woman question, the child influence, the conflict of races and the ideals of freedom.

PROF. HAGGERTY

TO SPEND THREE MONTHS WITH THE MONKEYS.

NEW YORK, June 27.—For the next three months all communications for Professor Edwin E. Haggerty of Harvard should be addressed "Care of Monkey House, Bronx, Geological Park."

Beginning today, Professor Haggerty will start light housekeeping in the neat but inexpensive quarters that have been prepared for him in the sinian shed by Director Hornaday.

After 30 days' close association with the jungle king, Professor Haggerty expects to qualify as an interpreter of their language.

Professor Haggerty is the assistant of Professor Robert M. Yerkes of Harvard, an expert on animal life, and well up among the heavy hitters in the "ology league."

It was after a conference with his superior that Professor Haggerty considered the idea of spending his vacation among the monkeys.

IN WOODEN BOX

Macdonald, who has for the past four years been manager of the fruit stand at the Union station, arrived here yesterday and was accorded a splendid reception. Last evening a dozen of his friends invited him to Mr. Drew's house and when he arrived there he found his friends had collected and when he entered the dining room he was seized and greeted affectionately by all those present. Dinner was served and games of various kinds were enjoyed. Speeches were made by all those present and each extolled Mr. Macdonald because of his good fellowship. The following were present: Charles J. Jorling, Bob McArthur, Charles Hamilton, Geo. Rodrick, Ralph Bicknell, George Gray, John Coyne, William A. O'Connell, Neil Forham, William Foley and David Drew.

A Fitchburg Woman's Plan of Travel

FITCHBURG, June 27.—Mrs. Wilhelmina Tryon left yesterday concealed in a wooden box with a glass covering, her own invention, for Salisbury, N. C., where she will seek to restore her health.

Mrs. Tryon has been in ill health for a number of months, suffering from nervous prostration and bronchitis. She has remained in her apartments at 197 Day street for the past year, stopping in a room where she refused to allow any fresh air to enter. She has been kept in bed, and was covered with heavy blankets and other bed clothing. She complained of the cold air even with the temperature at 80.

Several weeks ago she conceived the idea of traveling to the south in a large wagon, but when she was told that this was impossible, she invented the plan which was adopted yesterday.

A few weeks ago she called in a carpenter and gave him instructions to build a large wooden extension case with glass doors, the case to be upholstered, in which she could recline while riding in the train to Salisbury. The box was completed Thursday and was taken to her room for inspection. After a few changes were made Mrs. Tryon said that she was ready for the journey.

She was placed in the box, the doors were closed and the box was placed in a baggage car, and she was started on her journey.

Mrs. Tryon is a member of the German Plaster company, of which her husband is president, and she has lived here about two years. She hopes to regain her health in the warm climate of North Carolina.

Her method of traveling attracted a large number of persons to the railroad station.

Of Council of Deliberation
of the MasonsCHAS. C. HUTCHINSON
PRESIDINGA List of the Officers Elected

In the Masonic temple in Boston yesterday afternoon the 37th annual session of the council of deliberation was held, with a large representation of members. Illustrations Charles C. Hutchinson, of Lowell, 33d degree, commander-in-chief and deputy for this state, presiding.

Reports from the four Scottish rite bodies from which the council is constituted showed a gratifying increase in enrollment and marks of progress in all other directions.

Memorials were read for distinguished members of the council who had passed away since the last meeting. They included Percival Lowell Everett, 33d degree, grand master of the grand lodge, A. P. and A. M., 1875-77; Walter J. Cutting, of Pittsfield, 33d degree, past grand master of the grand commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island; William H. Guild of Boston, 33d degree; Albert E. Gates of Worcester, 33d degree; Charles A. Welch of Cohasset, 33d degree, grand master of the grand lodge 1878-80. The tribute to the first named was presented by Past Grand Master Sereno D. Nickerson, who is the only survivor of those who occupied the east in grand lodge prior to 1880 and who was the immediate predecessor of Grand Master Everett.

Rev. Dr. Seward, grand minister of state and orator, delivered an address taking for his subject "The Three Great Lights," and it was full of thoughtful sentiments touching on a theme so important and inspiring to the fraternity.

The following is a list of officers chosen:

Illustrations Charles C. Hutchinson, of Lowell, 33d degree, commander-in-chief and deputy for Massachusetts; Illustrations Edward G. Graves of East Boston, 33d degree, grand first lieutenant; Illustrations Charles A. Estey of East Boston, 33d degree, grand second lieutenant; Illustrations Rev. Dr. Joseph L. Seward of Allston, 33d degree, grand minister of state and orator; Illustrations Oliver A. Roberts of Melrose, 33d degree, grand prior; Illustrations Addison L. Osborn of Lynn, 33d degree, grand chancellor; Illustrations Daniel W. Lawrence of Medford, 33d degree, grand treasurer; Illustrations Benjamin W. Rowell of Lynn, 33d degree, grand secretary; Illustrations Harry C. Pollard of Lowell, 33d degree, grand engineer and architect.

RED NOSES

Do you suffer the embarrassment of carrying around an extremely red nose? or are you tortured with a red, blotchy or pimply face? If so, you are foolish to stand it long; it is the simplest and easiest thing in the world to get rid of. No matter what might have been the cause, the following harmless and inexpensive treatment will positively remove all traces of your embarrassment in from two to four weeks.

Get this prescription filled at any drug store: Clearola one-half ounce, either one ounce, Alcohol seven ounces. Mix and apply to the parts affected as often as possible, but morning and night anyway, allowing it to remain on as long as possible, never less than ten minutes, the longer the better, then you can wipe off the powdery film deposited on the skin.

You can get this put up at any Drug Store.

Tribesmen Believed to Have Killed Americans

MANILA, June 27.—No further word has been received from H. D. Everett of the Philippine forest service and Theodore N. Wakeley, a school teacher, reported to have been killed by hill tribesmen on the island of Negros.

Wakeley and Everett, with their servants and two native foresters, started from the town of Cabanatuan, on the mountainous island of Negros, in the early part of May, intending to examine the coal deposits in the hills about Mt. Tapast. To do this they left the beaten trail across the island, and since their departure from Cabanatuan nothing has been heard of them.

Officials of the town of Rals, on the same island, now report that the party was assailed in the hills by the wild tribesmen and murdered, and moreover, they claim to know the identity of the murderers.

Beyond this statement they give no details of the tragedy.

Forester A. Hearn of Manila has started for the scene of the murder, where he will join forces with the constabulary in going over the trail and adjacent country in the hope of finding the bodies of the murdered men and tracing down and arresting the murderers.

The constabulary force on the island has already established camps along the trail to facilitate the search.

STAR THEATRE

The past week some of the finest pictures made have been exhibited among them was seen Francesca da Rimini, a drama in the Shakespearean class and played by the best actors in the business.

The same high class drama and the cleanest and liveliest of comedy will be seen next week.

Billy Sully, black-faced comedian, will be the principal vaudeville attraction. His jokes are new and funny.

Two of the latest songs will be heard the first three days of the week. Babe Curry has been having great success in her singing lately and the songs have suited her perfectly.

J. C. Bell is much appreciated and his singing is always sure of a warm welcome.

The shows that are put on from week to week are superior and worth much more than the price of admission asked. There is proof of this in the fact that business continues good during these hot days.

The house is delightfully cool and refreshing at all times.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

Next week at Lakeview theatre the Adam Good company will offer a cracking good comedy drama of western life, "The Girl of Eagle Ranch," with Bessie Overton in the leading role.

A special production will be made as the play is of unusual merit and is bound to give pleasure to the patrons of this cool, commodious summer theatre. Every act will have special scenic settings and none of the little details that serve to make a complete production will be neglected. Miss Croston as "The Girl," has one of the best parts in her theatrical career, and all the members in her support will be seen in congenial roles. There will be a matinee every day except on Monday.

LAWN PARTY

HELD BY PARISH SOCIETY OF ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

A very pleasant lawn party was held Thursday night on the grounds about the residence of Mr. A. E. Moore, 161 Moore street, the affair being under the auspices of the Parish Aid society of St. John's church. The grounds were prettily decorated with Chinese and Japanese lanterns.

The attendance was large and a neat sum of money was realized. There were booths stationed about the grounds which were well patronized. The booths and attendants were as follows:

Lemonade, W. H. Choate, chairman; Geo. P. Parsons, James Crompton, O. O. Greenwood, A. E. Moore.

Cake table, Mrs. James Regan, chairman; Mrs. Chas. Ingalls, Mrs. W. S. Holt.

Ice cream, James Regan, Frank Pascale, Isaac B. Romaine.

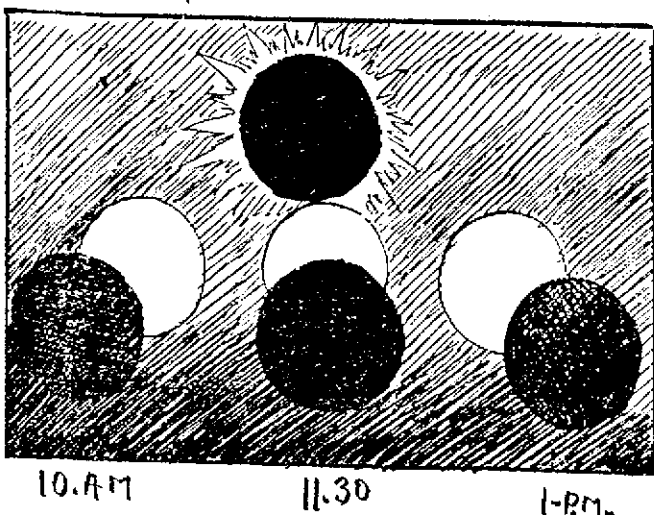

Card table, Misses H. Estelle Moore, chairman, Margaret Choate, Elizabeth Johnson, Emma Robinson, Bessie Connell, Pauline Jefferson, Grace Major.

Salted nut table, Mrs. Jessie Gordon.

Fortune table, Mrs. J. B. A. Johnson, chairman; Mrs. W. H. Choate, Mrs. O. O. Greenwood, Mrs. G. P. Parsons, Mrs. Chas. Ingalls, Mrs. W. S. Holt, Mrs. A. E. Moore.

The success of the party was due to the careful management of the following committee: Mrs. H. L. Whittely, chairman; Mrs. W. H. Choate, Mrs. O. O. Greenwood, Mrs. G. P. Parsons, Mrs. Chas. Ingalls, Mrs. W. S. Holt, Mrs. A. E. Moore.

And Everybody May Have a Look

Get your weather eye on the sun tomorrow between 10 a. m. and 1 p. m. and you will witness a real live eclipse for the moon will be out to put Old Sol on the blink tomorrow, and Sol's smiling visage will be temporarily enshrouded.

To Lowell sky gazers, the eclipse will be plainly visible. A dark patch will obscure the lower portion of the sun.

Down in Florida and Africa the moon will appear directly in the center of the sun, leaving a brilliant circle of light. Experienced sun gazers will resort to the good old method of looking through a smoked glass. This should be large enough to hold before both eyes. Even astronomers confess that it beats all other apparatus to a frazzle. The glass may be smoked over a gas flame, or preferably over a lamp with the chimney removed. No one should attempt to view the phenomenon with the naked eye.

The beauty of an eclipse is the fact that all can have a look without an admission fee.

The moon comes directly between the sun and the earth obscuring for a time a portion of the sun's disc. It is a great lesson in astronomy for the young and a sight that none should miss.

A BLIND WORKMAN RESEATING

RENOVATING MATTRESSES AT
THE BLIND.

WORK FOR BLIND

Unique Establishment
Opens in Lowell

On June 1 the Lowell Workshop for the Blind was opened at 98 Central street, and Lowell has the distinction of being the first city selected by the Massachusetts commission for the blind, in which to establish a workshop to be used exclusively for the employment of local blind men. Representatives of the commission visited the city in May, to decide upon eligible candidates for admission to the shop, and a suitable site. On June 1 the shop was opened at 98 Central street.

How best to procure employment for needy and worthy blind men in their own communities, was the problem to be solved by those in charge of the commission's employment bureau work. Obviously, the opening of a shop in which trades suitable for the blind, and the securing of the practical interest and patronage of the community, were the two factors which would assure its solution. Chair-seating in its various branches, with mattress and cushion renovation and making, were chosen as the initial features of the workshop.

Work has already been sent in to a degree sufficient to furnish employment to two or three men. Others are in line upon the waiting list, and their admission to the shop as wage-earners now depends solely upon a more extended patronage on the part of the citizens generally.

Upon the success of the Lowell Workshop for the Blind, as above outlined, depends not only the permanency of the enterprise, and the employment of a larger force of workers, but the introduction of a little later on or more other trades for blind artisans. The first will probably be shoe cobbling, in preparation for which the commission is now furnishing instruction in one of its industrial classes, to a Lowell blind man.

Revolutionists Made At-

EL PASO, Tex., June 27.—A special dispatch received here says a band of Mexican revolutionists attacked the town of Los Vacas, Mexico, early yesterday and some of the revolutionists are believed to have crossed into Texas.

The Texas sheriff wired the governor asking if he could arrest any fugitives coming into the state. The governor referred the matter to the attorney general, who held that the state officers could take no action, as the matter of political fugitives coming into the United States was a question for federal authorities.

OF DE MOLAY COMMANDERY, K. T.
WENT TO NARRAGANSETT PIER.

The members of De Molay commandery, Knights Templar, of Boston left with their wives yesterday for Narragansett Pier, R. I., where they will hold festivities till next Monday.

Among the special guests invited from the various commanderies there were from Pilgrim commandery of Lowell: Eminent Commander Harry G. Pollard and Mrs. Pollard, Senior Warden Arthur D. Prince and Mrs. Prince, Junior Warden Charles R. Goddard and Mrs. Goddard, and Sword Bearer Charles E. Bartlett and Mrs. Bartlett. Arrangements have been made for a most delightful outing. They will stop at Narragansett in the New Mathewson hotel, which will open for the first time to receive the Knights Templar and their party. The Waltham band has been engaged for the occasion.

EDWARD CONNORS

WAS PRESENTED WITH A POLICEMAN'S OUTFIT.

A number of the employees of the Boston and Northern street railway car-barn gathered at the barn yesterday afternoon and presented Mr. Edward J. Connors, the popular and highly esteemed electrician of the company, who was recently appointed to the local police force, with a policeman's outfit, consisting of a revolver and holster and a pair of hand-cuffs. The presentation speech was made by the superintendent of the works. Mr. Connors responded in a fitting manner, thanking his friends for the present and assured them that it would always remain a pleasant reminder of their good wishes.

After all wished him the best of success, the assembly adjourned.

Bilious Troubles

Bile causes no end of trouble. Sick headaches, bilious attacks, jaundice, constipation and many distressing ailments arise from an excess of bile, or from obstruction of the bile duct. Inactivity, sedentary occupations and indiscretion in feeding and drinking are bile blunders that need to be guarded against. When the liver is disordered the best bile correctives are because they relieve the overworked liver, and gently stimulate it when it is sluggish. These pills control the flow of bile, restore its right consistency, and work for the immediate and lasting benefit of the stomach, bowels and blood. Whenever a furred tongue, dull, yellowish eyes, nausea, or headache indicate bilious conditions, use Beecham's Pills at once, to correct the bile and

BEECHAM'S PILLS

TRAINING SCHOOL

ABLE ADDRESS BY
PROF. BALLIET

His Subject Was, "Interest in Education"

The Training school graduating exercises were held at Associate hall last night and the event was witnessed by a good number of relatives and friends of the graduates and friends of the school. The following named young women graduated: Misses Susan Florence Burbank, Clotilda Augusta Delany, Alice Mabelle French, Elizabeth Anna Gilson, Fannie Goodwin Jones, Cora Ethel Jones, Eleanor Jane Leachman, Charlotte Olive Lowe, Ellen Frances Lynch, Charlotte Ann Parsons, Alice Olive Stetkey, Grace May Thurber.

Mr. Burton H. Wiggin of the school committee spoke words of praise for the school, its mission and its work. The graduation address was delivered by Prof. Thomas M. Balliet, dean of the School of Pedagogy of New York University. Prof. Balliet was superintendent of the schools of Springfield for fifteen years before going to New York and his address was an able and an interesting one. He struck the keynote to his subject when he said that the great aim of education is reached when the child has been made to understand and to love what is good for him.

Prof. Balliet was introduced by Miss Edmund, principal of the school, as the leading student of the philosophy of education in the country.

PROF. BALLIET'S ADDRESS.

The speaker's subject was "Interest in Education" and he said in part: "The whole work of education, its effect upon the mind, may be summed up in the meaning and reach of interest, the word here meaning the feeling of joy and attention with which the mind turns to one thing, when another offers no charm."

"It is often said that a child is educated by what he does, not by what you do for him. In my mind this is a platitude. Self-activity only educates according to the saying, but it should be remembered that there are many forms of self-activity, and that this is certainly not true of all. The first is play, where the actuating motive is that of pure pleasure in doing without results, and not for what the doing accomplishes. Another kind is when the child is doing and partly for pleasure in the doing and partly for the pleasure in the result. A third form is when the duty is unpleasant but the feeling is strong that it must be done and accomplished much, and that is work. One step farther comes that which we dislike to do and yet do while feeling that it accomplishes nothing, and that is drudgery. There is mental activity in all four."

"In which of these our work shall be classed depends on our mental attitude. It all lies in the state of mind. The highest function of education, therefore, lies in getting people to like doing the things which are good, and to dislike the others. It lies in creating interest, and in infecting people with enthusiasm for the good and the beautiful."

"The great aim of education is reached when the child has been made to understand and to love what is good for him. Then is the school truly connected with life as it has never been before. This is introducing into work the great element of play, the pleasure of doing even when accomplishing. To put into the life work the element of play, which is another name for loving one's work, is really the great aim to be sought. Nothing in this world, accomplished anything beneficial to his country or his fellow men, without his having been a labor of love."

"Children from the first should be given work that they like, work that is not only for the love of doing, but also for the sake of accomplishing. The zest of play will remain in doing the things worth while, later, for duty's sake, when that spirit of play has not been killed by its being starved in childhood. The whole of a man's life is influenced, or even changed, by the dominating childhood of this happy instinct of play. It is lost for the years to come when stifled at that age, and the man who develops from the play-starved child has no lost his habit that he can no longer find zest in the work of life. All play and no work is certainly not good, but it is even better than all work and no play."

"The great work of the teacher lies then in creating interest in the child's mind, in giving him a personal realization of the things worth while, which shall thereafter make him take these things not as unpleasant work which must be accomplished at the cost of joy, but rather as play, that is, activity for the sake of pleasure. That is infinitely better than the most brilliant examinations. Leaving school with such an interest, such a realization means everything. It is the root of all intellectual life, for interest leads to volition, and from volition to conduct. The effects of the most dazzling of examinations may end at the school door. Interest in the best things of the mind and heart will last through life."

"The infection of enthusiasm for these things is therefore the teacher's highest function. Teaching worthy of the great name is not cramming the child's mind with so many dates and facts and figures, but it is infecting him with a love of study which shall be his through life, to give him, as a man, that feeling of joy in it that he felt in play as a child. Something is wrong with the teacher who fails in this, and to whose pupils study remains all work and no play. She has not been an inspiration to a love of the better things."

Miss Edmund in her address said: "The only influence which has counted in her life is the influence of the girl herself. Her moral and mental stamina, and the personal proofs she could give her ability to teach have been the things which have opened the door before her. I have done the absolutely nothing by everything. Nothing but the capacity of the girl herself has been considered, for we have never in mind that in the school room vital thing is the teacher. She is called upon to influence thousands of children through the long years of her career, and so much depends upon her intelligence and ability that to allow ourselves to be influenced by any other considerations would be to fail signally in a great trust."

THE GRADUATES.

Diplomas were presented the graduates by Supt. Whitcomb who also presented diplomas to the following graduates of the grammar school: Catherine Veracunda Foley, Ida Matilda Bester, Marjorie Elizabeth Regan, Beatrice Miriam Ramsden, Marguerite Josephine Lepper, Alice Veracunda Ryan, Clara Elsie Mann, Catherine Rose Delany, Vivian May Cowen, Elizabeth Catherine Thomas, Agnes Loretta O'Connor, Louise Gertrude Reilly, Margaret Jane Joyce, Helen Groves, Robert Charles Crowley, John William Neville, Wilfred Edward Reilly, William Sullivan, John Lester Phelps, Arthur John Forbes, John McDermott, Richard Francis Preston, Frederick William Conney, Edward Aloysius Callahan, Albert Laurence Carney, John Thomas Gill, John James Quinn.

Miss Lynch, president of the class, presented the class gift, a picture, to the school. Miss Edmund accepted it. After the exercises, the usual reception to the graduates took place. The decorations were of flags, greenery and picturesque bunches of crimson rambling roses. Hubbard's orchestra played.

PLEASANT SURPRISE
TO MRS. JAMES MUIR ON DEPARTURE FOR SCOTLAND.

A pleasant surprise party was held last night at the home of Mrs. James Muir at 18 West Ninth street, the affair being under the auspices of Princess lodge, Daughters of St. George. Mrs. Muir is about to leave on an extensive visit to Scotland.

During the evening she was presented a handsome gold pin with the emblems of the order. Piano solos were rendered by Miss Grace Robinson and there were songs by Mr. Blackstock and the other members of the party. Refreshments were served by the Messrs. Robinson and Clark. The evening was brought to a close with a hearty wish of a safe and pleasant voyage. Mrs. Muir will leave next Tuesday on the "Plymouth" of the White Star line and will return to the city some time in September.

KINGDOM OF LOVE

Rev. J. Haven Richards
S. J., the PreacherAT ST. PETER'S LAST EVENINGForty Hours' Devotion
at Sacred Heart

The closing services in the triduum in honor of the feast of the Sacred Heart at St. Peter's church were largely attended and were conducted by Rev. W. George Mullin. The sermon was preached by Rev. J. Haven Richards, S. J., of Boston college, formerly president of Georgetown University.

The preacher spoke on "The Kingdom of Love." He said in part: "What is the great motive power of the world? Some might say that it is science, others would have it that avarice, the hoarding together of wealth, was the prime factor in life, while others are at variance on many things. Love, however, is the greatest of powers in this universe. It rules and prompts men's actions. It is the heart that judges and acts and makes for all the good things in life and in the hereafter. So God has made his kingdom the kingdom of love."

"And yet that love which God asks of us has fallen almost dormant into oblivion in many ways. God asks to be loved and in return he offers his great love, that which is all powerful, all great and all comforting. But what ingratitude he has found in us. In the olden times his love for man and man's love for him were foremost in the minds of everyone, but as times progressed there was a gradual eking away of that love until the present time finds us confronted with what is called modernism, a turning away from God and the ignoring of his love."

"A little more than 200 years ago, there appeared before a good nun, wrapped in prayer and an image of the Sacred Heart, bleeding and bruised and suffering from the want of the love of man, God, at that time, said to her, 'Look upon this heart of mine, think of the love I hold for my people and then consider the ingratitude shown me.' He asked that a special service be said that this love then this service which we are engaged in tonight has been instituted that his wishes might be gratified."

"To love God in his infinite divinity is a difficult matter. If we love God of our own free will we have done what he asks but how many of us, think you, love God? There are some who serve and love God faithfully, through fear, others do it from a stern sense of justice and duty, and others, too few, I might say, love him of their own accord, because they believe he fully deserves it."

"There are many incidents showing the love of men for their commanders, same men feel to do justice in loving their greatest leader as they should. God loves us as we have never been loved and will continue so until the end of the world."

"We may think that as laymen or laywomen our love is too insignificant to give God, but think not thus, for one's love, no matter what his or her station in life may be, accomplishes much in this end."

"Every one of you can and should become a soldier in the army of love for God. We have been called upon to assist God and the greatest assistance we can render him is by showing our love."

FORTY HOURS' DEVOTION.

The Forty Hours' devotion in honor of the feast of the Sacred Heart opened in the Sacred Heart church yesterday morning at 8 o'clock with solemn high mass sung by Rev. Bernard Fletcher, O. M. I., assisted by Rev. Frs. Smith and Barrett, O. M. I., as deacon and sub-deacon. At the close of the mass the Litany of the Saints was chanted by the sanctuary choir, after which there was a procession of the sanctuary choir, altar boys and clergy carrying the Blessed Sacrament through the church, during which the choir sang the "Pange lingua." The altar was beautifully decorated with cut flowers. The Forty Hours will come to a close at the high mass on Sunday, which will be a solemn one. The last one a high mass at 8 o'clock, the last one a high mass at 8 o'clock, the last one a high mass at 8 o'clock.

FOURTH OF JULY AND MONTICELLO

ENTRANCE HALL AT MONTICELLO

MONTICELLO, HOME OF THOMAS JEFFERSON

FIRECRACKERS spluttering on the streets, cannons booming from hill to hill, flags waving, oratory bubbling up in every public hall and picnic ground, the great American people wildly, tumultuously lively—this is Independence day as we understand it. Different, how different, was the first Independence day, July 4, 1776, in the hushed city of Philadelphia, when a group of grave men sat in the square, somber room of the old statehouse on Chestnut street and listened to the reading of a document as momentous as it was brief. After much serious talk they rose one by one and affixed their names to the paper while the little urchin waiting without clambered panting to the bell tower overhead shouting: "Ring! Grandfather, ring!" Then the awed people without, recognizing this signal, stood about in thoughtful groups, for liberty was an untold venture, and they braved a perilous thing—the wrath of a powerful king.

The first Independence day was one of anxiety and prayer. Even the author of the daring declaration, a slim young man of thirty-three, with a florid complexion, sandy hair and gray eyes, whose name stands third in the list of Virginia's signers, may have had his own qualms, known only, of course, to the one woman in the world, a little tawny eyed matron in stately white pillared mansion overlooking miles of picturesque Virginia scenery in Albemarle county. And this woman was probably "the woman in the case," for she was the inspiration, the first and only love of Thomas Jefferson, the author of the declaration, a woman as intellectual as she was lovely. When he married her she was a widow, but a widow of only twenty-three, without any incumbrances, and there is no doubt that the match was based on romance. When she died, after ten years of married life, her husband was inconsolable; but, unlike many inconsolable husbands, he never remarried.

To know just how a man thinks it has been said one must know just how he lives, and to gratify this curiosity in regard to the mind that evolved the republic's charter of liberty a visit within a few miles of which is located Monticello, the home of Thomas and Martha Skelton Jefferson. The trip from Washington by rail is but a short one, amounting to about 116 miles. Through the courtesy of the present owner of the place visitors are admitted to the house and grounds, which are kept in the same condition as they were in Jefferson's days. A drive of four miles from Charlottesville brings one to the lodge which is at the entrance to the grounds. The house is on the top of a hill, where it commands a magnificent view. The name of the estate, Monticello (meaning little mountain), was suggested by its elevation. The house stands on the very summit of the hill, half a mile from the lodge along a winding road. Trees line the drive, and the carriage must pass through a second gateway bordered by an orange hedge before the house itself is reached. It is a low, rambling structure, not unlike an Italian villa, the great portico with four white pillars being the most imposing feature of its architecture. Like so many of the old Virginia mansions, it combines admirably both comfort and elegance. It is said that Thomas Jefferson himself, who was a most ingenious person, planned the house, supervised the building and at times did not disdain to lend a hand when a workman seemed slow or lacking in proficiency. The present owner of the mansion is Mr. Jefferson M. Levy, whose uncle purchased it from James T. Barclay, who secured it from the Jefferson family when they sold it to pay the unfortunate ex-president's debts. For, alas, the author of the Declaration of Independence was not thrifty. The wife of his youth, whose co-operation would have spared him many of the financial embarrassments of later years, was taken from him early. Their daughters were brought up by strangers, and the sober caution which such a wife might have taught him in his business relations with others was sadly wanting in the sage of Monticello. So long as she lived she was his confidant and adviser. The daughter of John Wayles, a wealthy lawyer who lived near Williamsburg and with whom Jefferson had business relations, her education was liberal for an age when housewifely skill was accounted more creditable to a woman than much learning. She played on the harpsichord and sang beautifully. Jefferson himself was a fine performer on the violin, and their mutual taste for music may have first inspired mutual interest. Jefferson was fond of books, and so was she. Before he met her he had begun building Monticello on the hill that had been a favorite boyhood haunt, three miles from his birthplace, Shadwell. Probably it soon occurred to him that the pretty widow would make an excellent ornament for this home. At any rate, they were married Jan. 1, 1772, and her first view of Monticello was at the end of her bridal journey, when it lay under a mantle of snow. The long ride from her home near Williamsburg to the place in the then wild and little settled part of Albemarle county was made in a storm, and they were compelled by its severity to leave the coach and finish the journey on horseback, arriving at their destination at night, when the servants had retired to bed in their quarters and the dwelling was dark and cold and cheerless. It was a discouraging homecoming for a bride, but the young couple in their quiet way made light of it and no doubt were up early in the morning, she anxious to get a better glimpse of this wonderful new mansion and he anxious to show her its many points of excellence.

It was in this house that this admirable woman passed most of the ten brief years of life with Jefferson. His devotion was ideal. They walked and talked together in the beautiful grounds when evening came, and during the day she spent long hours with him in the library, where he told her of many of his dreams and aspirations. Several children came to bless them, the girls all lovely like their mother and all but one doomed to an early death. The Revolution was a stormy time, for the British saw in the author of the declaration an enemy whose head was worth having. When the traitor Arnold at the head of his British troops approached Richmond intent on capturing Governor Jefferson a detachment of soldiers under the notorious Tar-

ton was sent to take possession of Monticello, and Mrs. Jefferson fled with her young children to the home of Colonel Coles, fourteen miles away. The place was looted of all its valuables—one of Jefferson's fads was fine horses—and thousands of dollars' worth of grain and tobacco and many negro slaves were carried off. Probably more would have been lost but for the devotion of the servants, who managed to hide many articles of value in the house. Indeed it is said that the faithful house servant Caesar voluntarily remained for eighteen hours under the porch, where he had been burying the silver on the approach of the soldiers, rather than come out and arouse suspicion as to its hiding place. No doubt the anxieties of the Revolutionary period weakened a naturally delicate constitution, for in 1782, when her last child was born, Mrs. Jefferson's health gave way and she never rallied. She died on Sept. 6, and her nine-year-old daughter Martha, a child who inherited her mother's talent, became her father's companion and comfort. Marie, then aged three or four, was remarkable for her beauty. Lucy Elizabeth, the youngest, only two years old, died in 1784. With the close of the war for independence his country had need of Jefferson. He went to France as minister from the new republic, and there his daughters were educated. When Adams succeeded Washington as president, Jefferson was chosen vice president, and at the close of Adams' administration he was elected president and spent eight years in the White House. His daughter Martha had married Thomas Mann Randolph, Jr., her father's ward, and lived on his estate not far from Monticello, while Marie, who was the wife of her cousin, John W. Epes, occupied the homestead.

Though many a sprightly widow and many a lovely belle set her cap for the distinguished widower in the White House, he never gave a thought to any of them, though often he had need of woman's help in the executive mansion when his daughters, Mrs. Epes and Mrs. Randolph, were unable to be with him. In 1804 Mrs. Epes, whose constitution was as frail as that of her mother, passed away, and Monticello was again without a mistress. When in 1809 her father closed his presidential career and returned gladly to his books and the memories of his beloved dead Mrs. Randolph and her family joined the lonely old man in the mansion on the hill, and there, surrounded by his grandchildren and friends, he spent his last years studying and writing and entertaining most hospitably the guests who flocked from all parts of the country to see him. In his case hospitality proved to be his financial ruin, for he kept open house at Monticello and entertained friend and stranger alike. Such lavishness made inroads on a fortune never very ample. A friend whose note he had endorsed failed to pay it, so he was forced to make good. Then at last what was to be expected happened, and he found himself practically bankrupt. He was in debt, knew that he could not live many years longer, and his daughter, Mrs. Randolph, was poorly provided for. In order to escape his difficulties he proposed to sell Monticello by means of a lottery since to pay what it had cost him was beyond the means of most purchasers. He had imported workmen from Italy to cut the stone since there were then none in America who could do such work, and the satinwood and rosewood inlaid floors were so carefully constructed that they are today even more beautiful than when first laid. Congress frowned on this idea of an ex-president selling his home in such a manner and agreed to buy his library, but it gave him only $24,000, which was half what it had cost. Before Monticello could be sold its owner died and was laid to rest in the simple family burying ground which still may be seen upon the estate and in which repose his wife and many members of his family. After his death the estate passed out of the hands of the Jeffersons, and it is fortunate that it is today in the hands of one who honors the memory of its builder. Far in the distance as one stands at Monticello may be seen the dome of the University of Virginia, which this versatile genius founded and whose buildings he designed. Much as the present owner of the home of Jefferson prizes it, he might possibly be induced to part with it, if the estate was to be kept as a public memorial like Mount Vernon. Better than the waste of money on Fourth of July fireworks and display would be the raising of a fund to secure the home of the author of the Declaration of Independence and provide for its preservation as an inspiration for coming generations. For the Daughters of the Revolution to join hands with the Sons of the Revolution in perpetuating the memory of Martha Skelton Jefferson and her husband would be a patriotic work well worthy of public support and encouragement.

CAUGHT ON THE FLIGHT FROM JEST TO EARNEST

IT'S all telling any one how to raise either chickens or children. That goes without saying.

But still the intelligent mind can't help reflecting, and with me to reflect is to scribble it out of my system.

How I despise the "mushy," weak-minded mother, the one who goes in to ecstasies over the baby's darling "itty bitty tootsie woosties" and allows its milk bottle to grow sour while she rocks its agencies with a "hush-a-by, baby." And the louder the kid screams with a stomach ache the louder she chants.

Or what would you think of a dotting mother who kissed her darling all the time, but had not the strength to take it out in the park?

Or the weak mother who never slaps the kid's hands for touching things, but when the untaught youngster grabs the ink bottle and decorates the carpet literally spansks it until she is tired?

I've seen those things!

I tell you motherhood doesn't appear sacred so often to me as it does queer.

A woman is tall enough nothing is prettier than a double skirt effect. The remainder of the border is used to outline the kimono sleeves.

All over embroideries are being dyed in red, pink and royal blue. These make stunning walking length gowns, especially if the embroidery contains eyelets. Parasols to match are the smart thing. A bit of the material left over is utilized, and the best headgear to correspond is a broad white sailor trimmed with the same shade of flowers.

They tell me challies are to be revived, but in a new silky weave and in pale colors only.

Old shawls are at a premium. They make perfectly stunning evening coats, white as for dresses—well, two or three white, deep fringed shawls make a gown that is simply dazzling.

Stripes are going out very rapidly. They are being worked to death in ten dollar suits and cotton voile ready made frocks trimmed with cheap taffeta.

I don't believe in encouraging quarrels between married people, but a wife should cling to her pride and self respect just as much after marriage as before.

It is not right to take all kinds of tasks from your husband, my dear lady. Just because you promised to love, honor and obey him. He owes something to you also, and if he finds that you and treat you in a way he wouldn't have dreamed of doing before marriage he is going to think less of you, that's all, and he is going to repeat the offense.

Give in on little things and don't be obstinate about them, but if ever a subject comes up where your best interests are at stake be firm about it and don't relinquish your rights or those of your children for the sake of peace.

"DIS AM BETTAH DAN DE FOUR O' JULY!"

You are not gaining it in that way; you are only raising a tyrant for yourself.

If you are right, stick to your guns. If you are wrong, don't refuse to give in just for the sake of winning the battle.

For the matter of that, if your husband sees you are both just and firm in matters where you have a right to be firm there will be no disputes.

And, another thing, don't run after him after marriage any more than you did before. That's where many a young woman makes a big mistake. Don't fetch and carry too much for him. Let him do his share and remember that whether married or single a man likes to be the pursuer and not the pursued.

If you have an invalid in the house and you want to coax her appetite, don't fill her plate full. Give her a very small quantity at a time, and she will soon beg for more. There is nothing that discourages one so much as broad slabs of butter, thick pieces of bread and luscious chunks of meat swimming in tawny gravy. Cut the ordinary piece of bread into two triangular pieces and shave the meat into tiny pieces already sprinkled with pepper and salt. Garnish the plate with a crisp tiny heart of lettuce, and you will see a pleased expression on the sick person's face.

There is nothing more tiresome than the woman you meet at some afternoon reception who continually asks you what people you know.

"Are you acquainted with the Pembroke Whites? No? I'm surprised! They are first cousins to the Willie Smiths. Everybody knows them."

"You went to Pokenose mountain last summer? Such a charming spot! Of course you met Mrs. Fitzgerald, didn't you? Her mother's sister married the Marquis of Sprout. Dear Lady Sprout! Such a charming woman! Well, perhaps they weren't there when you were."

No wonder foreigners say we have no conversation in our drawing rooms outside of personalities.

Rag carpet weaving is being revived here in New York. I have seen the most charming striped mats made out of old carpet, while solid tone green small rugs are a distinct addition to a colonial bedroom belonging to a friend. They were made out of an old flowered carpet she was heartily sick of, and the beautiful green vegetable dye was applied by the firm that did the weaving.

As a nation we are beginning to appreciate quiet, substantial carpets.

Ask you what people you know.

more and more. We have passed the stage where cheap ingrain and the glories of designs shamelessly called Louis XV. dazzle us. We admire the rich tints of oriental rugs, and, educated by these, we appreciate the honest handiwork and pure dyes of grandma's rag carpets.

Farmers' wives are bringing them out of their attics and selling them to city people for handsome prices just as they sold a few years ago their blue and white pottery and their spindle-backed chairs.

There seems to be a general return to all that is practical and solid in interior decoration, and I'm glad of it.
